ONE of THE HERES of PITTSUNG.—Among the killed on the National side, at the late hoody victory in Tennesse, was Acting Brig. Gen. William Pegram. He was a brother of the wise rendered his name forever infamous. Though born in Virginia, he had resided for a number of years in Kontucky, and was never seduced from his logalty by the poor sophisms that led his brother into treason. From the first he was a staunch logalist, rais-ing a regiment of cavalry, which was in the engagement at Pittsburg Landing, and has now offered up his life in defence of the country against which his brether has lifted up a traitor's hand.
