A DARKENED NURSERY.

There's a room enough in the nursery now, 'Twas crowded a little before; For when the crib in the corner sat, The mother came close to the door; But the light was sweet and the air was soft, And the room was filled with cheer; For we all were charmed, to the chosen spot By the voice of the baby dear.

Letter from New York.

New York, July 25th, 1869. DEAR GLOBE:—I've been thinking of you and of my long absence from your columns, doubtless to the intense regret of those who search said columns for amusement or instruction; but in the words of the fanny man in Motley, "here I am again."

CHARLES LAMB TELLS HIS SAD EXPERIENCE.

Charles Lamb tells his sad experience, as warning to young men, in the following language: "The waters cannot be troubled by us. But out of the black depths, could I hear, I would cry out to all those who have set a foot in the perilous flood. Could the youths in distress be made to see that life is as delicious as the opening scenes of life or the entering upon some newly discovered paradise, look into my desolation, and be made to understand the meaning of the fumes, which he shall feel himself going down a precipice, with open eyes and a passive will to his destruction, and have no human power to stop it, and yet for it all the way down he is himself, to see all goodness emptied out of him, and yet not able to forget a time when it was otherwise; to bear the piteous spectacle of the dead, to see who he used to be, to see his loved one, favored with last night's drinking, and feverishly looking for to night's repenting of the folly; could he but see the body of death out of which I cry hourly with fevered outcry to be delivered, it were enough to make him dash in the sparkling beverage to the earth, in all the pride of its manly temptation."

A TRYING EXPERIMENT.

A TRYING EXPERIMENT.—Two young men in Berlin lately made an agreement to wage a trial for five years, to see how long each could keep a whole week. They all held out for about five days and a half, by drinking largely of strong coffee, and keeping up a constant round of active exercise and exciting amusements. At the end of that time two of them yielded to drowsiness; a third soon fell asleep while riding, tumbled from his saddle and broke his arm; a fourth was attacked by severe sickness, and compelled to retire from the list; the fifth held out to the end, but toward the close he was overcome by the power of a strong wind, and died in a few days.

OUR AFFECTION FOR OUR CHILDREN.

OUR AFFECTION FOR OUR CHILDREN and our grand-children guard the heart with the buds and blossoms of a second spring; they are the holy band that binds the heart to the body, and there our mortality breaks forth into flowers even in the Winter of our days.

Centricities of the Flesh.

There are some people who are so peculiarly constituted that matters the most harmless to the mass of mankind act upon them in the most distressing manner. For instance, some persons cannot eat a lobster without becoming ill, having a very curious effect upon their complexion. We know a lady who once indulged at supper time in a salad of this kind, and upon her return to the ball-room her face and neck immediately became covered with spots, obliging her to retire. Cocksles and shrimps have the like effect upon persons thus peculiarly constituted. A medical friend tells us that eating vegetables gives a lady of his acquaintance the netterlass, and that orange-peel has produced great nervous excitement. Figs again give rise in some people to what is termed "formation," or a sensation like the tickling movement of ants upon the feet, and a secondary fermentation of a common article of food upon the human stomach is related by a surgeon of one of our public hospitals. He says that a patient of his cannot touch rice without the most extreme discomfort. "On one occasion, when at a dinner party, he felt the symptoms of rice poisoning coming on, and was, as usual, obliged to retire from the table, although he had not partaken of any dish ostensibly containing rice. It appeared on investigation, that some white soup, which he had commenced his dinner, had been thickened with ground rice." In another case, similar symptoms have come on after a gentleman had partaken of a secondary fermentation of a common article of food upon the human stomach is related by a surgeon of one of our public hospitals. A Legend of 1776.

Night had set in deep, and in a small log hut, situated a few miles from Trunton, N. J., sat five men, four of whom were seated at an old oaken table in the center of the room, engaged in playing cards, while the fifth, who stood draughts from an earthen jug which stood on the table.

"Died Poor."

"It was a sad funeral to me," said the speaker; "the saddest I have attended for many years."

"Died Poor."

"Died poor" was the epitaph upon the life of a man who had been a soldier in the Continental army.
