man employed in this department; the place appears as though an enemy might not meet with a very kind reception in that quarter.

Wednesday 27th. The fog had disappeared and we for the first time had a view of the city and the country around it.

Friday morning 29th. Bright, clear morning, and as pleasant as in May. This morning we find ourselves at the depot at 6:30, homeward bound.

When we reflect on what we have seen we feel amazed and astonished at the ingenuity and power that our nation has arrived to.

ADAM'S FALL.—A favorite temperance lecturer down South used to relate the following anecdote to illustrate the influence of a bad example to the formation of habits, ruinous in their effect.

Adam and Mary his wife, who lived in the old States, were very good members of the church, good sort of folks, any way, quite industrious and thriving in the world.

Mary turned her head first one way and then the other, and finally said: "He'll look after a pile of rocks."

It was now the minister's turn to look blank but he ventured another question: "Where did he hide himself after the fall?"

Mary looked at the minister, then at the bed, but finally she spoke out with "Under the bed, sir! There, Adam, you may come out, he knows all about it!"

ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF NEW ORLEANS.—Fifty one years ago on Monday last, the 8th, the battle of New Orleans was fought, after a hard and successful contest under Gen. Jackson.
