

TERMS OF THE GLOBE.

Table with 2 columns: Term (Per annum in advance, Six months, Three months) and Price ($2.00, $1.00, $0.50). Includes terms for advertising and circulation.

THE GLOBE JOB PRINTING OFFICE.

THE "GLOBE JOB OFFICE" is the most complete of any in the country, and possesses the most ample facilities for the supply of all the best style, every variety of Job Printing, such as HAND BILLS, CIRCULARS, BILL HEADS, POSTERS, BALL TICKETS, PROGRAMMES, BLANKS, LABELS, &c., &c. CALL AND EXAMINE SPECIMENS OF WORK. LEWIS' BOOK, STATIONERY & MUSIC STORE.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Editor and Proprietor. -PERSEVERE- TERMS, $2.00 a year in advance. VOL. XXII. HUNTINGDON, PA., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 1867. NO. 36.

PROFESSIONAL & BUSINESS CARDS

D. R. A. B. BRUMBAUGH, Having permanently located at Huntingdon, offers his professional services to the community. DR. JOHN McCULLOCH, offers his professional services to the citizens of Huntingdon and vicinity. R. ALLISON MILLER, DENTIST. J. E. GREENE, DENTIST. EXCHANGE HOTEL. MORRISON HOUSE, Huntingdon, Pa. HAY purchased and entirely renovated the large stone and brick building opposite the Pennsylvania Railroad Depot.

NEW CHEAP CASH STORE IN HUNTINGDON.

NEW GOODS FOR FALL AND WINTER. WM. MARCH & BRO. Respectfully inform the public generally that they have just received a large and splendid stock of goods at their store in Huntingdon, consisting in part of: SILKS, DRY GOODS, DRESS GOODS, BOOTS & SHOES, HATS, CAPS, TINWARE, LADIES' FANCY TRIMMINGS, HOOP SKIRTS, BONNETS, BUTTONS, WOOD AND WILLOW WARE, QUEENSWARE, HARDWARE, PROVISIONS, GROCERIES, CRACKERS, NOTIONS, TOBACCO, SEAGARS, GLASS, NAILS, FISH, SALT, &c., &c. Also, CARPETS and OIL-CLOTH. And in fact everything that is usually kept in a first class store.

The Globe. HUNTINGDON, PA.

WATER IS BEST. Water is best for the trees of the forest; Water is best for the flowers of the field; Water is best for the humanist that fall; Streams from the fountain are flowing in beauty; Forest of pleasure forever they yield. Water is best for the rich and the mighty; Water is best for the humbled that fall; Children and fathers may drink from the fountain; Flowing forever to gladden the soil. Soon may the drunkard remember his folly; Striving and trusting in God, like a man; Soon may the peasant be heard in the valley; Offered to God for the abstinence plan. Emblem of purity, truth, and of freedom; Still let me love thee, and still be thou mine! Oiling to strength, and cooling to calm; Telling of God, ever glowing, divine. -Temperance Chimes.

General Geary and Temperance.

