

WM. LEWIS, Editor and Proprietor. A. TYHURST, Associate Editor.

HUNTINGDON, PA. Thursday afternoon, Jan. 23, 1862.

NOTICE.

We have not the time nor the inclination, to dun personally, a large number of persons who have unsettled accounts upon our books of several years standing.

NEW TERMS.

All Orleans Court printing, including Administrators and Receivers Notices, all Advertisers Notices, occasional advertisements, etc., must hereafter be paid for in advance.

HENRY D. MOORE, Re-Elected STATE TREASURER.—On Monday, Senators and Representatives met in Convention in the House, and proceeded to ballot for State Treasurer.

Mr. Moore has a faithful office, and has the confidence of all who know him best.

Those who ought to know, tell us that "day is dawning." They can now see clearly through this rebellion, and assure us in words that cannot be mistaken, that the blow at this hydra-headed monster has been well aimed, and all that is now necessary to prove the truth of their assertions, is a little time.

A body of the enemy was posted on a commanding hill, and it became necessary to dislodge them. The 14th Kentucky volunteered for the service, as they knew the nature of the ground.

The hill was cleared, and soon the reserve of the brigade came in at a double quick. As soon as he saw them, Colonel Garfield pulled off his coat and flung it up in the air, where it lodged in a tree, out of reach.

As the Federal troops reached the top of the hill, a rebel officer shouted in surprise: "Why how many of you are there?" "Twenty-five thousand men—d—n you!" yelled a Kentucky Union officer, rushing at the rebel.

Several instances of personal daring and coolness are related. A member of Captain Bushnell's company in the 2d, was about to fire a cartridge when a musket ball struck the cartridge from his fingers.

It is possible that hereafter there will be less necessity practiced at Washington and by agents throughout the country, than has heretofore been the case. Honest members of Congress have been watching closely the operations of suspected parties, and have already exposed several of the most prominent rascals.

REMARKS OF MR. SCOTT.

On the resolution offered by Mr. Hopkins in the House on the 17th inst. for the appointment of a committee to inquire into all the facts connected with the passage of the Act relating to the tonnage tax, Mr. Scott made the following remarks:

Having offered an amendment to this resolution, I desire to say a few words upon it—not so much with particular reference to the resolution as to the passage of which this investigation is asked, as upon the general question which this resolution brings up.

Now, sir, the truth of which is asserted in the preamble of that resolution cannot be doubted—that is, that the impression has gone abroad over this Commonwealth and has fastened itself firmly upon the minds of our people, that the constitutional exercise of our rights and duties, as representatives, has, for some years, been to a great extent abandoned.

It is well enough, sir, to go back to the old-fashioned notions which our fathers entertained, when it was not customary to sneer at the sentiment that virtue and intelligence in the representatives, as well as in the people, furnish the only safe and stable basis of republican government.

COLONEL GARFIELD'S VICTORY OVER HUMPHREY MARSHALL.

Captain Willard, of Company F, 12d Regiment, arrived here last night on his way home to Ruvenna. He was not in the Prestonsburg fight, but detained by sickness a few miles back of Paintsville, but obtained many incidents of the battle from those who were in it.

Precedents are about twenty miles beyond Paintsville. After the cavalry skirmish at the latter place, Col. Garfield pushed on with the advance of his brigade to Prestonsburg. Before reaching that place he found the enemy posted on and behind a range of hills.

The Federal force forming the advance was less than seven hundred, but Col. Garfield at once prepared to make an attack.

A body of the enemy was posted on a commanding hill, and it became necessary to dislodge them. The 14th Kentucky volunteered for the service, as they knew the nature of the ground.

Several instances of personal daring and coolness are related. A member of Captain Bushnell's company in the 2d, was about to fire a cartridge when a musket ball struck the cartridge from his fingers.

A DECISIVE VICTORY.

INGLORIOUS RETREAT OF THE REBELS.

CAPTURE OF ALL THEIR ARTILLERY, AMMUNITION, HORSES, WAGONS, &c.

TWO HUNDRED DEAD REBELS FOUND ON THE FIELD.

