Of that which it resembles.

The dew falls nightly, not alone

Because the meadows need it.

To human souls that heed it.

The stars are lighted in the skies

Not merely for their shining,

But, like the looks of loving eyes,

Have meanings worth divining.

The waves that moan along the shore,

The winds that sigh in blowing,

Which men are wise in knowing.

Have secrets which, to all who seek,

Thus Nature dwells within our reach,

But, though we stand so near her,

We still interpret half her speech

With ears too dull to hear her.

Shall hear the noisy world go round To music the divinest.

Shall catch a glimpse of heavenly light
