The Kome Circle. Evening Hymn. Lord! Thinc eyelids never close: When night calls us to repose, Thou remainest still awake, Watchful care of us to take, As a shepherd through the night Guards his flock till morning light.

Therefore grant to us, Thy sheep, That we may in safety sleep; Let us all refresh'd arise When the san lights up the skies; And in all our works may we Ever render praise to Thee!

But if we are called away But if we are called away Ere we see another day, Let Thy mercy still be near, Lest our hearts should sink in fear; We our souls to Thee dommend, In Thee trusting to the end.

Happiness in Death.

The Rev. William Jay, in a sermon on the requisites for a happy death, says:

"It requires that you should obtain and preserve the evidences of pardon; without these you cannot be fearless and tranquil in the near view of eternity, since after death is the judgment. Keep a conscience void of offense toward God and toward man. Is he in a condition to die who has lived in the practice.