A State Temperance Convention was held in Harrisburg last week. Delegates were in attendance from every part of the State. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Gov. John W. Geary accepted the position of temporary President of the Convention. On taking the chair he spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention—Fellow citizens: I rise not for the purpose of addressing you at length on this occasion. I will not insult the distinguished and brilliant minds around me, by attempting to address you unprepared. But as you have been proper to select me as your temporary presiding officer, I rise more to thank you than to make a speech. When I look upon this assemblage and contemplate its object, many thoughts rush upon my mind. I see here ministers of the Gospel, members of the legal profession, intellectual men—the elite of the popular mind, from every section of the State, and I am happy to greet you. Shall we inquire why you have come here? It has certainly been for no selfish object. Some noble impulse has doubtless guided you, and I feel that our cause is a truly noble one. You come not with arms and martial weapons. You come in time of peace to set a grand example for the young men of the country. You come in the cause of temperance. (Applause.) You do not propose to gain your object by forcible means, but to snatch our brethren from the dangers that surround them; and that by reason and example. Why, my friends, we have just passed through five years of war. Several hundred thousand of our friends have laid down their lives, and hundreds of thousands are maimed for life. They met the foe in the field and conquered him, and we now perceive a vast army engaged in another warfare. More than half a million of our fellow countrymen are engaged in it, and the enemies they are fighting are themselves. Now, we have come here to-day to rescue them from so baleful a fight—to aid and assist them against the fell destroyer, King Alcohol. (Applause.) When we see so many of our fellow citizens daily going down to a grave as ignoble as it is horrible, it is a noble impulse which prompts us to rescue them from themselves. We are daily doing our duty to our maimed and crippled braves and devoting plans for their maintenance and comfort, but those gallant men would gladly see their friends and protectors distributing a portion of their sympathies and attentions among the millions who are injuring their health, prospects and reputation by the excessive use of liquor. What is it that fills our asylums? Our almshouses? Intemperance! Three-fourths of the inmates of our institutions for feeble-minded children owe their sad condition to intemperate parents, thus verifying the Divine sentence, saying that the sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children. For my part, I do not deserve much credit for being a temperance man. I have been temperate from my youth. (Applause.) In all my life I think I have never used, medicine or otherwise, a quart in all of spirituous liquors. (Cheers.) When a boy I saw the effects of drunkenness. At seven years I resolved that I never would be a drunkard, and I never have been one. I never acquired an appetite for drinking; but I have a heart full of sympathy and compassion for those who do drink. I will tell you more: Having passed through very exciting scenes and periods in my life, I have been able to go through an extended experience without even an apparent necessity for an alcoholic stimulus. (Applause.) Called to govern a large and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no necessity there for the use of ardent spirits. I passed through the war of Mexico and of the Rebellion without it. I was nominated (and you will pardon me for this personal digression) to fill the gubernatorial chair of the Keystone State; but I did not, thank God! by my nomination by giving me that which destroys body and soul. (Cheers.) Though the canvass was exciting it was conducted on temperance principles, strict and pure, and at my inauguration, I am happy to say no whisky was used. (Cheers.) A new administration has just commenced, and I promise you that I can and will perform my duties without the use of intoxicating liquors. (Cheers.) Let us go forward, encouraging and protecting the weak, to break down the domination of strong drink in our State. We are encouraged by voices from the capital of the nation. To-day I have the glorious news to announce that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is about to become a Son of Temperance. (Cheers upon cheer.) With a full knowledge of the activity and usefulness of that Order, and observing so many of its representatives in my presence, I deem it a pleasure to tender to you a hearty welcome to this convention at the capital of our State, and to say to you in the language of your beautiful ritual, "Hail Sons of Temperance, and be that name thy Glory and thy Shield." Let us go forward in the good cause. You have the Congress of the United States, and the State administration with you. Let all the people join in the glad chorus of a redeemed Commonwealth and nation. Let our course be upward and onward, until all the people shall rejoice, "the morning stars singing together, and the sons of God shouting for joy." (Immense applause.)

How LAWS ARE MADE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The Harrisburg correspondent of the Chamberburg Repository gives the following account of how bills are made laws by the Pennsylvania Legislature: It is a curiosity to see the machine run on private bill day. How the little serpents wriggle through anacondas, and how the monstrous anacondas quietly crawl out on final passage, is amusing to those not initiated. All private bills are placed on what is called a calendar, which is a list of the numbers and titles of the bills of a private character, which have been reported from committees during the previous week, and embracing many usually which are not printed, but placed upon the calendar by motion. Thus with many of the bills not even printed, and most of those that are printed not often read by the members of the machine starts on private bill day. An eight hours threshing machine is not a circumstance to the mill for grinding through private legislation. The Speaker rises to call the roll, and another rises to call the roll, and through the ceremony in the most abbreviated form, and when he gets hoarse he calls some strong-lunged member to take his place, and the machine starts afresh with renewed celerity. They are once read, or presumed to be read, when going through what is called first reading, but after that they go like a troop of boys coasting down hill with a capital track for the purpose. The clerk rattles out the title, and before he gets it from his lips, the Speaker has the bill up to a suspension of the rules, and by the time he gets up another bill, the talismanic words, "the bill passes," have come mechanically from the presiding officer, and another bill has been added to the vast volumes in Pennsylvania. The rules are suspended and the bill declared passed without a motion from any one, and after there is not so much as a single vote given in response to the question "shall the bill pass?"—but it is declared passed and perhaps not more than one in the hundred members know what has passed. Such work in a respectable town meeting or country debating society would be deemed disgraceful; but such is the system, the machinery, by which Pennsylvania laws are manufactured. The Senate formally treated the private calendar as beneath its dignity, and unworthy of a deliberate tribunal of the State, but it is at last demoralized and now passes bills by machinery, without even the formality of a vote, in final passage of the House. If on the final passage of every bill a majority of the votes in each branch were required to be given so as to be a matter of record, we should have one-half less laws, and much better laws.

WHAT WAS WANTED!

OPEN AND READY FOR BUSINESS. H. GREENBERG, MERCHANT TAILOR. Respectfully informs the public that he has opened a new store in Fisher & Son's New Building, in the Diamond in Huntingdon, where all kinds of: Hats, Umbrellas, Traveling Bags, etc. can be found to suit all who may favor him with their patronage. His prices here are of the best quality and will be MADE UP TO ORDER in the most fashionable and best made and style. All goods cut to order, and this establishment from 10 to 20 per cent cheaper than at any other place. All desiring a good suit of clothing at a fair price should call and examine goods. All goods here are of the best quality and will be guaranteed to be what may be represented. Huntingdon, Nov. 21, 1865. H. GREENBERG, Merchant Tailor.

REARING CHILDREN.

