VII.

TREES-WOOD-LAND-FORESTS. I am not at all sentimental-much less spooney-regarding the destruction of trees. · Descended from several generations of timber cutters (for my paternal ancestors came to America in 1640) and myself engaged for three years in land-clearing, I realize that trees exist for use rather than for orcutting grass in a meadow. Utility is the reason and end of all vegetable growth-of a hickory's no less than a cornstalk's. I have always considered "Woodman, spare that tree," just about the most mawkish bit of badly versified prose in our language, and never could guess how it should touch the sensibilities of any one. Understand then, that I urge the planting of trees manly because I believe it will pay, and extension, of forests, for precisely that

Yet I am not insensible to the beauty and grace lent by woods and groves, and clumps and rows of trees, to the clandscape they diversify. I feel the force of Emerson's averment, that "Beauty is its own excuse for being," and know that a homestead embowered in, and belted by, stately, graceful elms, maples, shruds and evergreens, is really worth more, and will sell for more, than if it were naked field and meadow. I consider it one positive advantage (to balance many disadvantages) our rocky, hilly, rugged Eastern country that it will never, in all probability, be so denuded of forests as the rich, facile prairies and swales of the Great Valley may be. Our winds are less piercing, our tornadoes less destructive, than those of the great west. I doubt whether there is another equal area of the earth's surface whereon so many kinds of valuable trees grow spontaneously and rapidly, defying eradication, as throughout New England and on either slope of the Alleghenies, and this profusion of timber and foliage may well atone for, or may be fairly weighed against, many defi Cunningham & Carmon's, cioncies and drawbacks. The Yankee who has been accustomed to see trees spring up spontaneously wherever they were not kept down by ax, or plow, or scythe, and to cross running water every half mile of a Summer day's journey, may well be made homesick, by two thousand miles of naked, dusty, wind swept plains, whereon he finds no water for fifty to a hundred miles, and knows it impossible to cut an axhelve, much more an axle-tree, in the course of a wearying journey. No Eastern farmer ever realized the blessedness of abundant and excellent

No one may yet be able fully to explain the inter-dependence of these two blesings; but the fact remains. All over "the Plains" there is evidence HEAVY BLEACHED MUSLINS that trees grew and flourished where none are now found, and that springs and streams were then frequent and Fine Brown Muslin, 40 inches wide, Bleached Musl abiding where none now exist. A from 34 to 21/2 yard, wide, Kentucky Jeans, Farmer prominent citizen of Nevada, who ex- | Cassimore, &c., &c. plored southward from Austin to the Colorado, assured me that his party travelled for days in the bed of what had once been a considerable river. but in which it was evident that no water had flowed for years. And I have heard that, since the Mormons have planted trees over considerable sections of Utah, rains in Summer are no longer rare, and Salt Lake evinces, by a constant though moderate increase of her volume of waters, that the equilibrium of rain-fall with evaporations in the Great Basin has been fully restored-or rather, that the rainfall is now taking the lead. 1 bave a firm faith that all the great deserts of the Temperate and Torrid house outside of Philadelphia. We have also on hand Zones will yet be reclaimed by irrigation and tree-planting. The bill which Congress did not pass, nor really consider, whereby it was proposed, some years since, to give a section of the woodless Public Lands remote from settlement to every one who in a separate township, would plant and cherish a quar-section of choice forest-trees, ought to have been passed-with modifications, perhaps, but preserving the central idea. Had ten thousand quarter-sectious, in so many different townships of the Plains, been thus planted to timber ten to twenty years ago, and protected from fire and devastation till now, the value of those Plains for settlements would have been nearly or quite doubled.

A capital mistake, it seems to me, is being made by some of the dairy far. mers of our own State. One who has a hundred acres of good soil, whereof twenty or thirty are wooded, cuts off his timber entirely, calculating that HAND BILLS, the additional grass that he may grow in its stead will pay for all the coal be needs for fuel, so that he will make a net gain of the time he has hitherto devoted each Winter to cutting and hauling wood. He does not consider how much his soil will lose in Summer moisture, how his springs and runnels will be dried up, nor how the sweep of harsh winds will be intensified, by baring his hill-tops and ravines to sun and breeze so utterly. In my deliberate judgment, a farm of one hundred acres will yield more feed, with far greater uniformity of product from year to year, if twenty acres of its ridge-crests, ravine sides, and rocky places, are thickly covered with timber, than if it be swept clean of trees and all devoted to grass. Hence, I insist that the farmer who sweeps off his wood and resolves to depend on coal for fuel, hoping to increase permanently the product of his dairy, makes a sad miscalculation. Spain, Italy, and portions of France.

are now suffering from the improviing the future to take care of itself. I presume the great empires of antiquity to cutting timber in a forest than as to a much greater extent. The remains of now extinct races who formerly peopled and tilled the central valleys of this continent, and especially the territory of Arizona, probably bear witness to a similar recklessness, which is paralleled by our fathers' and our own extermination of the magnificent forests of White Pine which, barely a century ago, covered so large a portion of the soil of our Northern States. Verthe preservation, improvement, and mont sold White Pine alundantly to England through Canada within my day: she is now supplying her own wants from Canada at a cost of not less than five times the price she sold for; and she will be paying still higher rates before the close of this century. I entreat our farmers not to preserve every tree, good, bad, or indifferent, that may happen to be growing on their lands-but, outside of the limited districts wherein the primitive forest must still be out away in order that the land may be obtained for cultivation, to plant and rear at least two better trees for every one they may be impelled to cut down. How this may, in the average, be most judicious. ly done, I will try to indicate in my next.
