Republican County Convention.

The annual Convention of the National Republicans of Huntingdon county will be held in the borough of Huntingdon, on Tuesday, the 11th day of August, 1868, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

Organize at Once.

We earnestly hope the Grant and Colfax army will organize immediately in every election district in the county, and make arrangements to have every voter furnished with the right kind of political information.

THE BOYS IN BLUE.—In another column will be found the address of the Boys in Blue. We want our readers to read this address.

The State debt has been reduced more than five millions of dollars during the administration of Gen. Hartgrants. His capacity for the position of Auditor General has been well attested, and his chances for re-election are certain.

Constitutional Amendment.

Hon. Mr. Seward, Secretary of State, announces that the new or Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States has been ratified by twenty-nine States—twenty-seven only being necessary—and that it is now to all intents and purposes a part of our National Constitution.

1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States are citizens, and the States are forbidden making any laws abridging their privileges and immunities.

2. If the States disfranchise their citizens, their representation in Congress shall be proportionately reduced.

3. Disfranchises leading rebels, but permits a Congress vote of two-thirds to restore them.

4. Declares the inviolability of the public debt and that the rebel debt shall not be assumed.

5. We call attention of our readers to these provisions again. In regard to the first section we have said and we say again that we interpret it to mean that all persons, whether white or colored, are considered citizens, providing they have been born or naturalized in the United States, and it is therefore right that they should have none of their rights or privileges abridged.

6. We have heretofore considered it unwise to make voters of the negroes, and we do yet so consider; but since the negroes of the South have a vote, the Southern men have and are still making Democratic voters of them, and this will satisfy them and their friends in the North, and no objection will of course be raised by the Democratic party on that score.

7. They will get the majority of the "nigger" vote, against which they said so much, and no thanks will they give the Radicals for giving them the chance for thus strengthening their party.

8. The second section, which from its reading strikes more against the States of the North than have negroes and do not give them a vote, will have their representation reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such States.

WADE HAMPTON.

Reception of the Rebel Cavalry Leader in Charleston.

The Charleston papers can find no words too strong to express the degree of enthusiasm with which Gen. Wade Hampton was welcomed by the people of that city on Friday night, upon his return from the Danbury Convention.

More than four years—years which have been a national calamity, which have brought to us sorrow, humiliation, and ruin—have passed since I last stood in your noble and battle-scarred old city.

Then proudly erect, flushed with victory and devotion in her patriotism, she stood before her heroic hands the key of our State, demitting it to the hands of the traitors, the assassins of her heroes.

While a portion of her sons here guarded so bravely the portals of the State, others were following the glorious Southern Cross wherever it was waving in triumph, or were sleeping their last sleep on the fields which their valor had contributed to win.

All were doing their duty as Carolinians, and the great historic names of the revolution were glided with a new lustre on the descendants of Mount Vernon.

Then, after a free and full consultation, the Convention of the Citizens representing all the Northern States, I am thoroughly convinced that the great heart of the Democracy is fully roused, that it beats in profound sympathy with the suffering South.

It is to be hoped that the Congress now in session will be able to do justice to the rights of the South, and that the principles which have guided them will be maintained.

I yield to none in devotion to that "Lost Cause" for which we fought. Never shall I admit that the cause itself failed, and that the principles which gave it life were therefore wrong.

When the news of the nomination of Seymour and Blair reached Worcester, Ohio, the untortured heart about first a salute in honor of the event and then the cannon toward the North, wherewith a Grant man standing quietly observed that they were firing the same way they did during the war.

Political Chip Basket.

Democratic tactics: Doublet and Seymour. Grant's plan: Say less and do more.

The pirate Sommers says he is willing to give his allegiance to the old flag providing Seymour and Blair are elected. We have no doubt all the rebels are willing to do the same.

The leaders of the Democratic party to-day are the rebel generals Forrest, Hampton, Vance, Preston, with Vallandigham, Brick Pennington and others like them.

Governor Andrew, three days before his death, said: "The tendency of the hour is toward Grant; and that is best. Grant is so square and honest a man that I believe he is bound to be right in whatever he does."

The other day an old soldier who had lost an arm said: "I am waiting to see if the people of this country are going to elect Horatio Seymour, and if they do I will swear that I lost my arm in a threshing machine, not in defense of my country."

The position of the Republicans is that the national debt shall be paid in the utmost good faith, according to the spirit and letter of the agreement with those from whom the money was obtained.

The German address goes right to the point regarding the contest between the two political parties. It says: "Strip the kernel of the coverings in which sophistry has disguised it, and you will find the naked question to be simply Shall peace and prosperity come to the Republic from the election of November next, or reaction and a new civil war?"

Wade Hampton, on his way south, made a speech at a Democratic meeting in Baltimore, where he made his special acknowledgments to the rebel soldiers from Maryland.
