Important Declaration of Sympathy for

The Russian Minister, Mr. De Stoeckl,

The Russian Minister, Mr. De Stoeckl, lately had an audience of the President, and rend to him the following dispatch:

[TRANSLATION.]

St. Petersburg, July 10, 1861.

Mr. De Stoeckl, &c., &c.—Sir:—
From the beginning of the conflict which divides the United States of America, you have been desired to make known to the Federal Government the deep interest with which our august master was observing the development of a crisis which puts in question the prosperity and even the existence of the Union. The Emperor profoundly regrets to see that the hope of a peaceful solution is not realized, and that American citizens already in arms against each other are ready to let loose upon their country the most formidable of the securges of political society, a civil way, For the more gress to the concord of its members, consecrated under the auspices of its members, con consecrated under the auspices of its | Dy the President, William H. Shyand, Secretary of State. illustrious founder, by institutions which have been able to reconcile union with liberty. This Union has been faithful. It has exhibited to the world the spectacle of a prosperity without example in the annals of history. It would be deplorable that, after so conclusive an experience, the United States should be harried into a breach of the solemn compact which, up to this time, has made their power, in spite of the diversity of their constitutions. spite of the diversity of their constitutious and their interests, and perhaps even, because of this diversity. Providence seems to urge them to draw closer the traditional bond which is the basis and the very condition of their political existence. In any event, the sacrifices which they might impose upon themselves to maintain it, are beyond comparison with those which a dissolution would bring after it. The exquisite finish, beauty and softness of your por-nits, couplined with their dumbility of color and faith-luces as likenesses, cannot fall to commend them to the tention and patronage of all who appreciate true art. Frem Col. James Page. Having occasion for a portrait, I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a miniature in Oil Colors, under the new process discovered by him, and take great pleasure in expressing the satisfaction given me, not only by the accuracy of the likeness, but its actis-
