HUNTINGDON, PA.

Timely Hints for September. From the American Agriculturist we make up our hints for the present month as follows:

September is a happy month; it brings the golden fruits of the orchard, and the golden corn ripens under the II autumnal suns. There is too, a harvest of greenbacks-no gold now-adays-which September usually yields to those who have early crops to sell During this month the prices of grain in Europe become settled, ordinarily. They may be such as to excite speculation, or the prices here may quietly settle down to what we may consider about remunerative values.

There is a greater variety of labors to employ farmers in September than perhaps in any other month. We have manuring, plowing, sowing and harvesting, thrashing, feeding, marketing, all upon us at once, yet the labors are seldom pressing and of an anxious kind, except perhaps little anxiety in regard to early frosts.

Animals, in general, need little care, except good pasturage or feeding, Fattening bullocks that are to be finished off for the autumn trade need a gradual increase of meal as the weathor grows cooler. Sheep, also, that are to be sold, should be separated from others and fed a little grain. Examine any that it may be necessary to have in moist pastures to check the very first appearance of foot rot. Shelter all during storms, and give access to water and salt. Swine, to be fattened this fall, will do much better if fed a little old corn ground now while at grass, or being kept on this swill ,as is usual.

Orchard fruit collect frequently, not only for feeding swine and cows, but CARRIAGE & WAGON MAKERS in order to destroy the insects which will find a general assortment of material for their sting the fruit at the time of laying their eggs, and to prevent the development of the larve which causes it to become gnarly and drop, prematurely ripe, or even green. Much good cider for vinegar may be made from wind-

Root Crops .-- All kind of root crops having become well established and full of leaf, keep on growing until freezing weather, and often swell with prodigious rapidly, as the season becomes moister and cooler. Keep the weeds down and the ground open and loose, and pull for cow feed wherever they stand too thick.

Beans.-Pull before the ripened pods dry, and lay them up to ripen in small heaps, or better, between two stakes driven perpendicularly about five or six inches apart. The plants being laid alternately heads and roots-at the same time crosswise.

Grass and Clover Seed now upon land which is in order to be laid down, to very good advantage, provided we have rains If the grass and clover can get a start this fall, so as to make an approximation to a sward, they will stand the winter well and if the land is rich, be fit to mow next year. If not rich, the clover may be fed off in June, but not close, and cut for seed in the fall. Timothy sowed now and getting a good start of all other accidental grass on a good land, often yields a fine crop for two years in succession. If you need the grain or straw, sow it, but if you want grass, sow that.

Wheat .- Too much stress cannot be given to having wheat land well prepared-drained, rich, and mellow, also free from weeds, if possible. Sowdur- Reaper, Mower, and Dropper, combine ing this month—the earlier the better. Rundell's First Premium HORSE PITCHFORK, Drill rather than sow broadcast, and Rakes, put the seed deep rather than shallow on all light soils:

Rye.—It is generally best to sow rye in the early part of October, as it often gets too much growth before ground freezes if sown earlier.

Vermin in Granaries.-Arrange to have security from mice and rats. Rats will generally clear out mice and may themselves be gotten rid of only by The exclusive right to sell which is vested thus. Send for the phosphorous paste which is safe poison if the poultry are shut up and kept so for several weeks. The rats vomit up the poison, and the chickons eat it and die. The poison kills a Tea and Counter Scales, few, but stampedes the vermin. Mice are not so affected; a few die, the rest remain. Use traps and cats; give the cat a sand box and punish her severely if she does not use it. A good mouser, and well trained, is almost invaluable. Potatoes .- At the East the season has been such as to rot potatoes in some places very much. After the vines die or are thoroughly blighted, the tubers will make but little growth. They are fit for swine, but not for market. Yet many are perfectly good. It is sometimes best to dig and feed them to pigs or cattle before they rot. If left in the ground the sound ones will remain good, while most of the diseased ones will become so bad that they may be detected at glance. This, it is claimed, is a great saving of labor in picking over potatoes that rot in the bin; besides, the sound ones are not contaminated, and so more sound ones will finally be saved. J. W. Griswold, of Wethersfield, Connecticut, informs the New York Horticulturist that he has preserved his trees from the canker worm by piling coal rabes around their trunks

One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your tash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Dovil.