1. On entering the fourth year, children should not be allowed to eat often, but once in four hours, but always in cheerfulness. 2. Do not send a child to school, nor allow him to learn at home anything more than the alphabet, nor commit anything to memory, except the Lord's prayer and a half dozen short, simple, religious hymns, until the sixth year is completed, unless the child have to "do something for a living" very early. 3. Allow nothing whatever to be eaten within two hours of bed time. 4. The last meal of the day should be of cold bread and butter, with some mild, warm milk—say milk and water, half and half, sweetened, called "cambric tea"—or a bowl of bread and milk, or mush and milk, made of Indian (corn) or oatmeal. "Preserves," "cakes," or other sweetmeats, are most pernicious. 5. Children should sleep in separate beds, on a straw or hair mattress, without caps, being careful to have the feet well warmed by the fire, stockings off, or if it be in the summer, rubbed dry with the hand, washing them every other night. Have extra covering on the feet in cold weather. 6. Encourage them in every way; compel them, if necessary, to be out of doors, or in a large, clear, open, dry, cheerful room, for the great part of daylight between breakfast and sundown. If the weather is damp or raw, especially at the close of the day, keep them in doors. In late autumn, winter and early spring, a child under ten ought not to be left out later than an hour before sundown, except in constant, active motion; nine tenths of the cases of croup would be thus prevented. 7. If a child eats at regular hours, do not limit it except at supper-time. 8. By all means let the child take the fullest amount of sleep. Never wake up a child, except in a day-map; but by particular to have it go to bed at so early an hour regularly, that it shall wake up of itself in full time to dress for breakfast. Children, left to themselves, are never ready to go to bed, or to get up, in time. 9. Avoid the barbarism of keeping your child still, as long as it is doing no injury to property, persons, or good morals. Motion of some sort is a physical necessity to young children; it is an unappeasable instinct. To repress it by arbitrary commands, is a rebellion against nature and a cruelty to the child. 10. Never threaten a child. It is cruel, unjust and dangerous. What you have to do, do it, and make an end; but act deliberately, firmly, kindly, maintaining your own self-respect. 11. Never reprove a child in the presence of a third party; its spirit-esteem is wounded thereby, and a self-defense, of opposition, or even defiance is engendered. 12. Never make a positive promise to a child unless you are perfectly certain you will be able to fulfill it. 13. Always give your child an affectionate greeting on coming home, even after a few hours' absence. It might have been brought to your door a corpse! 14. The most certain and most speedy method of raising a child is to be forever laying down rules, regulations and restrictions. At the earliest possible moment it will break away from all restraint. 15. Let nothing ever prevent you from sending your child to bed in a calm and loving and grateful frame of mind. It or you may die before the morning. 16. Be yourself all that you would have your child be.—Hall's Journal of Health.

WHAT WAS WANTED!

CHEAP GROCERY STORE. Z. YENTER, HILLSIDE, HUNTINGDON, PA. THE undersigned offers for the inspection and purchase of customers a large and assorted stock of groceries, provisions, &c. The goods are of the best quality and at low prices. All goods are of the best quality and will be guaranteed to be what may be represented. Huntingdon, Oct. 31, 1865. Z. YENTER, Merchant Tailor.

GRANTING ADVERTISEMENTS.

The following cards are published gratuitously. Merchants and business men generally who advertise in our columns of THE GLOBE for the month or longer, will find their advertisements free during the continuance of their advertisement. Otherwise, special business cards in the usual form, are published at 20 cents per line.

D. R. W. BREWSTER, Huntingdon. B. M. GREENE, Dealer in Music, Musical Instruments, Sewing Machines, Huntingdon. DONNELL & KLINE, PHOTOGRAPHERS, Huntingdon, Pa. W. M. LEWIS, Dealer in Dry Goods, Stationery and Musical Instruments, Huntingdon, Pa. THOMAS G. STRICKLER & SON, Manufacturers of the celebrated Patent Broom Head or Whipper, Huntingdon. H. GREENBERG, Merchant Tailor, Huntingdon, Pa. JAMES SIMPSON, Iron Founder, Huntingdon, Pa. McCAHAN & SON, proprietors of Junonia Steam Pearl Mill, Huntingdon. CHAS. H. ANDERSON, Dealer in all kinds of Lumber, &c., Huntingdon, Pa. J. M. GREENE & F. O. BEAVER, Plaster and Ornamental Marble Manufacturers. W. M. WILLIAMS, Plaster and Ornamental Marble Manufacturers. JAMES HIGGINS, Manufacturer of Furniture and Cabinet Ware, Huntingdon, Pa. J. M. WISE, Manufacturer of Furniture, &c., Huntingdon. Undertaking attended to. WHARTON & MAGUIRE, Wholesale and retail dealers in foreign and domestic hardware, cutlery, &c., Railroad street, Huntingdon. JAMES A. BROWN, Dealer in Hardware, Cutlery, Paints, Oils, &c., Huntingdon, Pa. W. M. AFRICA, Dealer in Boots and Shoes, in the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa. JOHN H. WESTBROOK, Dealer in Boots, Shoes, Hosiery, Confectionery, Huntingdon. GEO. SHAEFFER, dealer in Boots, Shoes, Cutlery, &c., Huntingdon. Z. YENTER, Dealer in Groceries and Provision of all kinds, Huntingdon, Pa. ROHM & MILLER, Dealers in Dry Goods, Queensware, Groceries, Huntingdon. BOYER & GARNER, Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, &c., Markleburg station. W. M. LEWIS & CO, Family Groceries, Provision and Feed Store, Hunt., Pa. W. M. MARCH & BRO. Dealers in Dry Goods, Queensware, Hardware, Boots, Shoes, &c. CUNNINGHAM & CARMON, Merchants, Huntingdon, Pa. H. ROMAN, Dealer in Ready Made Clothing, Hats and Caps. D. P. GWIN, Dealer in Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, &c., Huntingdon. S. E. HENRY & CO., Wholesale and Retail Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, and Provisions of all kinds, Huntingdon.

