farm and Mousehold. What a Heavy Sod Will Do. The sod makes the corn. This may be taken as an axiom, as undoubted as that a straight line is the shortest distance be tween two points. If the sod is right the corn can take of itself. What is wanted is a mass of roots filling the soil to the depth of three, four or five inches or more and such a mat of vegetation on the surface as will inevitably belong to such a mass of roots. Now, what such an amount of vegetable matter easily decomposed, and such as corn leaves to feed upon would measure, can be very easily estimated. It would certainly be within bounds to say that there would be on every square roo of ground 90 cubic feet of matter equal in fertilizing power to average barn-yard manure. This is over three-quarters of a cord per square rod; and 100 rods going to make up an acre, there would be over 120 cords of manure to the acre. This amount of barn-yard manure would seem perfectly bewildering to a farmer, and would be beyond the power of many to haul out and spread. And here it is or the spot, in the most perfect shape possi-ble to be utilized. Does it need then, any further argument to show clearly that a heavy soil, is the best, cheapest and most easily handled manure a farmer can procure or invent? the vexed question whether oue should plow deep or shallow for corn, here gets a satisfactory and simple reply. With such a sod or any sod, we may say, one must plow sufficiently deep to get enough loose soil on the top to allow the harrow to work and make a seed bed. No more, no less. If your sod is such a one as we lately saw cut from a pasture on a farm in Eastern Pennsylva nia, the plow must necessarily go seven or eight inches beneath the surface before enough soil can be obtained wherein to make a seed-bed. The average crop on this farm is over 100 bushels of shelled corn per acre, and the secret, if there is any, is in this sod. Why should it be doubted? It is a simple example in proportion; as sod is to sod, so corn to corn-And by this we may learn what a heavy sod will do .- Agriculturist. Watering Horses in Hot Weather

The Huntingdon Journal.

There is a warm controversy coming up GLAZIER & BRO. in regard to the watering of horses in warm weather. At present this controversy is as a cloud no larger than a man's hand; but we are sadly mistaken if it do not come to be one of the most stirring. questions of the day; one in the face of which even "Drilling versus Hilling Corn,"
"Deep Plowing," or any other illustrious subject of the past, will pale.

Several writers have of late suggested that in watering horses "while they are warm" in summer is a very bad thing ; others say that "more suffer and are injured for the want of water in summer than from too much of it." The great is not Joseph Harris, although he is but one of several who has taken in hand the reformation of horse means. reformation of horse manners and customs in reference to drink.

The theory of horseman in general is STEINWAY & SONS', that it is an evil to perspire freely in warm weather, and that if little water be given them, they can perspire but little. "The more water we give them the more they GEO. M. GOULD & CO.'S, sweat." On the other hand the laboring man in the open fields tells us he is never so comfortable at work as when he be preso comfortable at work as when he be prespires freely, and he takes his glass of cool spring water as often as he pleases. The argument from this is that what is good for the man is good for the beast. Perhaps so.

We suppose the truth lies midway between these opposing forces. At any rate the discussion will do no harm to the poor dumb beasts interested. Our own experience has been adverse to excessive water.

ence has been adverse to excessive water ing. Even in the harvest field we think moderation is advisable. - Germantown the liver, promoting that secretion naturally which many are in the hab it of obtaining only by the means of artificial medicines. They thus avert many a disease resulting from a torpid condition of the liver. Another way in which they act beneficially is the mechanical effect their little seeds produce in passing through the bowels, very much the same as the watering of an irritated eye-ball when any hard substance touches that delicate organ, and this water, by dissolving the hardened contents of constipated bowels, keep them BEE HIVE GROCERY, in a healthier state than any pill or purgative invented by the apothecary. There can be no doubt that in the summer and fall seasons people who live mainly on fruits and berries and coarse bread can almost ensure exemption from sickness while those who eat heartily of solid meats and vegetables two or three times a day are liable to all the diseases that flesh is heir to.

Failures in Farming.

As a general thing, when ordinary in dustry and judgment are exercised in the business of farming, success, to a greater or less extent, is certain. In other occupations, success is not alone dependent on these qualities, but in spite of the greatest efforts and closest attention, failures often occur. The fickle goddess haunts the merchant and the speculator, but the farmer, secure on his welltilled fields, is not afraid of her frowns nor courts her smile. Fortune for him has no favors to grant, and cannot seriously assail his position. With neither poverty or riches to interfere, he is in the best position for exercising all the virtues.—Hearth and Home.

A FRENCH gardener finding a piece of woolen cloth, which the wind had lodged in a tree, covered with caterpillars, acted upon the idea suggested, and placed woolen rags in several trees. Every morning he found them covered with caterpillars, which were easily removed.
