President Johnson's Views.

President Johnson's views with re lation to reconstruction in the rebel States, will be found in another column. His intention is to let the States rethis he will not allow them to have too much power, but will allow them to they must be checked, and as the powfault will be found. In the speech of Secretary Seward in this paper will be found the factory, but I think it conveys, for the remark that this is not a new plan, but most part, the spirit of our conversathat "it is the plan which abruptly yet tion. As time, then, The President of the United States. fulfills its mission, let faith and patience on our part do their work.

The President has also thrown out some ideas, though not original, upon he talked for an hour on the process the negro suffrage question. He does of reconstruction of rebel States. His If he was in Tennessee, he says, he sation as free, as in 1863, when I met would try and introduce negro suffrage gradually, with certain qualifications in the commencement; but where he is, he will not interfere with the vote North were anxious that the process in the rebel States, to dictate that the of reconstruction should be thorough negro shall vote, as he might with like arduous work, but their ideas were propriety do the same in Pennsylvania, confused by the conflicting reports thus showing that he will keep ever constantly circulated, and especially in view the right of each State to do by the present position of the Demoas it thinks expedient in this subject. We could not expect nor require anything more, and the President thus far | ingly replied: "Major, have you never exercises a commendable sense of discrimination that is his wont, and which the people will remember.

The President also defines in a significant manner his position with regard to the so called Democratic party, which has been vaunting so loudly as having him on their side. He says: "The Democratic' party finds its old of it. You and I need no preparation created to aid the Rebellicn against position untenable, and is coming to for this conversation; we can talk freeours," which ours means, that of the | ly on this subject, for the thoughts are Union party. The opposition can no frank with each other. He then comlonger deceive the people, in the face of this assertion, by saying that Andy are in the Union, which is whole and who leave given their means for the Johnson is theirs, and if they attempt to do so, the people will know where but did not succeed, as a man may try he stands and what he has said. WHAT A SOUTHERN MAN SAYS :-Kenneth Raynor, in a letter to Dr. expect to keep out all who were ex-William Elvin, thus puts his deliberate cluded from the amnosty, or even a coninion on this subject before the world: ropinion on this subject before the world: "I must say that I regard James Buchanan as more responsible for the disasters and horrors of the last four years, than any man in the nation. The people of the South had very kindly feelings for him. In fact, he was more popular with the ultra men of the South, on account of his conniwance at the Ransas outrage, his dog-ma about having no power to coerce a a State, &c., than he was with the Union men. A remonstrance from him, vance at the Kansas outrage, his doga warning, a declaration that he must maintain the authority of the Government and see that the laws were exe cuted—this, coming from a friend; would have induced the secessionists to pause and consider; at least, it would have aroused and given confidence to the Union element of the South. It would in my opinion, have averted the conflict. But he stood still and did nothing.

It would not do to let the negroes have universal suffrage now; it would breed a war of races.

There was a time in the Southern States when the slaves of large owners looked down upon non slaveowners because they did not own slaves; the larger the number of slaves their masters owned, the prouder they were, and this has produced hostility between the mass of the whites and the negroes. The outrages are mostly from non slaveholding whites against the negro, and from the negro upon the nonslave.

feel sure is destined to last: but to secure this, we must elevate and purify the ballot. I for many years contend ed at the south that slavery was a pocontended that we lost two fifths .-If we had no slaves, we should have had twelve representatives more, according to the then ratio of representation. Congress apportions representation by States, not districts, and the State apportions by districts. Many years ago I moved in the Legislature that the apportionment of Representatives to Congress, in Tennessee, sh'ld be by qualified voters.

The apportionment is now fixed un-til 1872; before that time we might change the basis of representation from population to qualified voters, north as well as south, and, in due course of time, the States, without regard to color, might extend the elective franchise to all who possessed certain mental, moral or such other qualifications, as might be determined by an enlightened public judgment.

President Johnson and the Rebel War Debt.

The South Carolina Constitutional Convention having passed a resolution that the Rebel War Debt ought to be paid. President Johnson forwarded the following important dispatch to about six and eight years, were in the Gov. Holden, Provisional Governor of that State:

The great mass who have given their means for the obligations of the State, look to that the people. They must meet their fate. It is their misfortune, and cannot be recognized by the people of any State professing themselves loyal to the United States and in the Union. I repeat, that the loyal people of North Carolina should be exonerated from the payment of every dollar of indebtedness created to aid in carrying on the Rebellion. I trust and hope that the people of North Carolina will hands of everything that wash their partakes in the slightest degree of the Rebellion, which has been so recently crushed by the strong arm of the Government, in carrying out the obliga-tions imposed by the Constitution of

The election, as you are aware, is over error has been achieved, despite the efforts of a very few of the Union party's impotent politicians, who must have learned by the late election, if not before, that when the bone and sinew of the party are determined and active, the efforts of disappointed office seekers prove abortive. But a truce to politics-it is not my province.
