A Great Farmer's Maxims.

In a notice of a discourse by Rev. L. M. Glover, D. D., Jacksonville, Illi-nois, on the death of Mr. Jacob Straun, who was spoken of as the "Great Amer ican Farmer," and who died in Jacksonville, Illinois, in August last, his biographer has recorded many excel-lent characteristics of the distinguished farmer, who has met with great success in all his business operations which is attributed chiefly to the following maxims, which we copy for the benefit of those farmers who are somewhat tardy, in performing the operations of the farm. When you wake up do not roll. over but roll out. It will give you time to ditch all your slough, break them up, barrow them, and sow them with timothy and red clover. One bushel of clover to two bushels of timothy is

Make your fence high, and strong, so that it will keep the cattle and pigs out. If you have brush make your lots secure, and keep your hogs from the cattle, for if the corn is clean they seven o'clock; they will rise early by the force of circumstances.

Pay a hand, if he is poor, all you promised him, if he is a good hand pay him a little more; it will encourage him to do still better.

Always feed your hands as well as you do yourself, for the laboring men are the bone and sinew of the world and ought to be well treated.

When it becomes rainy, bad weather so that you cannot work out doors, cut and split your wood, make your tracks, fixing your fence, or a gate that is off its hinges, or weatherboard your barn where the wind has blown off the siding, or patching the roof of the barn.

Take your time, and make your cal-culations; don't do things in a hurry, but do them at the right time, and keep your mind as well as your body

GARDEN MANAGEMENT .- In the garden one should cultivate a variety, so as to have a seasonable supply for the table at all times. Of spring growth, asparagus, lettuce and radishes are among the earliest and best. If the lettuce is grown in a hot bed, and the asparagus well managed, these vegetables may be placed on the table very early in the season. Part of the asparagus bed might be covered with a frame; which would bring it forward, and so lengthen the season. When the spring vegetables are gone, the more delicious ones of summer growth supply their place. Early potatoes, beans, corn, onions, peas, beets, tomatoes, cumbers, and cabbages, diversify the farmer's living. Strawberries, raspberries and blackberries succeed one another in order, and continue the supply until the fall fruits mature. There need be no failure in growing these fruits. Nor should the garden be without a bed of celery for winter use; and the various vegetables which remain in the ground to be used when the winter frosts set in, should be amply cultivated.—Rural New Yorker.

Analysis of the Soil of No Practical Utility.—Most people suppose that if the analysis of two different provided in the content of the provided in the content of the inventors that this should be used when the winter frosts set in, should be amply cultivated.—Rural New Yorker.

Analysis of the analysis of two different provided in the analysis of two different provided in the provided in elicious ones of summer growth sup-that if the analysis of two different soils are alike, the ground will be equally productive for any kind of crops. This is correct in theory, but SOLE AGENT, HUNTINGDON, PA. does not hold good in practice. Judge French writes in the Massachusetts

"A poor soil, chemically speaking, may give as good a crop as a rich one. Chemists usually give their results in per centages, and call a soil more or less fertile, as it contains a greater or less per cent of plant food. A heavy, rich loam, may often be rendered more DIPTHERIA, or SORE THROAT, productive by the addition of an equal bulk of pure sand, which would add no element of food, and would reduce the mass fifty per cent in its apparent value, as chemically tested."

BENEFIT OF PLOUGHING.—"Farmer"

writes to the Maine Farmer: "After living on a farm for half a century practising and experimenting, observation and experience teach me that plowing, instead of being an injury, is a great benefit to any land. My method of treating waste or pasture land is to first plow it and sow with grain. The next season I lay it down, and turn it to pasture for about four years, observing to keep stock on the land night as well as day for the season. Then I plow again and take off another crop of grain, after which turn to pasture as before. My land managed in this way fifteen or twenty years, is in as high a state of cultivation as the best manured land I have."

ABOUT GOOD AND POOR MILK .-- Mr. N. T. True, of the Maine Farmer, writes that milk differs more widely in quality than almost any other article. It differs in different breeds, and in cows of the same breed, and even in the same cow at different seasons of the vear. Let a cow be fed on meadow hay alone, and that late cut, and her milk will look blue and thin, and void of cream. Buyers of such milk have reason to complain of poor milk. On the other hand, the same cow fed with sweet clover hay, or fed with meal, will give you milk entirely different in quality. Milk kept in a foul cellar will be essentially affected by the odors arising from the decomposition of veg-

MANAGEMENT OF YOUNG CHICKENS.—A writer in the New York Times says: "When the chickens are hatched, if before taking them from the nest you would oil the top of the heads of the chicks, you will destroy all the lice there are in the brood; for as soon as two or three chicks are hatched, all the lice upon the hen leave her, and quarter themselves on the heads of the chicks, and the oil will kill them; and then with clean quarters for chicks on a start, and a thorough cleansing of the coop each week, you will not fail to raise your brood."

The soil, by its weight, is constantly trying to form rock under it in the subsoil. It is the farmer's business to see that it don't do it. His plow and spade are the means to prevent it, but espeially subsoil plow.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The Ladies.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to, dress tastefully, regardless or rebelacts, do not forget to call at the since of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fath, ers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as rea sonable terms as at any House in town.
