The committee on Fire Engine reported that they had examined the Southwark Steam Fire Engine proposed to so sold to the borough, and witnessed a trial of its power. It was placed at the Delaware river in the city of Philadelphia, and fitteen water through 150 feet of hose with a new rice over an elevation of forty feet to a distance of three hundred feet. Through each of two lines of hose with one inch nozales, it throwed water to the height of eighty feet. The water was drawn from the Delaware through twelve feet of suction bose. The engine weighs, when filled with wood and water with Fireman and Driver on, about four tons; it is second hand but every thing is in good condition. The price is $200,00, one third or one fourth cash and the balance in three payments to be made within eighteen months with interest.

On motion, the further consideration of the report was perstoned until 61 "charles to the filled."

LITERARY NOTICES.—The Aldine for May has just arrived, giving further proof of the wonderful progressive power of its conductors, both in the art and literary departments. It is, indeed, a triumph for America that its youthful civilization has given to the art world a publication so unique in conception and so excellent in its development as The Aldine. At the dinner resently given by the publishers to the artists and literati of the country, Prof. Cattell President of Lafayette College, spoke as follows: "The success of The Aldine, like the growing power and influence of the great colleges, is one of the most hope. In the country of the Aldine, like the growing power and influence of the great colleges, is one of the most bope. In the country of the Aldine, like the growing the way to the country. Every American is proud to know that we have now great schools both for liberal culture and science equal to those abroad where the past generation were compelled to send their sons; and with equal pride we point to such publications as The Aldine, in which the schollarship, and the elegant and varied culture of our age is presented in a style of typography equal to that of the oldest and best publishing houses in the world. Reference had been made to the great excellence of its engravings. ishing houses in the world. Reference had been made to the great excellence of its engravings. This feature of the magazine had impressed the speaker equally with the elevating and instructive character of its reading matter. Our busy, practical people used such an education towards the appreciation of the beautiful. The Aldline has entered upon a mission field, where the prospects were not very encouraging, and it is certainly a great triumph of its able and enterprising publishers that they have already won for it such a success. From the start they made large claims for it, and the subscription list shows that the public response was quickly 'set up' in the emphatic style known as 'double caps.' And the increasing circulation of The Aldline is something and only for the publishers to be cheerful about; and a ceathful entrope of given free as a premium to each subscriber.

Schinker's for May. —"Traveling by Telegraph: Northward to Niagara," is the title of the leading article in Scribner's for May. It begins a description of the route from Washington to Niagara over the still unfinished Baltimore and Potomac Railroad and the well known Northern Central, A most interesting region was traversed by Mr. James Richardson, the author of the paper, and the artists of Scribber's (including the line of the Pennsylvania Central from Philadelphia to Harrisburgh), a part of the results of the trip are before us in one of the most brilliantly illustrated and entertaining magazine articles of the day. Some of the cust serve wonderful both in drawing and engraving; and their effect is heightened by good paper and good printing. Following this is a bright little illustr ted story by Mrs. Walker, "Fanny Winthrop's Treat." Mr. John H. Tread-well describes "Vasas Fictitian in History," with the aid of exquisite wood-cuts, including a portrait of the vase given to General Dix by Napoleon III.; and Professor Wells has a pictorial on the queer little Democratic Swiss Canton of Appenzell. The new novelett, entitled "Draxy Miler's Dowry," by Saxe Holm, author of "Esther Wynn's Love-Letters," is begun in this number, and gives promise of extraordinary interest. Mrs. Oliphants" at His Gates' is seontinued, and proves to be a really masterly story; it certainly deserves wider attention. Noah Brooks, author of "The wynn's Love-Leuers, is logan in this number, and gives promise of extraordinary interest. Mrs. Oliphant's "At His Gates" is continued, and proves to be a really masterly story; it certainly deserves wider attention. Noah Brooks, author of "The Cruise of the Balbaa," oomes out with a beautiful and pathetic story, "The Walf of Nautilus Island." Warner's "Black-Log Studies" are as juicy and delicious as ever, with a little more serious thought this time. His picture of the singing reformers is a delightful bit of Warnerism. For solid articles we have suggestive paper on "Our Educational Outlook," in which compulsory education is alvocated, and apper on Mr. Lowell's Prose, in which Mr. Wilkinson is as courteous as he is cutting. In a little article on "Frederic Mistral, the Provencial Poet," we find a translation of the song Magali, by Rev. Charles T. Brooks, which is one of the most charming pieces of versification we have ever met with. Saxe Holm's story contains two remarkable poems; there is a riging lyric, "The Railway Ride," by Thomas Dunn English, in the railroad article; and there are verses by Rev. Geo. Lonsing Taylor, Sara H. Brown, and Amelia E. Daley. In "Topics of the Time," Dr. Holland discusses "The Conservative Resources of American Life," "Esthetics at a Premium," "Run and Railroads." In "The Old Cabinet' are "New Names," "Stories without Point," "Concerning a Pestilent Evil," MacDonald's "Within and Without," and "Tragic." This number begins a new volume, and among the improvements which should be noted are a new Department entitled "Nature and Science," whollo opens well with a pregnant summary of practical science; chargement of "Home and Society" and the consolidation of "Culture and Progress" notes under one head. The Ethings tell the story of an Absent-Minded Man.

during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. There are always more or less obstructions of the liver, a weakness and irritable state of the stomach, and great torper of the bowels, being elogged up with vitiated accumulations. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time estimulating the sceretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.
