

The Rich and the Poor.

In his struggle with the world, the great aim of every man is to reach a condition of easy circumstances. That is, he wants to secure the comfort of himself and his family. He cannot exactly define the point which he is aiming at, but he knows that it is a condition of freedom from the anxiety that constantly oppresses him with regard to the future. This is a noble ambition, but how small a proportion of all the struggle for it, are rewarded with success. What proportion, in our own city, reach that stage where they are no longer haunted by the specter of want? A very small proportion. The figures show that of the million inhabitants of New York three-fourths live in tenement houses. It is safe to say that at least a large proportion as that live and die without attaining the object for which they struggle. The other fourth of the population fare in easy circumstances. Distinction is unknown to them, they feel no anxiety about the future, they live at ease and enjoy life. This is all very well, but of this well-to-do class there is a certain proportion who hold many times more wealth than is necessary for even the most luxurious style of living. We can name a hundred men here in New York who aggregated wealth is not less than one thousand dollars. Now what proportion of that vast sum, or even the interest of it, can those hundred men use for themselves, and their families. Only a mere fraction. The bulk of their wealth is hoarded, growing every day by money wrung from the poor in the shape of rents, &c. Their wealth, which might make every family in New York comfortable and happy, is kept in this narrow circle, doing no good to the world, and only enabling a comparatively few persons to live like kings. What would that thousand millions do if it were equally distributed among the people of this city? It would give a thousand dollars to every man, woman and child. It would give six thousand dollars to every family. It would place in easy circumstances every family in New York that is now below that standard. But not a dollar of it will be distributed. The hundred rich families will go on hoarding their wealth, and in the winter time they shall still hear of suffering, destitution and death as the result of poverty—this, too, almost in sight of the palaces of the millionaires. Is it just that one man should be the possessor of millions, while another, as good and worthy as he, would starve for want of enough to buy bread?—New York Star.

1868. Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Fedged or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, filling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can be used with perfect safety. It is not only beneficial but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.