STEAM PEARL MILL.

HUNTINGDON, PA. IS NOW IN COMPLETE RUNNING ORDER FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF FLOUR. The patronage of the town and country is respectfully solicited. Huntingdon, May 2, 1866. McANAN & SON.

ROBLEY & MARSH, MERCHANT TAILORS.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned have formed a partnership in the above business and will continue to keep on hand the best and most fashionable goods in the market, competing all kinds of: Fancy Silk, Mixed Goods & Cassimers. Also, the best quality of: BLACK CLOTHS AND DOESKINS. Both having had large experience in the business will try to please all. Their room is on Smith street, two doors below Main. H. ROBLEY & G. F. MARSH. Jails 3m.

IF YOU WANT A GOOD PHOTOGRAPH LIKENESS, CALL AT DONNELL & KLINE'S PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY.

On Hill Street, two doors west of Lewis' Book Store. CALL AND SEE SPECIMENS. Huntingdon, Oct. 4, '65. ALL KINDS OF CRACKERS constantly on hand at CUNNINGHAM & CARMON'S. SOUR PICKLES ready for the table by the doz., 1/2 doz, or 1/4 doz, for sale at Lewis & Co's Family Grocery.

NEW LEATHER STORE.

THE undersigned would respectfully announce that, in connection with their TANNERY, they have just opened a splendid assortment of: FINE LEATHER. Consisting in part of: FRENCH CALFSKIN, KIP, MORROCCO, LININGS, BINDINGS, SOLE, UPPER, HARNESS, SKIRTING, &c. Together with a general assortment of FINDINGS. The trade is invited to call and examine our stock. Store on Hill Street, two doors west of the Presbyterian Church. The highest price paid for hides and bark. Huntingdon, Dec. 12-5m. C. H. MILLER & SON.

W. M. AFRICA

Notifies the public that he has just opened at his old stand in the Diamond, Huntingdon, A Fine Assortment of all kinds of: BOOTS AND SHOES, For Ladies, Gentlemen and Children. All of which he will sell at fair prices. Quick service and small profits. Call and examine my stock. Manufacturing and Repairing done to order as usual. Huntingdon, April 10, 1866.

W. M. AFRICA

Notifies the public that he has just opened at his old stand in the Diamond, Huntingdon, A Fine Assortment of all kinds of: BOOTS AND SHOES, For Ladies, Gentlemen and Children. All of which he will sell at fair prices. Quick service and small profits. Call and examine my stock. Manufacturing and Repairing done to order as usual. Huntingdon, April 10, 1866.

General Geary and Temperance.

