Whatever you have to say, my friend,
Whatever you have to say, or gay,
Condense as much as ever you can,
And say in the readiest way;
And whether you write of rural affairs,
Or particular things in town,
Just take a word of iriendly advice—
Boil it down.

For if you go spluttering over a page
When a couple of lines would do,
Your butter is spread so much you see,
That the bread looks plainly through
So when you have a story to tell,
And would like a little renown,
To make quite sure of your wish my friend,
Boil it down. When writing an article for the press,
Whether prose or verse, just try
To utter your thoughts in the fewest words
And let them be crisp and dry,
And when it is finished, and you suppose
It is done avently known. It is done exactly brown, Just look it over again, and then Boil it down

For editors do not like to print

EDITOR JOURNAL.—Dear Sir: My name is signed to a call for a Convention to nominate a Temperance ticket in this county. Please allow me to say, through your columns, that I withdraw my name and influence for the present, from the political movement of the Temperance party. The Republican party and the Temperance party. The Republican party and the Temperance party are both fighting in a good cause, against a horde of sore-head office seekers, dough-faced sympathizers with rebellion, rebels, ku-klux, and a few good meaning, but mistaken Democrats. It is important, therefore, that these two parties be united, that they recognize their affinity for each other, and hurl their united forces against the concentrated iniquity of the Union; otherwise they may be defeated, which in my humble opinion would be a calamity to both parties and the nation at large. If the Republican party does not soon take decisive steps against whiskey traffic, then I hope that all temperance men and good citizens will form a party to elect men who will take such action, but up to this time I still have faith in the Republican party's loyalty to every good cause. We cannot expect a young party to do everything at once, and certainly the Republican party need pot be ashamed of its record, even though it, as well as all other parties, has left a grog shop on almost every street corner, and in nearly every village in the land. Yours, truly, so far.
