Messrs. Editors: I am one of many that desire to see our town improve, tingdon, held at the office of Speer & that desire to see our town improve, McMurtrie, on the 30th of April, 1869, and I propose to write a few short communications to revive an agita tion upon the subject.

We have watched with pleasure the Secretary.

We have watched with pleasure the few advancements that have been by S. E. Henry to be, the considera-tion of the advantage of Huntingdon, tion of a Furniture Factory and its tion of a Furniture Factory and its successful operation, and the number of buildings that have gone up in the of memorializing the Canal Company old and new town; but we have had our fears that all was not yet done to build up our town on a substantial basis. A large number of dwellings have gone up, but by whom have they been built? The majority of them were built and are now occupied by our poor men, who depend on the anilroad mpany and their daily labor on the the streets as teamsters or artisans for their daily bread. They at present have a reasonable share of work, but this is because improvements in building have been in regular progress; but we dread for the future. Large houses will not go up every year, and then where will they go for employment? One thing is certain, they will not stay here and starvo. Then, what must be done? The poor, as a general thing, have erected the buildings for their own comfort, in anticipation of brighter times. Those times can be made by our own citizens if they will only do it. We bave wealthy men in our community to whom the laboring man must look for assistance. They have, (we are sorry to say it,) done nothing to help the poor man, or benefit themselves. They could, by investing in home manufacto say it,) done nothing to help the poor man, or benefit themselves.