General Geary and Temperance. A State Temperance Convention was held in Harrisburg last week. Delegates were in attendance from every part of the State. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Gov. John W. Geary accepted the position of temporary President of the Convention. On taking the chair he spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention—Fellow citizens: I rise not for the purpose of addressing you at length on this occasion. I will not insult the distinguished and brilliant minds around me, by attempting to address you unprepared. But as you have been proper to select me as your temporary presiding officer, I rise more to thank you than to make a speech. When I look upon this assemblage and contemplate its object, many thoughts rush upon my mind. I see here ministers of the Gospel, members of the legal profession, intellectual men—the elite of the popular mind, from every section of the State, and I am happy to greet you. Shall we inquire why you have come here? It has certainly been for no selfish object. Some noble impulse has doubtless guided you, and I feel that our cause is a truly noble one. You come not with arms and martial weapons. You come in time of peace to set a grand example for the young men of the country. You come in the cause of temperance. (Applause.) You do not propose to gain your object by forcible means, but to snatch our brethren from the dangers that surround them; and that by reason and example. Why, my friends, we have just passed through five years of war. Several hundred thousand of our friends have laid down their lives, and hundreds of thousands are maimed for life. They met the foe in the field and conquered him, and we now perceive a vast army engaged in another warfare. More than half a million of our fellow countrymen are engaged in it, and the enemies they are fighting are themselves. Now, we have come here to-day to rescue them from so baleful a fight—to aid and assist them against the fell destroyer, King Alcohol. (Applause.) When we see so many of our fellow citizens daily going down to a grave as ignoble as it is horrible, it is a noble impulse which prompts us to rescue them from themselves. We are daily doing our duty to our maimed and crippled braves and devoting plans for their maintenance and comfort, but those gallant men would gladly see their friends and protectors distributing a portion of their sympathies and attentions among the millions who are injuring their health, prospects and reputation by the excessive use of liquor. What is it that fills our asylums? Our almshouses? Intemperance! Three-fourths of the inmates of our institutions for feeble-minded children owe their sad condition to intemperate parents, thus verifying the Divine sentence, saying that the sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children. For my part, I do not deserve much credit for being a temperance man. I have been temperate from my youth. (Applause.) In all my life I think I have never used, medicine or otherwise, a quart in all of spirituous liquors. (Cheers.) When a boy I saw the effects of drunkenness. At seven years I resolved that I never would be a drunkard, and I never have been one. I never acquired an appetite for drinking; but I have a heart full of sympathy and compassion for those who do drink. I will tell you more: Having passed through very exciting scenes and periods in my life, I have been able to go through an extended experience without even an apparent necessity for an alcoholic stimulus. (Applause.) Called to govern a large and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no necessity there for the use of ardent spirits. I passed through the war of Mexico and of the Rebellion without it. I was nominated (and you will pardon me for this personal digression) to fill the gubernatorial chair of the Keystone State; but I did not, thank God! by my nomination by giving me that which destroys body and soul. (Cheers.) Though the canvass was exciting it was conducted on temperance principles, strict and pure, and at my inauguration, I am happy to say no whisky was used. (Cheers.) A new administration has just commenced, and I promise you that I can and will perform my duties without the use of intoxicating liquors. (Cheers.) Let us go forward, encouraging and protecting the weak, to break down the domination of strong drink in our State. We are encouraged by voices from the capital of the nation. To-day I have the glorious news to announce that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is about to become a Son of Temperance. (Cheers upon cheer.) With a full knowledge of the activity and usefulness of that Order, and observing so many of its representatives in my presence, I deem it a pleasure to tender to you a hearty welcome to this convention at the capital of our State, and to say to you in the language of your beautiful ritual, "Hail Sons of Temperance, and be that name thy Glory and thy Shield." Let us go forward in the good cause. You have the Congress of the United States, and the State administration with you. Let all the people join in the glad chorus of a redeemed Commonwealth and nation. Let our course be upward and onward, until all the people shall rejoice, "the morning stars singing together, and the sons of God shouting for joy." (Immense applause.)

General Geary and Temperance.

