BILL AND JOE. BY O. W. HOLMES.

Come dear old comrades, you and I
Will steal an hour from days gone by—
The shining days when life was new,
All was bright with morning dew,
The lustrous days of long ago,
When you were Bill and I was Joe.

Your name may flaunt a titled trail,
Proud as a cockle's rainbow trail;
And mine a brief appendix wear,
As 'Tum O'Shanter's' luckless mare;
To-day, old friend, remember still
That am Joe and you are Bill.

You won the great world's varied prize,
And grand you look in people's eyes
With O N and I, L D
In his brave letters, fair to see—
Your fat, old fellow of they go!
How are you, Bill? How are you, Joe?

You've worn the Judge's ermine robe;
You've taught your name to half the globe;
You're using unalloyed steel and steel;
You've made the dead past live again;
The world may call you what it will,
But you are Joe and you are Bill.

The chaffing young folks stare and say,
"See those old buffers, bent and gray—
They talk like fellows in their teens!
How Joe, in spite of time's disguise,
And shake their heads; they little know
The throbbing hearts of Bill and Joe."

How Bill forgets his heart of pride,
While do his smiling at his side;
How Joe, in spite of time's disguise,
Finds the old schoolmate in his eyes—
Those calm, stern eyes that melt and fill
As Joe looks fondly up at Bill.

Ah, precious chaff, what is fame?
A faint tongue of leaping flame;
A gaily whirling's fickle gust,
That lifts a pinch of mortal dust;
A few swift years and who can show
Which dust was Bill and which was Joe.

A weary idyl takes his stand,
Looks out his broken and aching hand,
While gazing thousands come and go,
How vain it seems, this empty show!
Till all at once his pulses throb,
His poor old Joe's "God bless you Bill."

And shall we breathe in happier spheres,
That please our mortal ears,
In some sweet lull of harp and song,
For earth-born spirits none too long,
Where this was Bill, and that was Joe.

No matter; while our home is here,
No mourning weeds be on our dress;
When fates at length our lingering day,
Who cares what pompous tombstones say?
We'll live a pinch of mortal dust,
His good Joe. His good Bill. —Atlantic Monthly.

Pat and the Deacon.

Some months ago, as Deacon Ingalls, of Swampscott, R. I., was travelling through the western part of the State of New York, he fell in with an Irishman, who had lately arrived in this country, and was in search of a brother who had preceded him and settled in some of the diggings in that part of the country.

Pat was a strong man, a true Roman Catholic, and had never seen the interior of a Protestant church. Ingalls was a pious man. He told Pat he was going to church, and invited his new-made friend to keep him company; his destination being a small meeting-house near by. There was a great revival there at the time, and one of the deacons, who was a very old man in stature invited brother Ingalls to a seat in his pew. He accepted the invitation, followed by Pat, who looked in vain for the altar, etc. After he was seated he turned around to brother Ingalls, and in a whisper that could be heard all around, he inquired:

"Sure, an' isn't this a heretic church?"

"Hush," said Ingalls; "If you speak a word they will put you out."

"Devil a word will I speak at all, at all," replied Pat.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the pastor.

Pat was eyeing him very closely, when an old man, who was standing in the pew directly in front of Pat shouted,

"Amen!"

"Hush ye devil!" rejoiced Pat, in his loud whisper, which was heard by the minister; "be dacent, and don't make a blockhead of yourself!"

The pastor grew more fervent in his devotions. Presently the deacon uttered an audible groan.

"Amen!"

"Hush ye blackguard. Have ye no decency at all?" said Pat, in a loud voice, which caused him to lose his equilibrium.

The minister stopped, and extending his hands in a suppliant manner, said:

"Brethren, we cannot be disturbed in this way. Will some one put that man out?"

"Yes, your reverence," shouted Pat, "will do it!"

And suiting the action to the word, he collared the deacon, and the pastor, who was in the act of reading the prayer, he dragged him up the aisle, and with a tremendous kick, sent him into the vestibule of the church.

Woman.

What is woman? One of the most beautiful works of nature designated by an all-wise God, for the preservation and perpetuity of our race. When esteemed as educated, as she merits; she becomes the refiner of man. If she is treated with contempt, if we do not respect them; if we do not preserve their rights; what would be the state of our civilization? What would be the state of our social order? Look at those countries where women are degraded and do you not find the men degraded more? Woman is the masterpiece of God. Educate her, put her in the business arena, designed for man and it is a self-evident fact that nine cases out of ten she will make a better man, than man will make a better woman. Do you not find it so? But again, take a close observation of her patience, her fortitude, her integrity, her constancy, her piety, and her devotion. Are they not all attributes stronger than the same of man? Again, can she not endure more than a man? The sick chamber of many a patient and our hospitals will readily decide in the affirmative. Is she not more honest than man? Go to our jails, go to our penitentiaries and see if my interrogation is not fully and affirmatively demonstrated. Is she not more religiously inclined than man? To this question our churches will answer, positively yes. Is she not more devoted than man? Look at our prayers, our meetings and decide. Are not her affection, sympathy and veracity superior to that of man? They contain more.
