

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.
BY HORACE CREELEY.
XXVIII.
GRAIN GROWING—EAST AND WEST.

I disclaim all pretensions to ability to teach Western farmers how to grow Indian Corn abundantly and profitably, while I cheerfully admit that they have taught me somewhat thoroughly worth knowing. In my boyhood, I had Corn diligently for weeks at a time, drawing the earth from between the rows up about the stalks to a depth of three or four inches, thus forming hills which the West has since taught me to be of no use, but rather a detriment, embarrassing the efforts of the growing, hungry plants to throw out their roots extensively in every direction, and subjecting them to needless injury from drought. I am thoroughly convinced that Corn, properly planted, will, like Wheat and all other grains, root itself just deep enough in the ground, and that to keep down all weeds and leave the surface of the corn-field open, mellow, and perfectly flat, is the best as well as the cheapest way to cultivate Corn. And I do not believe that so much human food, with so little labor, is produced elsewhere on earth as in the spacious fields of Wheat and Corn in our grand Mississippi valley.

And yet I have seen in that valley many simple stretches covered with Corn, whereof the tillage seemed susceptible of improvement. Riding between these great corn-fields in October, after everything standing thereof had been killed by frost, it seemed to my observation that, while the corn-crop was fair, the weed-crop was far more luxuriant; so that, if everything had been cut clean from the ground, and the corn and the weeds placed in opposite rows, the latter would have weighed down the former. I cannot doubt that the cultivation, or lack of cultivation, which produces or permits such results, is not merely slovenly, but unthrifty.

The West is for the present, as for a generation she has been, the granary of the East. In my judgment, she will not long be continued to remain so. Fifty years ago, the Genesee valley supplied most of the wheat and flour imported into New-England; ten years later, Northern Ohio was our principal resource; ten years later still, Michigan, Indiana, Northern Illinois and Eastern Wisconsin, had been added to our grain-growing territory. Another decade, and our four-manufacturers had crossed the Mississippi, laying Iowa and Minnesota under liberal contributions, while Western New-York had ceased to grow even her own bread stuffs, and Ohio to produce one bushel more than she needed for home consumption. Can we doubt that this steady recession of our Egypt, our Hungary, is destined to continue. Twenty three years ago, when I first rode out from the then, rising village of Chicago to see the Illinois prairies, nearly every wagon I met was loaded with wheat, going into Chicago, to be sold, for about 50 cents per bushel, and the proceeds loaded back in the form of lumber, groceries, and almost everything else, grain excepted, needed by the pioneers, then dotting, thinly and irregularly, that whole region with their cabins. Now, I presume the district I then traversed produces hardly more grain than it consumes; taking Illinois altogether, I doubt that she will grow her own breadstuffs after 1880; not that she will be unable to produce a large surplus, but that her farmers will have decided that they can use their lands otherwise to greater advantage. Iowa and Minnesota will continue to export grain for perhaps twenty years longer; but even their time will come for saying, "New-York and New-England (not to speak of old England) are too far away to furnish profitable markets for such bulky products; the cost of transportation absorbs the larger part of the cargo. We must export instead Wool, Meat, Lard, Butter, Cheese, Hops, and various manufactures, whereof the freight will range from 2 up to not more than 25 per cent. of the value." They will thus save their soil from the tremendous taxation made by taking grain crop after grain crop persistently, which long ago exhausted most of New-England and Eastern New-York of wheat-forming material, and has since wrought the same deplorable result in our rich Genesee valley; while Eastern Pennsylvania, though settled nearly two centuries ago, having pursued a more rational and prudent system of husbandry, grows excellent wheat-crops to this day.

I insist that the States this side of the Delaware, though they will draw much grain from the Canadas after the political changes that cannot be far distant, will be compelled to grow a very considerable share of their own breadstuffs; that the West will cease to supply them unless at prices that they will deem exorbitant; and that grain-growing eastward of a line drawn from Baltimore due north to the Lakos will have to be very considerably extended. Let us see, then whether the East is not unwise in having so generally abandoned grain-growing.

I leave out of the account most of New-England, as well as of Eastern New-York, and the more rugged portions of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where the rocky, hilly, swamp face of the country seems to forbid any but that patchy cultivation; wherein machinery and mechanical power can scarcely be made available, and which seem, therefore, permanently fated to persevere in a system of agriculture and horticulture not essentially unlike that they now exhibit. In the valleys of the Penobscot, the Kennebec, the Hudson, and of our small rivers, there are considerable tracts absolutely free from these natural impediments, whereon a larger and more efficient husbandry is perfectly practicable, even now; but these intervals are generally the property of many owners; are cut up by roads and fences; are held at high prices; so that I will simply pass them by, and take for illustration the "Pino Barrens" of Southern New Jersey, merely observing that what I say of them is equally applicable, with slight modifications, to large portions of Long Island, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and the Carolinas.

A SHERIFF IN THE SHOW BUSINESS.— Sheriff Myers, of this county, received authority from parties in Philadelphia to levy upon the circus department of Gardner & Forepaugh's "Moral Circus and monster Menagerie," which was announced to exhibit in this city this afternoon and evening. Accordingly, yesterday he dispatched Deputy Sheriff Hess to Remmetsown, where it then was, and where the execution was served. The deputy at once took charge of the concern and accompanied it to this city. The execution is against Dan Gardner and John Forepaugh, and amounts to about $14,000, inasmuch as the show was advertised for this city, Sheriff Myers did not feel disposed to be "rough" on the parties, but allowed them to fill their bill for the day, and at the close of the performance this evening will take charge of all the horses and apparatuses belonging to the concern, when an inventory will be taken, the stock advertised and then sold at sheriff sale, unless an arrangement is effected in the meantime. It is probable that the collection of animals, or the menagerie department, is not subject to execution, as it belongs to other parties. The Deputy Sheriff accompanied the caravan in its march through the streets this morning and attracted considerable attention. It is probable the first time in the history of the sheriff of Lancaster county that one has been called upon to run a show on so extensive a scale.—Lancaster Express, 16th.

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED. WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE CASES REQUIRE PROMPT TREATMENT. TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharge, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Do your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or sticky, or is itropy on settling? Or does a thick album to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspnoea? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rashes of blood to the head? In your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on the subject? Do you feel dull, listless, mooping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eyes as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well as you used to? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you not lost sleep? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, readers, forbearance, venereal disease badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the general system. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, or nervous, or palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other messages about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs fed by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but these they do business with or for.

Now many men, from badly cured disease, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in those organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—insanity, paralysis, spinal affection, suicide, and almost every kind of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.
