HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest pithciples of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicide the id a, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating ditaks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomuch becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, divepen and its attendant ceils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SGHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with the point, and who have permitted into are skeptical on the point, and who have permitted into are skeptical on the point, and who have permitted into access out of the inciples of reson and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of the disorder will be found in the stomach and lover. To cleanse and in ignorate the foundand lover. remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a censumptive patient is to invagore to be aystem. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that constant of energy the medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Docoro SCHEANCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a conequence, they myigonate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those pairs which are discessed If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as, a long-tess one.

quetice, they intigotate and strengthen the entitle system and more especially those pairs which are discoved If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as. a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impessible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good neurishin. Food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can guin in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with discased bile, and the stomach laden with unleasthy sline.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consum, tive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relive riterl, and the night sweats and chills are cauced by the discaved lungs. The remelses of narily necessible do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the discave.

There is, after all, nothing the facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon fac s that Dr. Schentik's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his direction-have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the lact that these medicines at with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, poth inst thus cured speedily goin flesh. Cleansing the system of all insputifies, they lay the foundation for a solod, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health; they create an appetite. While we looked, the little children suddenly ceased from play and ran into the lodges; mounted men surrounded the herd, and the swimmers and promenadors hastened toward the vilage.
