- Interesting"-The report of a law suit in last week's Monitor by the counsellor who happened to come out undermost in the fight. It reminds us of a boy, we once knew, who, after receiving a sound parental drubbing, puffled about the house for half an hour, declaring all the time, "he

-Our County Commissioners deserve great credit for the manner they are discharging their duties. Reading Room and Library.

We are pleased to see that active neasures are in progress to establish such an institution as the above. At meeting on Saturday evening last six young men were appointed canassers of the borough, to solicit means with which to commence. Unlike other subscriptions, to this one very favorable inducements are presented those subscribing having privileges to the extent of their subscriptions.

It is hoped our citizens will subscribe miss the money they subscribe. If the amount of subscription will warrant the establishing of a Roading Room and Library, the intention is, we understand, to open the room every evening, Sunday excepted, and allow the members of the Association and those who subscribe free access to the daily journals, books and magazines. Every man who wishes to keep up with the times must read the papers, and as he will get his information and knowledge for less money in the Rending Room, it is to his advantage to favor the cause with his means and influence. Subscribe liberally, then, gentlemen, and let Huntingdon, no onger remain behind her neighbors in diffusing knowledge amongst her citizens. "Knowledge is power." and power to vindicate and establish our claims in the social and political world is what we are greatly in need of.

The idea entertained by some is that the project will "fall through" like everything else, but we can assure all such that there is a determination manifested that will carry it people to assist as far as they can. No good citizen, desiring the moral and literary advancement of our town, will refuse to subscribe just because he has a superstition that it will "fall through, like everything else."

MESSRS. EDITORS :- It may be interesting to your readers to know how we fared during Christmas and New Year's; it so, I will give you a short sketch. Through the exertions and labors of Dr. A. P. Fields, whom I have employed as physician for this instiution, the citizens of Cassville and vicinity contributed of the good things of this life to such an extent that we had a most magnificent Christmas liberally to this cause, as they will not dinner. We had five turkeys, one goose and forty one chickens, besides beef, pork, sausages, pies and cakes in profusion-in fact we had enough of chickens and cakes to get up another very nice dinner on New Year's day. It is true that I would have furnished them a dinner if this had not been done, but our citizens have shown by this act that they have a good feeling toward these dear little children,-it was a token of respect for them and the holy cause in which their fathers died. On motion of Captain Harper Suyder, one of the orphans, a rote of thanks was returned to the contributors, and especially to Dr. Fields for his exertions in getting it up. We then held a singing Concert in the evening which was largely attended and passed off pleasantly.

Friday before New Year's was a great day with us-Dr. Thomas H. Burrowes, State Superintendent of Soldiers' Orphan Schools, having arrived with suits for the boys, cloaks for the girls and material for dresses. The scenes of joy can be imagined but not described. New Year's day was through; but it is expected of our signaled by a grand parade through town, all being dressed in their blue suits.

I regret to add that Dr. Burrowes met with quite an accident in returndown Sideling Hill, the hound of the wagon broke, turning the wagon over very steep bank and precipitating he Doctor and his tailor down the hill-What the extent of the Doctor's injuries are, I have not learned, but it with his life. We symputhize very much with him, as we recognize in him one of the best and most efficient friends of our schools. May be live till were elected officers for the ensuing hundreds of these dear destitute orphans rise up and call him blessed.

We are getting along right well. We number 109, and if the Legislature does the nice thing for us, we will increase our numbers. The number of know they are favorably impressed with the school. Hoping that you
