HUNTING DON, PA.

Roads and Road Making. We accept poor roads as one of the inevitable evils of life, and even call some of them good, or excellent, in comparison with those vastly poorer. The people of one town brag of roads that cost them three or four times what much better ones ought to cost, and are highly satisfied with their own, and the high road tax, too, when they go outside their town limits and see how much worse off other people are. Were we governed by a Louis Napoleon, Emperor, we would have excellent roads, for he would know yery well that every dollar lost in the wear and tear of wagons and horse flesh upon poor highways, leaves just so much the less for him to draw, from the people by taxation. He would know that it costs vastly more to keep roads in passable, or poor condition, than in first-rate order, having reference only to the outlay of money and labor upon the roads. Why is it that we can not learn the same facts? Why can we not see our own interests, every man's interests, as well as the head of a monarchical form of government can see his? The system of working the roads abourd that could be contrived. The some of them good, or excellent, in comparison with those vastly poorer. The people of one town brag of roads that cost them three or four times so far as we are acquainted is the most absurd that could be contrived. The township or the county officers set apart certain sums of money to be used for keeping the roads in order in certain districts, to each its allotment .-This money is to be apportioned among the taxpayers, and either "worked out" at a low rate of wages per day, or collected in money with other taxes, at the option of the tax-payer. The road tax is usually worked out. The road-master, or whatever else his title may be in a resident of the district, and will irather follow the customary loose way of doing business, than see to it that his work is done in the best way, and with the least expenditure. He will accept for a day's work the labor of mere boys, or of old men, and will have some days not a single ablebodied man on his whole force, except himself and his bired man. The result is, where ten days' works are hworked out," three or four are done. Besides, when spring work is pressing, or haying and harvesting absorb all the labor of the community, no road master will do so unpopular a thing as to ward out his neighbors to work the roads. His own farm work presses hesides. So he delays until presses besides So he delays until autumn, after doing a few days' work in the early spring. The roads are plowed up; gravel and clay are scraped into the middle, "hog-backs" are made, to keep the water from run-ning and washing in the middle of the road:-then comes frost, and all the new work remains soft and unsettled all the winter and spring, except when frozen solid. All this is easily obviated, and we may just as well have good roads as poor ones. Almost every township has a good young engineer and surveyor. Appoint him roadmaster for the town, give him a fair to match. Let him have money sufficient to hire eight or ten good men in summer, and perhaps four in winter. He should understand that his bnsiness is to study road making, read upon the subject, learn where the best materials are break out of old ruts, and message of roads all over the to eople good roads all over the township.

their importance, and the amount of travel upon them. Similar systems to the one suggested are pursued in many townships, and the result is invariably a great improve-medt, the roads, and after a little while, even at first, in some cases, a decided decrease in the cost. We know of some towns in which the road know of some towns in which the road hands are not employed more than half their time, although they cut and prepare timber, make bridges; and do much extra work. Their services are, however, constantly in demand, and by digging cellar, moving buildings, laying cellar walls for bouses, etc., making sidewalks in the village, putting down cement walks and floors on private grounds, and in many other ways vate grounds, and in many other ways they earn enough to pay a large part of the expenses of men and teams .--The road-master inspects all the roads once a month, especially after storms, and needed repairs, if promptly made, are slight and efficient.—American Ag-

Those who have not, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglectof its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood; and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climatos; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity. They operate by their powerful influence on the intornal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—For Dyspepsisa or Endigestion, Listless rapidly cure:—

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppiression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and howels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of those Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