General Geary and Temperance. A State Temperance Convention was held in Harrisburg last week. Delegates were in attendance from every part of the State. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Gov. John W. Geary accepted the position of temporary President of the Convention. On taking the chair he spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention—Fellow citizens: I rise not for the purpose of addressing you at length on this occasion. I will not insult the distinguished and brilliant minds around me, by attempting to address you unprepared. But as you have been proper to select me as your temporary presiding officer, I rise more to thank you than to make a speech. When I look upon this assemblage and contemplate its object, many thoughts rush upon my mind. I see here ministers of the Gospel, members of the legal profession, intellectual men—the elite of the popular mind, from every section of the State, and I am happy to greet you. Shall we inquire why you have come here? It has certainly been for no selfish object. Some noble impulse has doubtless guided you, and I feel that our cause is a truly noble one. You come not with arms and martial weapons. You come in time of peace to set a grand example for the young men of the country. You come in the cause of temperance. (Applause.) You do not propose to gain your object by forcible means, but to snatch our brethren from the dangers that surround them; and that by reason and example. Why, my friends, we have just passed through five years of war. Several hundred thousand of our friends have laid down their lives, and hundreds of thousands are maimed for life. They met the foe in the field and conquered him, and we now perceive a vast army engaged in another warfare. More than half a million of our fellow countrymen are engaged in it, and the enemies they are fighting are themselves. Now, we have come here to-day to rescue them from so baleful a fight—to aid and assist them against the fell destroyer, King Alcohol. (Applause.) When we see so many of our fellow citizens daily going down to a grave as ignoble as it is horrible, it is a noble impulse which prompts us to rescue them from themselves. We are daily doing our duty to our maimed and crippled braves and devoting plans for their maintenance and comfort, but those gallant men would gladly see their friends and protectors distributing a portion of their sympathies and attentions among the millions who are injuring their health, prospects and reputation by the excessive use of liquor. What is it that fills our asylums? Our almshouses? Intemperance! Three-fourths of the inmates of our institutions for feeble-minded children owe their sad condition to intemperate parents, thus verifying the Divine sentence, saying that the sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children. For my part, I do not deserve much credit for being a temperance man. I have been temperate from my youth. (Applause.) In all my life I think I have never used, medicine or otherwise, a quart in all of spirituous liquors. (Cheers.) When a boy I saw the effects of drunkenness. At seven years I resolved that I never would be a drunkard, and I never have been one. I never acquired an appetite for drinking; but I have a heart full of sympathy and compassion for those who do drink. I will tell you more: Having passed through very exciting scenes and periods in my life, I have been able to go through an extended experience without even an apparent necessity for an alcoholic stimulus. (Applause.) Called to govern a large and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no necessity there for the use of ardent spirits. I passed through the war of Mexico and of the Rebellion without it. I was nominated (and you will pardon me for this personal digression) to fill the gubernatorial chair of the Keystone State; but I did not, thank God! by my nomination by giving me that which destroys body and soul. (Cheers.) Though the canvass was exciting it was conducted on temperance principles, strict and pure, and at my inauguration, I am happy to say no whisky was used. (Cheers.) A new administration has just commenced, and I promise you that I can and will perform my duties without the use of intoxicating liquors. (Cheers.) Let us go forward, encouraging and protecting the weak, to break down the domination of strong drink in our State. We are encouraged by voices from the capital of the nation. To-day I have the glorious news to announce that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is about to become a Son of Temperance. (Cheers upon cheer.) With a full knowledge of the activity and usefulness of that Order, and observing so many of its representatives in my presence, I deem it a pleasure to tender to you a hearty welcome to this convention at the capital of our State, and to say to you in the language of your beautiful ritual, "Hail Sons of Temperance, and be that name thy Glory and thy Shield." Let us go forward in the good cause. You have the Congress of the United States, and the State administration with you. Let all the people join in the glad chorus of a redeemed Commonwealth and nation. Let our course be upward and onward, until all the people shall rejoice, "the morning stars singing together, and the sons of God shouting for joy." (Immense applause.)

General Geary and Temperance.

General Geary and Temperance. A State Temperance Convention was held in Harrisburg last week. Delegates were in attendance from every part of the State. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Gov. John W. Geary accepted the position of temporary President of the Convention. On taking the chair he spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention—Fellow citizens: I rise not for the purpose of addressing you at length on this occasion. I will not insult the distinguished and brilliant minds around me, by attempting to address you unprepared. But as you have been proper to select me as your temporary presiding officer, I rise more to thank you than to make a speech. When I look upon this assemblage and contemplate its object, many thoughts rush upon my mind. I see here ministers of the Gospel, members of the legal profession, intellectual men—the elite of the popular mind, from every section of the State, and I am happy to greet you. Shall we inquire why you have come here? It has certainly been for no selfish object. Some noble impulse has doubtless guided you, and I feel that our cause is a truly noble one. You come not with arms and martial weapons. You come in time of peace to set a grand example for the young men of the country. You come in the cause of temperance. (Applause.) You do not propose to gain your object by forcible means, but to snatch our brethren from the dangers that surround them; and that by reason and example. Why, my friends, we have just passed through five years of war. Several hundred thousand of our friends have laid down their lives, and hundreds of thousands are maimed for life. They met the foe in the field and conquered him, and we now perceive a vast army engaged in another warfare. More than half a million of our fellow countrymen are engaged in it, and the enemies they are fighting are themselves. Now, we have come here to-day to rescue them from so baleful a fight—to aid and assist them against the fell destroyer, King Alcohol. (Applause.) When we see so many of our fellow citizens daily going down to a grave as ignoble as it is horrible, it is a noble impulse which prompts us to rescue them from themselves. We are daily doing our duty to our maimed and crippled braves and devoting plans for their maintenance and comfort, but those gallant men would gladly see their friends and protectors distributing a portion of their sympathies and attentions among the millions who are injuring their health, prospects and reputation by the excessive use of liquor. What is it that fills our asylums? Our almshouses? Intemperance! Three-fourths of the inmates of our institutions for feeble-minded children owe their sad condition to intemperate parents, thus verifying the Divine sentence, saying that the sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children. For my part, I do not deserve much credit for being a temperance man. I have been temperate from my youth. (Applause.) In all my life I think I have never used, medicine or otherwise, a quart in all of spirituous liquors. (Cheers.) When a boy I saw the effects of drunkenness. At seven years I resolved that I never would be a drunkard, and I never have been one. I never acquired an appetite for drinking; but I have a heart full of sympathy and compassion for those who do drink. I will tell you more: Having passed through very exciting scenes and periods in my life, I have been able to go through an extended experience without even an apparent necessity for an alcoholic stimulus. (Applause.) Called to govern a large and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no necessity there for the use of ardent spirits. I passed through the war of Mexico and of the Rebellion without it. I was nominated (and you will pardon me for this personal digression) to fill the gubernatorial chair of the Keystone State; but I did not, thank God! by my nomination by giving me that which destroys body and soul. (Cheers.) Though the canvass was exciting it was conducted on temperance principles, strict and pure, and at my inauguration, I am happy to say no whisky was used. (Cheers.) A new administration has just commenced, and I promise you that I can and will perform my duties without the use of intoxicating liquors. (Cheers.) Let us go forward, encouraging and protecting the weak, to break down the domination of strong drink in our State. We are encouraged by voices from the capital of the nation. To-day I have the glorious news to announce that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is about to become a Son of Temperance. (Cheers upon cheer.) With a full knowledge of the activity and usefulness of that Order, and observing so many of its representatives in my presence, I deem it a pleasure to tender to you a hearty welcome to this convention at the capital of our State, and to say to you in the language of your beautiful ritual, "Hail Sons of Temperance, and be that name thy Glory and thy Shield." Let us go forward in the good cause. You have the Congress of the United States, and the State administration with you. Let all the people join in the glad chorus of a redeemed Commonwealth and nation. Let our course be upward and onward, until all the people shall rejoice, "the morning stars singing together, and the sons of God shouting for joy." (Immense applause.)

