Wednesday morning, July 4, 1866.

FOR GOVERNOR. Maj. Gen. John W. Geary, OF CUMBERLAND COUNTY.

A New Volume.

This number commences the 22d year of the Globe since we have had control of its columns. It has always been an independent journal, and we intend that it shall continue so, regardless of denunciation from any quarter. The many personal and political friends who stand by us have our thanks, and we hope they may prosper as we have done.

The Soldiers' League a Nuisance.

Since the first day of the organization of the Soldiers League in this county we have treated it with the kindest respect, but it has become, as conducted in this place, a political nuisance, and calculated to do General Geary and the Union party more harm than good.

The League declares against nominating faithful war-worn soldiers for office even when their merits are equal to the civilians offering. It declares in favor of a soldier for Congress who has seen service in the field and bears upon his body the honorable scars of battle.

The League elects several gentlemen honorary members of their body who are out-and-out Andy Johnson men, and another who is an active member of the so-called Democratic party, and denies Andy Johnson honorary membership.

The League calls upon the Chairman of the State Committee to displace us as a member of the Committee for this county and appoint a reliable member of the Union Republican Party to fill our place.

The League after reading Andy Johnson and our humble self out of an organization we never were members of, coolly resolved that the friends of Andy Johnson who are soldiers in good standing, be permitted to become members of the League.

Andrew Johnson and the Covenant.

The Radicals are as persistent as they are unscrupulous in their slanderous pursuit of President Johnson. Unable to truthfully combat the constitutional views entertained by the Executive, they resort to falsehood, and fill the country with misrepresentation respecting his purposes and his policy.

Among the latest of these slanders is the statement that the President asks for the instant admission only of the authors of the rebellion, and that he relies upon the recent traitors alone. Every one will agree with the New York Times that it is not easy to understand how any one can repeat such an assertion as this directly in the teeth of open and notorious facts.

President Johnson has over and over again declared that loyal men, and loyal men only, from the Southern States should be admitted into Congress. He has urged the admission of the members from Tennessee only because they were loyal men, who had never had anything whatever to do with the Rebellion, and because they represent loyal constitutions.

He has urged the admission of the members from Tennessee only because they were loyal men, who had never had anything whatever to do with the Rebellion, and because they represent loyal constitutions.

"The war against slavery has not been fought in vain."—John W. Forney. The soldiers and the people were assured during the progress of the war that the war was for the preservation of the Union, but Forney now says it was against slavery—that the soldiers volunteered to fight for the negro.

The Government has located a national cemetery near Frederickburg, on St. Mary's heights, overlooking the town. It is proposed to inter here some twelve thousand bodies of Union soldiers who fell in the two battles of Frederickburg, and at Chancellorsville, Wilderness, and Spotsylvania Court House.

A Johnson National Convention.

It is curious sometimes to know who ask for pardons,—quite as curious as it is to observe the degree of censure bestowed on the President, according as it is known who it is that ask for his clemency in behalf of latents. It was the other day that the pardoning of some noted Southern orator at the request of Senator Pomroy, was published. So distinguished a Republican being the applicant, the act was not particularly censured; but amends were made for this forbearance on the part of those who are determined to let no opportunity pass for censuring the President, when it was made known that he had pardoned Keys and Manley, two prominent rebels. No publication of the petitioners was made at the time, and the presumption was that the President had acted purely on his motion.

Each State has the undoubted right to prescribe the qualifications of its own electors; and no external power rightfully can or ought to dictate, control, or influence the free and voluntary action of the States in the exercise of that right.

In the Sunday issue of the Philadelphia Press we find the following editorial paragraph: "Mr. J. W. Forney's speech, defining his position as a candidate for United States Senator, pronounced at Lebanon, in this State, on Thursday evening last, will be published at length in to-morrow's Press.

It is not unusual for a man to be elected to the Senate, and to be a member of the party which he represents, but in this respect Mr. Forney's position is peculiar. He is not a member of the party which he represents, and yet he is elected to the Senate.

The New York Tribune takes a survey of the crop prospect of 1866, and so far as it has positive information, it is certain that the winter wheat in the State of New York, and several other States, will be a very short crop. Upon the "true wheat lands" of that State, of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, &c., the prospect for winter wheat is very unfavorable.

The soldiers and the people were assured during the progress of the war that the war was for the preservation of the Union, but Forney now says it was against slavery—that the soldiers volunteered to fight for the negro.

A Johnson National Convention.

A National Union Convention of at least two delegates from each Congressional District of all the States, two from each Territory, two from the District of Columbia, and four delegates at large from each, will be held at the city of Philadelphia on the 14th of August next.

One of the most shocking and lamentable casualties we were ever called upon to chronicle, says the Louisville Journal of the 19th, occurred yesterday afternoon.

The soldiers and the people were assured during the progress of the war that the war was for the preservation of the Union, but Forney now says it was against slavery—that the soldiers volunteered to fight for the negro.

Commencement of the European War.

The steamship Jura brings intelligence of the formal commencement of the great European war. We say "formal" for there has been an actual cessation of hostilities since the possession of Holstein. The Federal Diet having on the 14th of June, agreed to the Austrian proposition for the mobilization of the Federal Army, Prussia, agreeably to previous notice, carried out her threat to consider it an act of hostility on the part of those States— which she did, and on the following day commenced the war by sending troops into Saxony and Hanover.

Europe has been so often fought over that its strategic points are well settled. We shall accordingly find the battles of the present war occurring, in all probability, upon the old sites which have so often trembled beneath the tread of the armed legions of the great heroes of history.

On one little street in Galena, Illinois, and within the space of four blocks, were at one time the homes of six private citizens, now known as Lieutenant General Grant, Major General John E. Smith, Major General Rawlins, Major General Chetlain and Brigadier General J. A. Malby.

A Parisian letter writer describes the Emperor as follows: He is of much lower stature than I had thought, and inclined to be fleshy; is quite grey, and wears no other beard than a moustache and imperial. He has a large and remarkable fine shaped head and bright eye.

The Treasury Department has been placed on the cars of the Portland and Kennebec Railroad for indicating the name of the station at which the train is about to stop.

One of the most shocking and lamentable casualties we were ever called upon to chronicle, says the Louisville Journal of the 19th, occurred yesterday afternoon.
