The Recent Rebel Raid.

From the N. Y. Tribune July 15. The first that was publicly known a Rebel raid into Maryland was last Monday week, when the approach of a force toward Martinsburg was an-nounced. The head of the Shenandoah Valley was then held by Gen. Sigle, who seems not to have appreheuded the possibility of a Rebel advance, and who accepted the news of it as a signal for retreat upon Harper's Ferry. It does not appear that the Robels were at first in any considerable force. They made various demonstrations, pushing cavairy across the Potomac at Falling Waters, and at Shephordstown, and threatening simultaneous ly an invoad into Pennsylvania and a movement upon Baltimore. With their accustomed audacity, they had shown-their heads of colums days before the main body was within supporting distaure, and although they might easily have been driven back in confusion had they been resolutely met, were suffered to establish themselves north of the Potomac without serious oppo-REGARDLESS OF PARTY POLITICS, AGAINST ALL Sition. They occupied both Hagers-ASSAILANTS, AT HOME AND ABROAD."-STEPHEN town and Frederick, and did not dicisively indicate their line of advance till the whole Pennsylvania border had retreated in panie—then turned scornfully toward Baltimore.

The evidence of what we have sta ted above as to the slow arrival of the Rebel columnsis found in the fact that Potomac was ascertained down to the time when the battle at Monocacy was fought, nothing was known of the Rebels movements. Their force For the Constitutional Amendment lace, with what troops he could gath-Giving Pennsylvania Soldiers in the Service er, went up from Baltimore to Frederick, and on Friday discovered the presence of the enemy in force advancing on the Hagerstown turnpike.
Falling back to the Monocacy as the best defensive line, he fought a battle on Saturday, and was defeated. His force was about 7,000; that of the enemy at least twice as many. But his stand had served to develop the number and something of the intentions of the Rebels-was, in fact, a reconnois sance in force, and as such successful.

After the battle the movements of the Rebels were rapid and well-direct ed. A cavalry force were sent east to cut the Northern Central and Philadelphia and Baltimore Railroads, and did their work pretty thoroughly, con-sidering the time and means granted them. They succeeded in creating the impression that a dash on Washington was contemplated—the supposed danger to Baltimore disappearing when it became known that Wallace was not pursued, and that no infantry force had crossed the Monocaey. The bridges on the Philadelphia road, being protected by gunboats. were not seriously injured, excepting that over Gunpowder Creek, but the telegraph was cut, two passenger trains from Baltimore were captured, and time was gained for the safe movement of the main body on the Rockville road to-

South of Baltimore the Rebels followed the same tactics. Their col ums were massed, and their cavalry cut the Washington road with the same purpose and result as they had 8 Aaron Mull, 21 Ev. Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, do issue this my call for five hundred thousand volunteers for the military service; provided, nevertheless, that this call shall be reduced by all credits which may be established under section 8th of the aforesaid act, on account of persons who have entered the naval service during the present rebellion, and by credits for men furnished to the military service in excess of calls heretofore made. Volunteers will be accepted under the call for one, two or three years, as they may elect, and will be entitled to the bounty provided for which they enlist. And I hereby proclaim, order and direct, that immediately after the 5th day of September 1864, being 50 days from the date of this call, a draft for troops to serve for one year shall be had in every town, township, ward of a city, precinct or election district, or county not so sub-divided, to fill the quota which shall be assigned to it under this call, or any part thereof which may be unfilled by volunteers on the said 5th day of Septsmber,