ZOLICOFFER'S BODY FOUND IN A WAGON.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 21.—A special Louisville dispatch to the Commercial, says that dispatches received at Headquarters, reporting that the battle took place on Sunday morning, and that Gen. Thomas continued the pursuit until night.

Our troops had possession of the field, and the rebels were driven to the river. The rebels were driven to the river, and the rebels were driven to the river.

Gen. Zolicoffer was found in a wagon mortally wounded. The rebels were driven to the river, and the rebels were driven to the river.

The surgeon of the Tenth Indiana Regiment has called for that number, and getting no volunteers, has resorted to impressment. Citizens are seized in their houses, on the roads, or wherever they are taken at the point of the bayonet to Bowling Green, where they are enrolled in the service of the Confederate Government.

An amusing part in the escape of these contrabands was the fact that they arrested and brought to our pickets a white rebel, and delivered him safely into custody. The fellow's name was called for that number, and getting no volunteers, has resorted to impressment.

FROM GEN. BANKS' COLUMN. FREDERICK, Md., Jan. 20.—The latest intelligence from Western Virginia is to the effect that the rebel Jackson is near Romney, and partially occupied with the city of Romney.

THE VICTORY IN KENTUCKY. JACKSON'S FORCE, near Romney, is said to be 17,000 men. The rebels were driven to the river, and the rebels were driven to the river.

FROM GEN. BUELL'S DIVISION.

MURFRESBORO, Ky., Jan. 18.—Ten contrabands, all males, arrived here last night from Bowling Green.

They have several days making their escape, and compose the part of a large party, all of which left at the same time. They made their way to our pickets last evening, and after undergoing examination at the outpost, were brought to headquarters.

The women are put into the hospitals as nurses and washerwomen. The stouter children are put to work in various ways, the best men taken soldiers, and the rest employed as servants and laborers.

Nearly all of these slaves have been taken forcibly from their owners. The militia in this county number about 1800.

We know that we have many friends who sympathize with us. We have great confidence in the success of our arms, and we are confident that the sun of freedom that continues to shine in the North will soon spread his benignant rays over the South, and compel the rebel aristocracy to humble themselves or leave.

Paper is getting very scarce. Many of our journals have had to die for want of paper, and the Mirror and Washingtonian have come out half sheets for the last six months.

Our currency is fast upon writing paper and other bad paper, and when handled a few times it falls to pieces. There is no gold or silver passing. Iron is not to be had at any price.

Twelve Mississippians died in Leesburg yesterday of diphtheria. It is very prevalent among them. The letter from which the above extracts are made is dated January 10 (yesterday), and shows more plainly than perhaps any other document the pass to which the effective land and sea blockades is reducing the South.

The Pursuers Caught. A Camp Wood, Ky., correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, writing Jan. 11th, gives the following account of an incident that occurred at that place. Yesterday there were four prisoners taken, and brought into camp.

The way it occurred was this: A gentleman by the name of Jenkins, a great Union man, living some five miles from the river, being rather troublesome to the rebels, was compelled to find protection in our encampment.

Having been some time in our camp, he very naturally had a desire to see his wife and little ones. He went and passed several days uninterrupted.

But yesterday morning he heard the clatter of horses' feet on the stony road. Rushing to the door, he glanced down the bank and saw a man with a white horse, and he was returning with a pack of provisions.

He was then within a mile of our pickets, and he, knowing where they were stationed, conceived the idea of drawing his pursuers into a trap.

Consequently, he held in his horse until they were within about one hundred yards of him, then, as a matter of course, imagined his horse was about worn out, and the prey would soon fall into their hands, but just as they fancied they had the victim, they noticed a small body of men immediately on their right.

Suspecting they were getting into most too close quarters to be comfortable, they suddenly came to a "halt" and "about" wheel, and not a hundred yards in their rear, drawn up in line across the road, was a "squad" of men amounting to about twenty.

The rebels seeing they were fairly entrapped, quietly surrendered, and when brought into camp looked most decidedly "cheep," losing their victim at the same time being entrapped themselves.

Misrepresentations of the President and His Opinion. The disorganizers in and around Washington who make it their business daily to get up and circulate falsehoods prejudicial to Gen. McClellan and his plans, and against President Lincoln and his sound policy for the preservation of the Government, are a wily and dangerous set of people.
