Gov. Fairchild, of Wisconsin, in his recent inaugural address, gives publicity to the following sentiment: "Not until Jefferson Davis shall have been tried, convicted, and hung for trea-

This is the sentiment entertained by the loyal masses of the people from east to west, and we are pleased to see that the people's highest functionary in Wisconsin is not backward in giving vent to his feelings and those of That man is the Hon. The anxiety of the public has not yet ceased in regard to what shall be the disposition of Jeff, and we think the sooner his case is disposed of, the better it will be for him perhaps, and the people, surely. The crime of treason should be demonstrated upon the person of some rebel, and what more appropriate person than the head and center of the great rebellion?

NEXT GOVERNOR .- The Union State Central Committee is called to meet in Harrisburg on Friday the 19th inst.. for the purpose of fixing the time for holding the next State Convention, and transacting other business. The most important business for the next Union State Convention will be the nominating of a Union candidate for Governor. It is not too soon for the people to be looking around for the best man. We notice in some of our exchanges, communications urging the claims of several gentlemen. Colonel Frank Jordan of Bedford, Maj. Gen. John W. Geary, now a citizen of Cumberland county, and Hon. James K. Morehend of Allegheny, are strongly urged for the position. Hon. John Cessna of Bedford, Mr. Ketchum of Lycoming, and some three or four other prominent gentlemen have also been named for the nomination. Our columns are open to our patrons to urge the claims of their choice .-

GENTLEMEN:-The toils and anxie ties of the last four years have from time to time brought on me severe attacks of disease. From the most sovere of these I am now slowly strug-gling towards recovery. I find that to give my constitution an opportunity to continue this struggle, it is absolutely necessary that I should, without delay, make a short sea voyage, and sojourn in a milder climate. Under the pressure of this necessity I go to the Island of Cuba. It is my hope and intention to return in good season to welcome you on your arrival at the seat of government. But, if it should be found discharge papers recorded in the counindispensable that my visit to Cuba ty office where you reside, so that in should be prolonged to the early part the event of the loss of your discharge indispensable that my visit to Cuba of February, this message will serve to lay before you the cause of my absence at the commencement of your session. In this case I feel sure that you will adopt such course as shall consist with your wisdom, and with the affectionate consideration which I have always re-

It would, however, not become me to forget that the issues of life are in the hands of the One above all, and that many have found death waiting for them on the foreign shore to which they had been sent in search of health. Should such be my fate, I shall draw my last breath with a sense of the the last four years to the great cause of the right, and to me in my efforts to maintain it, and with a prayer of thank-fulness to Almighty God, that he strengthened me till the end of the cruel rebellion, and thought me worthy to be permitted to continue to that time as the Chief Magistrate of the nre of any man's ambition.

Stonewall Jackson is now living an object of public charity, a charge, really, on the directors of the poor in the parish where she resides. There is a retribution in all this which Southern indignation cannot hide, while the manner in which it illustrates the ingratitude of treason is full of impressive significance. Stonewall Jackson was looked upon as the bravest and the purest man in the rebel armies. When he perished the hosts of treason sent up a grievous howl-they felt, indeed, that they had lost a great commander. Immediately money was raised to procure statues of the dead traitor and build monuments to his memory. But before this money is disbursed, and before the men who acted with Jackson have forgotton their hatred of our authorities, the fact is made public in the South that his widow is a panper. It is related of Benedict Arnold that while he wandered an outcast and died a beggar in an alley in London, his relatives in fully reconstructed.