General Geary and Temperance.

General Geary and Temperance. A State Temperance Convention was held in Harrisburg last week. Delegates were in attendance from every part of the State. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Gov. John W. Geary accepted the position of temporary President of the Convention. On taking the chair he spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention—Fellow citizens: I rise not for the purpose of addressing you at length on this occasion. I will not insult the distinguished and brilliant minds around me, by attempting to address you unprepared. But as you have been proper to select me as your temporary presiding officer, I rise more to thank you than to make a speech. When I look upon this assemblage and contemplate its object, many thoughts rush upon my mind. I see here ministers of the Gospel, members of the legal profession, intellectual men—the elite of the popular mind, from every section of the State, and I am happy to greet you. Shall we inquire why you have come here? It has certainly been for no selfish object. Some noble impulse has doubtless guided you, and I feel that our cause is a truly noble one. You come not with arms and martial weapons. You come in time of peace to set a grand example for the young men of the country. You come in the cause of temperance. (Applause.) You do not propose to gain your object by forcible means, but to snatch our brethren from the dangers that surround them; and that by reason and example. Why, my friends, we have just passed through five years of war. Several hundred thousand of our friends have laid down their lives, and hundreds of thousands are maimed for life. They met the foe in the field and conquered him, and we now perceive a vast army engaged in another warfare. More than half a million of our fellow countrymen are engaged in it, and the enemies they are fighting are themselves. Now, we have come here to-day to rescue them from so baleful a fight—to aid and assist them against the fell destroyer, King Alcohol. (Applause.) When we see so many of our fellow citizens daily going down to a grave as ignoble as it is horrible, it is a noble impulse which prompts us to rescue them from themselves. We are daily doing our duty to our maimed and crippled braves and devoting plans for their maintenance and comfort, but those gallant men would gladly see their friends and protectors distributing a portion of their sympathies and attentions among the millions who are injuring their health, prospects and reputation by the excessive use of liquor. What is it that fills our asylums? Our almshouses? Intemperance! Three-fourths of the inmates of our institutions for feeble-minded children owe their sad condition to intemperate parents, thus verifying the Divine sentence, saying that the sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children. For my part, I do not deserve much credit for being a temperance man. I have been temperate from my youth. (Applause.) In all my life I think I have never used, medicine or otherwise, a quart in all of spirituous liquors. (Cheers.) When a boy I saw the effects of drunkenness. At seven years I resolved that I never would be a drunkard, and I never have been one. I never acquired an appetite for drinking; but I have a heart full of sympathy and compassion for those who do drink. I will tell you more: Having passed through very exciting scenes and periods in my life, I have been able to go through an extended experience without even an apparent necessity for an alcoholic stimulus. (Applause.) Called to govern a large and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no necessity there for the use of ardent spirits. I passed through the war of Mexico and of the Rebellion without it. I was nominated (and you will pardon me for this personal digression) to fill the gubernatorial chair of the Keystone State; but I did not, thank God! by my nomination by giving me that which destroys body and soul. (Cheers.) Though the canvass was exciting it was conducted on temperance principles, strict and pure, and at my inauguration, I am happy to say no whisky was used. (Cheers.) A new administration has just commenced, and I promise you that I can and will perform my duties without the use of intoxicating liquors. (Cheers.) Let us go forward, encouraging and protecting the weak, to break down the domination of strong drink in our State. We are encouraged by voices from the capital of the nation. To-day I have the glorious news to announce that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is about to become a Son of Temperance. (Cheers upon cheer.) With a full knowledge of the activity and usefulness of that Order, and observing so many of its representatives in my presence, I deem it a pleasure to tender to you a hearty welcome to this convention at the capital of our State, and to say to you in the language of your beautiful ritual, "Hail Sons of Temperance, and be that name thy Glory and thy Shield." Let us go forward in the good cause. You have the Congress of the United States, and the State administration with you. Let all the people join in the glad chorus of a redeemed Commonwealth and nation. Let our course be upward and onward, until all the people shall rejoice, "the morning stars singing together, and the sons of God shouting for joy." (Immense applause.)

