How to Destroy the Potato Bug.

The correspondent of an exchange, says: "The destruction of the parent bug while upon the plant is comparatively easy, but the same means will not destroy either the eggs or the young larvae. The old bugs come invariably from the West, but those now in the Southern Ohio have remained in the ground all winter, and come to the surface as the plants grow to the height of three or four inches. They then pair, and in about a week after appearance lay their eggs, usually on the under side of the potato leaf, but sometimes on weeds or clover leaves, in groups about half the size of a three cent piece; the eggs hatch in four or five days, the larvae staying upon its leaf, and subsisting on its juices until it reaches maturity, which is usually in about three weeks. It has then attained full size, and its wings begin to form. After maturity it goes through the same form of mating and hatching as that pursued by its ancestors. There may be other characteristics of this insect, but the above are all the writer has been able to observe since their appearance in this section, and his manner of destroying them, which has been entirely successful, is simply to take row after row of plants in the potato field, and kill the bug with a small stick, and turn up the leaves and destroy the eggs in the same manner. On those plants where the eggs are large and nearly ready to hatch, the bug will probably be found in the loose earth around the stem, and generally inactive perhaps from too much exertion in producing and laying the eggs. But the person who travels thoroughly over his field for the purpose of exterminating will easily find these, and will probably consider that the additional cost of destroying the half dead ones is very little, while it adds to his certainty of complete relief. But be his field large or small, let the grower this season act with the knowledge that "eternal vigilance will be the price" of his potato crop.

Price of Sheep and Wool.

In an article in the New York Tribune, by George Gaddes, the question is asked, will the present high prices continue? He answers:

Not long, if the lessons of the past are of any value in predicting as to the future. The sheep is an animal that can be very rapidly increased in numbers. Taking the average of all the breeds that produce clothing and combing wools, the ewes will annually raise lambs equal in number to themselves, and thus, in a few years, entirely overstock the country, after all reasonable allowances are made for non-producing lambs, old sheep and wethers. So, it is quite probable that in a very short time there will be too much wool produced to find the market of to-day. This matter will regulate itself, if our tariff law can be allowed to remain unchanged. The restriction on the importation of wool can be determined, just sufficient to place wool-raising in this country on a par with that of other countries, where cheaper land or cheaper labor, or both, give advantages over us.

Under the stimulus of the present high prices, the production of fine wool in California, Texas, and other new States, will be very much increased, and the growth of our cities demanding food will cause more and more mutton to be consumed, as the people learn to love this most valuable meat, and as farmers learn how to produce it in its highest perfection. The increasing demand for combing wool, combined with the increasing consumption of mutton by the cities, will require that sheep should be raised more with a view to the combined value of fleece and carcass in all the parts of the country densely populated. So it is probable that in the immediate future, we shall see the Eastern flocks converted, in the main, into mutton and combing wool producers.

Shall We Paint Shingles!

Lysander W. Babbit, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes as follows to the Rural New Yorker: "Seventeen years ago, I built a good sized farm house. Three years afterward I added to it a kitchen, wood house, milk room, and tool room. I painted the roof of the first when built. When I came to make the addition, my master builder, whom I considered "architectural authority," advised me not to have the roof painted, and I took his advice. The shingles on the roof of the first part built are as sound to-day as they were the day they were put on. The shingles on the last part built, which were not painted are more than half rotten, and the roof leaks badly. The roof not painted is covered with dirt and something like moss. The painted roof is smooth and has no lint upon it. The lint on the unpainted roof holds the water and causes it to back up under the shingles and rot them, while on the painted roof the water runs off freely. Both roofs are of the same pitch, yet the conductor from the painted roof commences discharging water, in moderate showers, nearly a minute before the one from the roof not painted. From the foregoing facts I conclude that it is best to paint shingles as well as all other roofs. It is proper to remark that I have had the roof of the first named building painted twice, at a cost of $30 each time—$60. It will cost me $120 to put on a new roof. Hence I conclude that two paintings, costing $60, is worth as much as a new roof costing $120.

The seed farms of Collins, Downs & Co., (near Haddonfield, N. J.) embrace over 200 acres of highly cultivated land. There are two farms, a mile apart, to prevent the mixing of the different varieties of the same seed. There were 23 acres of turnips in seed last year, yielding about 20,000 pounds of seed.

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after your own; but the great man is he who, in the midst of the crowd, keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

REVERSED WOODEN AGRAPPE.

THE COMPOUND REST PLANK. FULL IRON FRAME. AND THE SUSTAINING IRON BAR.

ARION PIANO.

IS SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

THE ARION PIANO-FORTE has greater power than any other Piano-Forte manufactured.

It will stand in Tune Longer, and in its mechanical construction it is more perfect, and, therefore, more durable than any instrument constructed in the usual modern style.

The arrangement of the Agraffe, the manner of stringing, the peculiar form and arrangement of the Iron Frame.

SUPERCEDES ALL OTHERS. The use of a bar (which is a part of the Iron Frame on a line with the heavy steel stringing), gives

GREAT STRENGTH where most needed, and in this respect all other pianos fail.

The construction of the WREST PLANK, into which the tuning pins are inserted, is such that it is impossible for the pins to come loosened, or the WREST PLANK itself to split, as is too often the case in other Piano-Fortes.
