HUNTING DON, PA Following the Fashions.

We find the following views of wo men apon the subject; "How far a wo man of sense should follow the fashions." in Mrs. Kate Hunnibee's Diary, in the Hearth and Home:

Mrs. Lester .- I think all sensible women will agree with me, in the first place, that fashion should never be allowed to encroach on the domain of health, and, in the next place, that a woman of taste, as well as sense, will wear what is becoming to her, whother it is fashionable or not. Take Aunt Betsey, for instance, and dress ber up in a gorgeops silk, put jewels on her hands and in her ears, roach her hair back so she can but just sbut her eyes, and cover head with puffs and curls, would she seem at all our dear Aunt Betsey, that everybody knows and loves?

Aunt Betsey .- Guess I shouldn't know myself in such a rig as that, any more'n Mother Hubbard did. I don't b'lieve it's healthy to comb one's hair off their forehead and lears so in the winter-time; it would give me nural logy right off, and caracte, and I don't know what else.

Mrs. Field.—I agree with Mrs. Les ter in her two propositions, and think, in addition, that one's dress should suit one's character. A woman who naturally despises dress looks ridiculous when tricked out with feathers and furbelows, with jewels and gay colors. Mrs. Lee, with her stately figure in her elegant velvet dress, is magnificent; but Mrs. Lester, we will agree, looks best in black silk, as does Aunt Betsey, in her brown merino, with white neckerchief. Let the humming-bird and the oriole, the blue jay and the canary, rejoice in the brilliant plumage God has clothed them withal, but we love our nightingale, our mocking bird, our robin-redbreast, attired as they are in plainer robes. Mrs. Lec .- I hope Mrs. Field does not think all women who dress fashionably no better than humming birds and canaries among the feathered

Mrs. Field.—No offence intended to Mrs. Lee; for we know Mr. Lee buys her clothes and loves to see her eleing to her. But we plain women like to remember that the eagle, king among birds, has no brilliant plumage, nor the turkey, most delicious of-domestic fowls, nor the snipe, nor the pheasant. Mrs. Lec.-It's as natural for some women to love dress and fix themselves up tastefully; and keep their in exquisite condition, as it is ity than elsowhere. for others to be indifferent to all these things. Charles Dickens, for instance, dresses magnificently, and we all know how smart he is, and Horace Greeley is just as smart in his way, but he doesn't look a bit the dandy, no matter how nicely hofixes himself up-and it's just so with women. Aunt Betsey .- Mebbeit is, but I can't help thinking, when I look at girls jars, jugs, and churns, selling cheap. heads nowadays, that there's more hair outside of 'em than knowledge inside, and more puckers and folds and GLASS & QUEENSWARE. crinkles to their frocks than there are growing old ; you've forgotten how we otc, at Red Front, cheap. used to primp when we were young, curl our bair, and lace ourselves, and make 'em rosy, and bite our lips just be red and pretty. .

SATURDAY NIGHT .- Some one thus beautifully says:

"Saturday night makes people buman, sets their hearts to beating softly as they used to do before the world turned them into war drums and jarred them into war drums and jarred them to pieces with tattoos. The ledger closes with a clash, the iron-doored vaults come to with a bang, up go the shutters with a will, click goes the key in the lock. It is Saturday night, and business breathes free again. Homeward, ho! The door that has been Shut out? Shut in, rather. Here are his treasures after all, and not in the vault, and not in the book. record in the old family Bible-and not in the bank. Maybe you are a bachelor, frosty and forty."—Then, poor fellow, Saturday night is nothing to you, just as you are nothing to anybody.—
Get a wife, blue-eyed or black-eyed; but, above all, true-eyed. Get a little home—pointatter how little—a sofa, just to hold two or two and a half, and then get the two or two and a half in it, of a Saturday night, and then read this paragraph by the light of your wife's oyes, and thank God and take It may surprise some of our readers to learn that while a bar of iron, one inch in diameter, will sustain twenty-eight tons, and a bar of steel of the same size, will sustain fifty tons, a bar of spider's silk of the same dimen-This is based upon a calculation that a fibre of silk one four thousandth of gu inch in diameter, will sustain fifty.
