The strong and carnest vetoes of Andrew Johnson carry us back to the stormy times of Andrew Jackson. Brought up in the same school, and fighting his political battles under Jackson in the same State, Johnson, in one great essential especially, is a worthy representative of Old Hickory. We allude to that high quality of moral courage which enables a man on the right course to confront and overcome all impediments. To the exercise of this quality, this readiness to assume the responsibility on critical occasions, we may justly attribute the moral power of Jackson's Presidential policy, and the popular strength and the long succession of victories of the old Jack sonian Democratic party.

General Jackson was first elected President upon the glory of his battle of New Orleans—a small affair compared with that of Admiral Farragut, and a mere flea bite compared with the Vicksburg, Chattanooga, or Petersburg operations of General Grant; but it was a grand military lesson until all our previous wars, armies, and battles were dwarfed by those of our great Rebellion. New Orleans, however, would hardly have served Jackson for a second term. Upon the merits of the first four years of his Administration depended the question of his re-election. Had he been satisfied with a passive submission to the will of Congress he might have had an easy time, but there would have been nothing left of him upon which to make R K Allison, farmer, Brady even a respectable fight for the succession. In declaring war against the sion. In declaring war against the obnoxious financial monopoly, the old United States Bank, and in vetoing the bill for the renewal of its charter, he consolidated the elements of his Administration, and fixed the majority of the American people around his charderd in the name of the Demo-

His decisive method for obtaining a harmonious Cabiaet; his prompt and effective treatment of South Carolina Benjamin Kyler, farmer, Cass in her nullification movement of France in regard to certain indemnities, and of refractory office holders right and left, and his frequent collisions with an op- H M'Manigal, livery keeper, Hunting'r position majority in one or the other branch of Congress, and sometimes in both, all contributed to strengthen him with the people as a man who was not to be frightened from his course by dangerous obstacles, nor diverted by the allurements of expediency or popularity. But it was the war with the United States Bank, and the moral courage he developed in that conflict with "the bank monster," that made him irresistible before the people. Thus the moral heroism of Jackson built up that great national Democratic party which fell to pieces under the imbecilities and cowardice of poor Pierce and Buchanan, involving us in all the hor-rors of the late Rebellion.

Out of this Robellion and from Tennessee we have in Andrew Johnson a Robert Gifford, farmer, Shirley disciple and a representative of Andrew George Garber, farmer, Cromwell disciple and a representative of Andrew Georgo Garber, farmer, Cromwell Jackson; and in the votoes of the William Gutshall, farmer, Springfield Freedmen's Bureau bill and the Civil | Charles Green, farmer, Oncida Rights bill we have in the highest degree a reproduction of the moral courage of Old Hickory, as illustrated in his bank veto. The fight in the one case was against a powerful financial William S. Harper farmer, Dublin monopoly; in the other it is upon the larger issue of the blending of all races Jacob Lane, farmer, Springfiel of men in this country-whites, blacks, yellows, reds, and browns, Caucasians, Africans, aborigines, Mongols and mongrels-upon the common level of political and social equality. President Johnson, against a two thirds majority James Moore, farmer, Oneida passing the measure in each house of William V Miller, farmer, Oneida Congress, has boldly taken his position against this startling revolutionary measure, and thus he is prepared to abide the judgment of the people.

The odds in Congress appear to be against him; but so they appeared in the case of the Freedmen's Bureau bil, and yet that veto has been sustained. The same result will probably follow in regard to this Civil Rights bill; but in any event the question is now before the people, and upon the broad and general issue raised between Thaddeus Stevens and Andrew Johnson, the abblition radical and the national conJackson White, farmer, Union servative. It is already apparent that the indomitable pluck of Mr. Johnson has given him a powerful hold upon the public confidence. The American recople like a man of pluck, and espe-cially do they admire this quality in the occupant of the White House, when they believe him to be right. Hence the popularity of Jackson, and hence the great and growing popularity of Johnson in the first year of his administration. At this rate with the masses of the people on his side, we may be sure that the party of the Administration will be overshadowing party in the field for the succession.
