Success Makes Enemies. The following, which we clip from an exchange, is so applicable in our case at present that we heartily on dorse every word, knowing that what the writer says, is true in every particular: They who are eminently successful in business, or who achieve greatness, or even notoriety in any pursuit, must expect to make enemies So prone to selfishness, to petty jeal ousy and sordid envy, is poor human nature, that whoever becomes distinguished is sure to be a mark for the malicious spite of those who, not deserving success themselves, are goaded by the merited triumph of the more worthy. Moreover, the opposition which originates in such despicable motives, is sure to be of the most uncrupulous character hesitating at no niquity, descending to the shabbiest littleness.

Opposition, if it be honest and man ly, is not of itself undesirable. The competitor in life's struggles who is of | FLOURtrue metal, deprecates not opposition of an honorable character, but he reioices in it." It is only injustice or meanness which he deprecates and despises; and it is this which the suc essful must meet, proportioned in bitterness, oft times, to the measure of success which excites it. A highly intelligent lady, a resident of Syracuse, N.
