It is well known that a merchant who deals entirely in one line of goods buying largely from manufacturors is enabled to give his customers advantages in prices and assortment (in that line of goods) that are not to be found in stores prolessing to do all kinds of business. I shall aim therefore to make it the interest of all in want of the above goods, to buy at the regular Carpet and Oil Cloth Store.

Thas been tried and has never failed to give estisfaction to the purchaser. Farmers will find it to their advantage to call on the subscriber during the April court and examine the above machine. It will be on exhibition at the Court House in Huntingdon during the two weeks of court.

It is a combined Machine; can be changed from a Mower to a Keaper in a few moments; can be worked with a slow team, it being higher geared than other machines and the draft being reduced to the lowest attainable point. Resping and Mowing with the Ætaa is no harder on the team than plowing oats and stubble. It is believed by all who have tred it that it is the machine best adapted to the wasts of the farmers in the county. It has no side draft and no weight on the horses' necks.

Wo will also have one of the Wood Respers and Mowers on the ground at the same time. Farmers intending to purchase machines this season will do well to examine the above machines before purchasing elsewhere. At you want is to examine the Ætaa to enable you to make up your mind what machine to buy. I am the authorized agent of Messrs. Wharton & Maguire for the above machines, also for the Willoughby Gum spring Drill.

I will also have one of the ismous Harpoon Hay-forks on hand, which overy farmer should have one. They are the best in the market. No faimer that tries one one be best in the market. No faimer that tries one one be best in the market. So faimer that tries one one better right of this county. Wharton & Maguiro's, or at the Cutri House during court week.

For the Globe. DOCTOR BLANCHARD,

THE BACHELOR'S LOVE. BY TRAVE.

When I said I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married.— Shakspeare.

The thermometer is nine degrees below zero and yet it is falling. 'Tis very cold! How it snows! How it blows! Ugh, the chills run over me. Thank God I have this comfortable shelter-wonder if the poor are all en-joying comfort, or if there is any mor-tal obliged to endure this weather shelterless, without the comfort of a cheerful grate? Ah, the fire is pleas-ant, I will change my coat for my wrapper; my boots for my slippers, and take ease in my old arm chair. Thus, solliloquized Dr. Blanchard, after he had arrived safely home from Colton five miles distant, where he had been called professionally.

After seating himself in the old arm chair, which was one of olden style and occupied a place in the homestead since the days of his great grand father-consequently it was considered a relic of more than ordinary value, he examined the package of mail he had received on his way homo. Letter after letter was opened. One inquired about this disease and another that. Some wished one prescription, some another, and a few advocated the true principle of honesty by enclosing amount due.
"What can this be?" he loudly remarked, picking up at the same time a paper. "Literary Cassaon," "that's something new," he said, for that was the heading. "I am glad to have something of this kind to read such blustony propriets"." Column after columns blustery evenings." Column after col-umn was perused until suddenly his eyes fell on an article entitled, "Wee to the Bachelor," by C*. Now the Dector was one of that peculiar title and of course was interested. It was a very imprudent article, thought he. Why are we called monstrous? Why vagabonds, inhuman, forlorn, &c? I term it indecent—the essence of pertinence and I will retaliate. "Where is my pen and pencil?" he muttered as he arose from the chair. Soon they were at hand and the old chair again occupied. A few moments reflection and the Doctor proceeded thus: BACHELOR. He is called, old bachelor, Monstrosity of life, Vagabond, forlorn, inhuman, Because he chooseth not a wife.

vagabond, forlors specimen of human-ity, &c. All because he prefers happiness to that of sorrow; peace to that of rebellion and prosperity to that of adversity. Old bachelor! simply because be prefers single blessedness to that of double thunder. Was not the same inalienable rights? Has he not the privilege; the pleasure—yea, the power of doing as he pleases? Cannot man enwrap himself in the content of the same and man enwrap himself in the content of the same inalienable rights? The pleasure—yea, the power of doing as he pleases? Cannot man enwrap himself in the content of the same inalienable rights? The pleasure—yea, the power of doing as he pleases? Cannot man enwrap himself in the content of the same in the property of the same in the property of the same in the property of the property of the pleasure—yea, the power of doing as he pleases? Cannot man enwrap himself in the content of the same in the property of the pleasure—yea, the power of doing as he pleases? Cannot man enwrap himself in the content of the same in the property of the pleasure—yea, the power of doing as he pleases? Cannot man enwrap himself in the content of the same in the property of the property of the same in the blessedness of single statedness without every body pointing their fingers at him and endeavoring to stamp the blush of shame where all is right, bright and a happy future? Is he an old forlorn specimen of humanity, simply because he prefers quietness to an infant bedlam? Is he an old cold heartfant bedlam? Is he an old cold hearted wretch because he would ten thousand times rather live in a hut, or dilapidated hovel by himself, than in a large mansion or beautiful palace with a woman who is continually scolding, eternally brawling and everlastingly Hon. T. Gale a highly respectable citi-dog, or affectionate cat to that of Miss. Wonder, Miss Thunder or old Mrs. Pollywant? As one in the name of all that is true, harmless and good ask, why do people strive to heap on our shoulders that which is unjust, that we do." My heart is made to throb—

After the Dector had returned to his room, lit his favorite "havana" and occupied his former position in the old chair, he resumed study of the subject before him in this wise. Who can C* be? Perhaps 'tis Clare Roulette. If so I would be immediately suspected as the author of this communication, should it appear before the public eye. I will pursue a different course. It'twas Clare I will know it.

Clare Roulette was a young man of great ability. He was an original genius and a young man whose every act foreshadowed a prosperous future. He was the only son of a wealthy parent. Consequently the Major, four brothers and three sisters with the mother, were left to the guidance and guardianship of Divine Providence.

The Major, or rather John, left the parental roof very soon after the death of his father, he being the eldest of the eight children. It was one of those whole souled, benevolent neighbors that took John-reared him up in the way of wisdom and taught him her paths were the paths of peace.

At the age of eighteen he began an apprenticeship with a shoemaker, that being his favorite trade. Time rolled on. At the business he became an expert. So rapidly did he learn, that on one occasion before he donned "appren-tice" for "jour," his boss, he being a dutchman, remarked, "Shon will soon be more as able to instruct as to be in-your old boss, and Shon, always mind the great principle of honesty ish the goot policy; mind dat Shon and you'll be a rich man."
