"DRAW OUT OF THAT CROWD."

The Hon. Charles Francis Adams sailed for Europe on Wednesday last. Before he left a "liberal" Republican interested in the Cincinnati Convention, and desiring that Mr. Adams should become its candi date, wrote to him requesting his views of the movement which it represents, and suggested that there be some one in attendance who could speak for him. To this letter there was received the following reply, with no restrictions as to its publicity

I do not want the nomination, and could only be induced to consider it by the circumstances under which it might possibly be made. If the call upon me were an unequivocal one, based upon confidence in my character carned in public life, and a belief that I would carry out in practice the principles which I professed, then, indeed, would come a fest of my courage in the emergency.

With regard to what I understand to be the declaration of principles which has been made, it would be ridiculous in me to stand haggling over them. With the si gle exception of ambiguity. I see nothing which any houset Republican or Democrat would not accept. Indeed, I should wonder at any one who depiced them. The difficulty is not in professions. It lies everywhere only in the manner in which they are carried into practice, "If I have succeeded in making myself understood you will preceive that I can give no authority to any one to act or sp-ak for me in the premises. A CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTION.

On Wednesday the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections submitted a report on the constitutional question raised by the House as to the right of the Senate to substitute a bill for the general revision of taxation for the House bill which simply abolished the duties on tea and coffee, takes the ground that the House bill abolished the duties on tea and coffee, takes the ground that the House bill abolished the duties was not a bill for raising the revenue within the meaning of the constitution; and therefore, while the Senate might have amended it so as to abolish duties altogether upon other articles, the Senate had no right to engraft upon it, as it did in substance, an amend ment providing that revenue should be collected upon other articles. The completed upon other articles. The completed upon other articles. The collected upon other articl the number of readers to whom it is presented. It is only necessary to present these facts to advertisers who understand their business.

It is presumed that a certain extinguished ex-member of Congress prostitutes his profession to punish his enemies. A great many attornies have sworn not to do the like.

Cles, the Senate nad no display to the senate had not providing that revenue should be collected upon other articles. The committee them argue that the Senate has the right under this clause of the constitution to alter or amend a general bill for raising the revenue.
