

Farm and Household.

Barns and Barn Cellars.

Twenty years ago I built a barn with basement, level on the east, with the bottom of cellar wall on three sides—all open on the east.

Three years ago, I built another barn with bank wall on the west—the rest in closed with matched boards. The floor runs east on a level with the drive way on the west.

I found the hay was spoiling against the north and east sides, and when carting for market had to use the hay knife and cut about two feet wide till I came down to the floor, and there it was not much hurt.

Co-Operation Among Farmers.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman urges co-operation among farmers for the following named purposes:

To lessen the cost of production of farm produce.

To lessen the cost of articles required to be purchased.

To cheapen the marketing of farm produce.

The maintenance of a reasonable price upon all farm products.

The first object to "lessen the cost of production of farm produce," is carried out in the cheese factory.

Reading for Everybody.

Spring.

Spring is the welcome child of all the year. The teeming millions of the earth, without a dissenting voice, say, "All hail to her." And one does not often see her come in such healthy and early fullness as she has come this season.

This time of beauty, of joyous life, of smile, and laugh, and poetry, calls again the living picture of Solon.

For lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;

The flowers appeared on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land.

The fig tree putteth forth her green figs, and the vines with the tender grape give a good smell."

It tests one's faith to believe all he sees now. And then it came like a dream, so quick. It seems but a day since the snow sifted through the air, and mantled the hills, and valleys were serene with last year's grass, and the trees were bare and naked and dead.

A living breath seems suddenly to have blown upon the face of the dead world; a living, divine word seems to have been spoken to it, and lo, the miracle. And with what silence the miracle has been wrought. Not even does one hear the roaring Christ, as at the grave of Lazarus, waking up the slumbering seeds and germs of nature.

The blessed and beautiful work of nature. Now and then we could hear the doubtful and half uttered hymn of some timid bird. But one had to listen well to understand that its broken note meant Spring. But no less is she here, singing, fragrant, pure, tender, beautiful.

Miracle. Yes, we say it, Spring is a miracle. A miracle it is contemplated in the original order of things, made possible in the germinal condition of nature from the first, by the All-Being and the All-Seeing.

Into this original germinal possibility the good and beautiful and bountiful and great God enters in his vitalizing and fruitifying power, and reveals himself in the tints and fragrances and melodies of Spring. Thank God for this prof He gives us of resurrection.

But amid all this new-life beauty, and this merry tumult of happy voices, and this coming to life from the grave, we do not hear the laugh, nor see the sweet beaming face of our dear child.

Up year, when the last October sun dropped its weird and slanting light on the earth, and the October winds shook the frosted leaves from the half-naked trees. Death strikes deeper into human flesh than elsewhere.

And the grave, when it has got its prey, fastens on it, and grips it with a dreadful greed. For by this child's grave the green grass has shot up already, and the trees are white with bloom, and the birds warble in the day, and warble the day out, but her little feet are motionless, her sleep holds on, her lips do not break their awful silence.

How we look, and long, and yearn and ache for her now in this Spring-time of resurrection. Ah, God, what waiting is this! But this is prophecy. There is a Nature, and there is a Spirit. And there is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.

This renewal that comes to us of nature, keeps up patience by re-assuring us. If God so clothe the grass, how much more will he not clothe and rehabilitate the dear dead who sleep. There comes another Spring ampler, warmer, more bountiful, touching the worst death, building up spiritual bodies on the subtle life-giver of our dead kindred. And there! O heart of Christ, pity our waiting, and bring in that other Spring when, under the brooding of thine all-embracing life and love, the graves shall all blossom and bear their fruit.—Christian Radical.

News Summary.

Mrs. Partington will mount the rostrum next season, to deliver a lecture without a subject.

Nettie Power Houston, the youngest daughter of Gen. Sam. Houston, has become a conspicuous contributor to the Southern press, with the intention of making writing her profession.

The suit for $5,000 damages, instituted in the United States Court at Richmond, Virginia, by Judge J. P. Wright, colored, of the Supreme Court of South Carolina, against the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company, was compromised yesterday by the payment of $1,200 to the plaintiff.

He claimed damages on the ground that he was rejected from a first-class car on account of color, notwithstanding he held a first-class ticket.

In making an excavation for a new building on the corner of Fifth and Plum streets, Cincinnati, Saturday, the workmen, eighteen inches below the cellar floor, came upon the skeleton of what appears to have been a young girl, with a rusty, sharp-pointed knife near by. The absence of all appearance of a coffin, with other circumstances, has caused much speculation, not being known whether the girl has been mysteriously murdered and been secreted here, where it was hoped she would never be discovered.

West point is to be taught another lesson. As stated in the Press of Saturday, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has determined to report in favor of the admission of six Japanese youths into that institution. As we already have American, English, African, German, and boys of other nationalities in this common academy, why not Japanese, and, if Japanese, why not Chinese? The difference between the two last is not easily distinguished.

A monument is being made in Philadelphia to the memory of the late Hon. Edwin M. Stanton. It is being erected by order of his executors, and is to be placed over his grave. The monument will be about eighteen feet high, and comparatively plain. The base will be five feet square, and will have a sub-base, on which will rest the die, with this inscription in raised letters: EDWIN M. STANTON. Born Dec. 19, 1814. Died Dec. 24, 1869.

On the top of the die there will be a Gothic cap, receiving a plain and massive square. The whole affair will be extremely plain, no ornamentation being attached to it.

THE STATE JOURNAL.

THE WEEKLY STATE JOURNAL Was established at Harrisburg to supply a want long felt in this State. No effort will be spared to make it an acceptable weekly visitor to the intelligent families of Pennsylvania. It will be devoted to the dissemination of humanistic, educational, moral and social conditions of humanity. So long as the Republican party continues to be, as it now is, more than any other political organization, the enactor and defender of liberal and upright laws, the protector of American Liberty, the promoter of American Manufactures, and the leader in all great reforms, the Journal will advocate its principles and defend its policies.

The mining and manufacturing interests of the State, and the rights of the laboring men employed therein, shall always find favor in these columns. National and State measures proposed and enacted for the protection of American industry will ever be urged, advocated and defended. The latest news, political, commercial, agricultural and social from all parts of the world, will be published weekly.

The proceedings of the Legislature throughout the session will be reported fully and promptly, so that the readers of the Journal may know what is transpiring at the State Capital. The Weekly Journal, like the Daily, is a first-class newspaper, thoroughly sound in politics, education, temperance and religion. It is a good agricultural paper, a good educational paper, a good temperance paper, and a good religious paper, a good family newspaper. The Journal is published by the Harrisburg Printing Association, a corporation chartered by the Legislature, and composed of gentlemen of ample means, whose sole purpose is to publish a first-class newspaper for Pennsylvania. The best talent and the ablest writers have been employed to conduct the affairs, and contribute to the columns of the Journal.

Send for specimen copies of Daily and Weekly. The club rates have been placed low, so that all may secure the paper at the smallest possible cost. TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION FOR WEEKLY. (Invariably in advance.) 1 copy, one year, $3 00 5 copies, " " " 15 00 10 " " "
