THE RIVER PATH.

BY J. G. WHITTIER.

No bird song floated down the hill, The tangled bank below was still,

No rustic from the birchen stem,

But on the river's fartherest side

A tender glow, exceeding fair,

We saw the hilltop glorified-

A dream of day without its glare.

With us the damp, the chill, the gloom,

While dark through willowy vistas seen, The river rolled in shade between.

From out the darkness where we trod,

Whose light seemed not of moon or sun;

We spake not, but our thought was one.

We paused, as if from that bright shore-Beckoned our dear ones gone before;

And stayed our beating hearts to hear The voices lost to mortal ear !

The hills swung open to the light;

Sudden our pathway turned from night,

We gazed upon the hills of God,

lering her society agreeable.
