Fatal Accident. On Tuesday night last a young man named Gordon, from the State of Connecticut, attempted to jump on a moving train at the coal wharf above town, but fell between the cars and was run over. His right leg and left arm were terribly mangled. He was borne to the depot, where he died about midnight. This is the fourth liberties. He was a President of J. pleasant to the patient with no pain about midnight. This is the fourth man within as many weeks who has received injuries on the railroad near this place, three of whom died. Geo. Miller, who was burt at Mill Creek,

What a Change! Thad. Stevens has been passing through this place on his way to the Bedford Springs every summer for a disloyal white man. He said he was Bedford Springs every summer for a number of years past, but until last opposed to rebel suffrage, but not to Thursday night he was permitted to new Constitution, that the old one was come and go as most other men. #### Reported for the Globe. The Republican Meeting.

According to previous announcement meeting was held in this place on Saturday afternoon last. The prominent speakers advertised were all present, and about five hundred people had assembled to hear thom. The meeting was organized shortly after one o'clock by Hon. John Scott taking the Chair. The appointment of Vice Presidents and Secretaries followed:

Mr. Scott then addressed the audience. He said it was with pleasure that he responded to the call of the Boys in Blue to preside. He touched but slightly on the general topics of the day, but asked whether the man who fought four years to destroy this Union, was as good a citizen as the one who fought four years to preserve it. He drew a comparison between the two Gubernatorial candidates, referring to Gen. Geary's military record principally, and dwelling upon the incidents in his career at Missionary Ridge, where his troops carried the flag of thirty-six stars so triumphantly. He said that Clymer was a gentleman against whom he had nothing personally, but that the effects of his political record were harder to remove appealed to the Boys in Blue to sustain Gen. Geary at the ballot-box. Gov. Curtin was then introduced and spoke as follows: He referred to the subject of slavery and what evils had been produced by it, and he thanked God it had been ceived. The boy is about 14 years of abolished. After referring to his own election over Woodward, he referred to the party which had conducted the country safely through the four years of strife, stating that it was the Union He was last heard of at Huntingdon about the 20th day of July.

St. Union Republican Congress had proposed terms the adoption of which would secure peace, but a failure to do so would bring war, the knife and the assassin. He was sorry President Johnson was opposed to the Constitutional Amendments, and he believed that wicked counsels had led the Presas the Republican candidate-Hun- ident astray. He said the Philadeltingdon county voting for Capt. Brice phia Convention had been prepared by a band of manipulators, and was com posed of a very mute and motley crew. He said that before he would be found in such company in order to make a living he would go to breaking stones on the railroad. He then referred at length to the question of the negro, and said that the effect of the war was to bring four millions of blacks into a state of freedom. We must now proteet the poor negro, and we must not forget to do our duty, notwithstanding the cry of "nigger worshippers." It was a duty to Republicanism, and a duty to our God, to protect the negro.

He said during the war he would have armed anything in earth and bell to save the State during the raid; and he ty, as the Republican candidates for did arm the negroes, they returned the district. Mr. Brown is claimed as their arms and have not to this day for Cameron for the U. S. Senator. Research asked pay. He said that a negro has as much right to vote as a rebel. He hoped the Constitutional Amendments would be carried, for if not he predicted a terrible state of affairs. He said thnt was the issue in the campaign.— He said he had quite enough of the of fice of Governor, and he believed the office had quite enough of him. He said he would retire to the people, and told his hearers that he was not propared for the office of U. S. Senator, and he was not running after that office, as was alleged.

Hon. Wayne McVeigh then spoke: He said he would speak his mind in Wilkes Booth's selection, and was trying to force his policy on the people in order to secure their votes at the next Presidential election. He said the issue now was on the Constitutional Amendments proposed by a Union Republican Congress. The first of those amendments he said was to let all men have perfect equality before the law. A Andrew Johnson before the bar of his-

must yet be avenged. Gen. Geary followed: He said that Clymer, his opponent, was a gentleman against whom he had nothing to say personally, but he be lieved that his political record was enough to condemn and defeat him.— He said he had been asked while here whether he would turn traitor like Andrew Johnson, because he was a Democrat. He said he would not pledge himself as to what he would do as pledges made no difference. He re-A communication and circular from ferred to his course in California, six-

Col Fr. Jordan followed. He spok of the late Philadelphia Convention in very bitter terms. Ho hoped the next Congress would be just like the last one, and if possible a little more so.

The meeting then adjourned until seven o'clock, P. M., when the Court House was filled with ladies and gentlemen.

Lieut. J. H. Keatley of Blair county, addressed the meeting. He said it was important that we should have a Congress against "My Policy." He believed that the last Congress did not go far enough; and that what is wanted now is a little more fire. What we want now is equality before the law. We want every one to be a man. In speaking of the negro question, he said he thought there was yet hope.

While Mr. Keatly was speaking a disturbance arose at the door, but it was soon quelled, and the speaker continued.

He was followed by Capt. Montgomery, of Mississippi, who said he had been a Democrat, baving voted for Pierce, Buchanan, and Breckinridge. He was a very comical speaker, and kept the house in a continual uproar. Mr. Samuel Calvin, of Blair county, followed, and the meeting then closed. Thad. Stevens Screnaded.

Thad. Stevens was seronaded at the Morrison House, this place, on Thursday evening last, and to a crowd of about fifty he spoke in substance as follows:

He said that a band of traitors, composed of rebels whose hands were reck-ng in the blood of Union soldiers, together with those who had opposed the war in the North, had assembled and dispersed in Philadelphia. He said that that Convention gave him some uncasiness, but that he did not feel measy for an hour when in his travels he heard it denounced by so many men. He spoke of the apostates west of the mountain, and the still less numper east, but he said he could not find as great a renegade and apostate as the man at the White House. He was particularly severe on all Johnson men and advised his hearers to treat with contempt all who forsook their party for the sake of office, and to have no association with them. He appeared to consider the demonstration as a recognition of his course in Congress, and concluded his remarks by thank ng those present.

During the speech a few attempts were made to applaud the speaker, but they failed. At the close there was some promiscuous cheering. The crowd then pressed the doors to get a sight of the leading radical of the day, and some friends entered to greet him in the room. We are sorry we cannot present the remarks in full. It was the most calumnious address for its length, we ever heard. Johnson men were called traitors, apostates, scoundrels, and none were loyal but those who supported Congress.