General Geary and Temperance.

General Geary and Temperance. A State Temperance Convention was held in Harrisburg last week. Delegates were in attendance from every part of the State. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Gov. John W. Geary accepted the position of temporary President of the Convention. On taking the chair he spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention—Fellow citizens: I rise not for the purpose of addressing you at length on this occasion. I will not insult the distinguished and brilliant minds around me, by attempting to address you unprepared. But as you have been proper to select me as your temporary presiding officer, I rise more to thank you than to make a speech. When I look upon this assemblage and contemplate its object, many thoughts rush upon my mind. I see here ministers of the Gospel, members of the legal profession, intellectual men—the elite of the popular mind, from every section of the State, and I am happy to greet you. Shall we inquire why you have come here? It has certainly been for no selfish object. Some noble impulse has doubtless guided you, and I feel that our cause is a truly noble one. You come not with arms and martial weapons. You come in time of peace to set a grand example for the young men of the country. You come in the cause of temperance. (Applause.) You do not propose to gain your object by forcible means, but to snatch our brethren from the dangers that surround them; and that by reason and example. Why, my friends, we have just passed through five years of war. Several hundred thousand of our friends have laid down their lives, and hundreds of thousands are maimed for life. They met the foe in the field and conquered him, and we now perceive a vast army engaged in another warfare. More than half a million of our fellow countrymen are engaged in it, and the enemies they are fighting are themselves. Now, we have come here to-day to rescue them from so baleful a fight—to aid and assist them against the fell destroyer, King Alcohol. (Applause.) When we see so many of our fellow citizens daily going down to a grave as ignoble as it is horrible, it is a noble impulse which prompts us to rescue them from themselves. We are daily doing our duty to our maimed and crippled braves and devoting plans for their maintenance and comfort, but those gallant men would gladly see their friends and protectors distributing a portion of their sympathies and attentions among the millions who are injuring their health, prospects and reputation by the excessive use of liquor. What is it that fills our asylums? Our almshouses? Intemperance! Three-fourths of the inmates of our institutions for feeble-minded children owe their sad condition to intemperate parents, thus verifying the Divine sentence, saying that the sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children. For my part, I do not deserve much credit for being a temperance man. I have been temperate from my youth. (Applause.) In all my life I think I have never used, medicine or otherwise, a quart in all of spirituous liquors. (Cheers.) When a boy I saw the effects of drunkenness. At seven years I resolved that I never would be a drunkard, and I never have been one. I never acquired an appetite for drinking; but I have a heart full of sympathy and compassion for those who do drink. I will tell you more: Having passed through very exciting scenes and periods in my life, I have been able to go through an extended experience without even an apparent necessity for an alcoholic stimulus. (Applause.) Called to govern a large and wild district upon the Pacific coast, I found no necessity there for the use of ardent spirits. I passed through the war of Mexico and of the Rebellion without it. I was nominated (and you will pardon me for this personal digression) to fill the gubernatorial chair of the Keystone State; but I did not, thank God! by my nomination by giving me that which destroys body and soul. (Cheers.) Though the canvass was exciting it was conducted on temperance principles, strict and pure, and at my inauguration, I am happy to say no whisky was used. (Cheers.) A new administration has just commenced, and I promise you that I can and will perform my duties without the use of intoxicating liquors. (Cheers.) Let us go forward, encouraging and protecting the weak, to break down the domination of strong drink in our State. We are encouraged by voices from the capital of the nation. To-day I have the glorious news to announce that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant is about to become a Son of Temperance. (Cheers upon cheer.) With a full knowledge of the activity and usefulness of that Order, and observing so many of its representatives in my presence, I deem it a pleasure to tender to you a hearty welcome to this convention at the capital of our State, and to say to you in the language of your beautiful ritual, "Hail Sons of Temperance, and be that name thy Glory and thy Shield." Let us go forward in the good cause. You have the Congress of the United States, and the State administration with you. Let all the people join in the glad chorus of a redeemed Commonwealth and nation. Let our course be upward and onward, until all the people shall rejoice, "the morning stars singing together, and the sons of God shouting for joy." (Immense applause.)

General Geary and Temperance.

General Geary and Temperance. A State Temperance Convention was held in Harrisburg last week. Delegates were in attendance from every part of the State. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Gov. John W. Geary accepted the position of temporary President of the Convention. On taking the chair he spoke as follows: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention—F