Sad Catastrophe

Two Men Drowned .- About 8 o'clock on Saturday morning last, two of our citizens named David Westbrook and river and got a skiff for the purpose of hunting some outlines that they had set in the river. They get in the boat above the Broad Top Railroad bridge, and pushed out into stream a short distance, when the current. which was high from recent rains and running at the rate of about six miles an hour, swept their skiff against the restle-work of the bridge with great orce, throwing them both into the stream, and breaking the boat. The unfortunate men, seeing their danger, called pitcously for help, when a number of persons near the river came to the shore, ready to do anything that could be done to save them. But they were too far out in the stream for any thing to be done, and the planks which were thrown in were swept to the shore before the men could reach them. Westbrook went under first, when about a hundred feet from the shore and Hoffman swam to within fifty feet of the shore and was in high hopes of reaching it when, in making an effort to get off his hat, he also sank and was drowned. Both the men could swim, but it is supposed that the lothing they had on and the extreme coldness of the water, cramped them

The winter term of the Huntingdon Acad my, under the charge of Prof. James A Stephens, closed on Friday, 18th ult., an ex John Hoffman, went to the Juniata hibition being held in the evening. The exercises on Friday evening embraced declamations by the boys, original essays by the girls, and dialogues by both sexes; and the awarding of premiums at the close. A committee of citizens had examined the pen. manship of the scholars on Thursday and awarded four premiums; but as the awards were made with great difficulty, on account of the marked improvement in the writing of so many of the pupils, we deem it best not to mention any names in this connection Where all have done so well, all deserve and should receive credit.
