

The Huntington Journal.

J. E. DURBORROW, Editor.

HUNTINGTON, PENN.

Wednesday Morning, Oct. 23, 1872.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT, General ULYSSES S. GRANT,

OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, Honorable HENRY WILSON,

OF MASSACHUSETTS.

ELECTORS.

SENIORIAL.

Adolph E. Wolfe, J. M. Thompson, Walter W. D. Porter, Philadelphia, REPRESENTATIVE.

1. Joseph A. Bonham. 14. John Passmore.

2. Marcus A. Davis. 15. George S. Brown.

3. G. Morrison Coates. 16. Jesse Merrill.

4. Henry Bunn. 17. Henry Merrill.

5. Theo. M. Wilson. 18. J. W. Miller.

6. John M. Brown. 19. J. M. Thompson.

7. Francis Schroeder. 20. Isaac Frazer.

8. Mark H. Richards. 21. Geo. W. Andrews.

9. Edward H. Green. 22. H. W. Miller.

10. D. K. Shoemaker. 23. John W. Gillette.

11. Daniel R. Miller. 24. John W. Wallace.

12. Leander M. Milton. 25. Charles Carter.

13. Theodore Strong. 26. James C. Boyle.

GRANT AS A CIVILIAN.

That General Grant is not a flippant talker (says the Boston Globe), like the irrepressible Greeley, is very true, and the co-litt'n papers are constantly making this reticence of the President the subject of their petty ridicule. It is quite probable that he has no taste or inclination, for such egotistical displays, and very little faith in their efficacy in influencing the popular judgment. In this respect there is a wide difference between him and Mr. Greeley. The latter has an overweening confidence in his powers of oratory, and is never so well pleased as when he can get before an audience and air his vocabulary. He is exceedingly vain of his oratorical capacity, and is more than willing to specify at all times and on all subjects. Even his candidacy for the highest office in the government imposes no restraint of prudence or delicacy upon him, but rather stimulates his talking propensity. Accordingly we see him rushing off into the New England and Middle States, and scattering his commonplace babble among the crowds who are drawn by curiosity to see the show of a garrulous candidate for President begging votes for himself.

Gen. Grant is no such man as this, and it is all the better for the country that it is so; for that incoherence of speech which runs to incessant and incoherent stumps speaking is no test of statesmanship, and is seldom associated with high civil or military qualities. When occasion requires, General Grant can speak, and his brief and pointed utterances are to the point. He has at times said more in a few words than could be extracted from Greeley's infinity of language by boiling down and compressing all that he has ever spoken or written. When Grant said to the enemy, "The only terms are unconditional surrender," he made a speech which cheered and electrified the whole country, and told what his motives and objects were, as well as though he had made a harangue an hour long. So, too, when he announced from the steps of the Capitol, "I shall have no policy to enforce against the will of the people," that comprehensive declaration indicated his sense of official duty and his purpose to perform that duty as fully as the most elaborate oration could have done.

It is not by words that Gen. Grant is to be judged, either in his civil or military career, but by his acts; and, as a civilian, his administration will compare favorably with that of any President who has gone before him. Entering upon his arduous official duties soon after the close of the war, and when the disordered condition in which that contest had left the affairs of the country had been further complicated and disturbed by the mongrel administration of Johnston's accidental Presidency, his wisdom and firmness contributed effectively to bring order out of chaos, and to re-establish national prosperity. The entangled relations existing between this country and Great Britain have been restored to a state of harmony by a wise and honorable course of arbitration, the success of which is hailed by the civilized nations of the world as the glory of the nineteenth century. Under this administration, the enfranchised slaves have been secured in their rights as freemen, and upheld and protected in their new career as citizens. At the same time the bond of amnesty has been extended with unparalleled liberality to those upon whom the Constitution placed its ban because of their participation in the rebellion. For this wise and generous policy toward the conquered enemies of the Union, the country is especially beholden to President Grant; for it was in accordance with his direct recommendation to Congress that it was adopted, and the principle of amnesty was entirely consonant with the humane and liberal sentiments which dictated the terms of Lee's surrender.

The financial success of Gen. Grant's administration cannot be too highly commended; for it is the result of a wise and cautious policy, which is destined in the future, if not disturbed, to carry the country through all its pecuniary burdens, and make it more and more united in interest, and more prosperous than it was before the war. While reducing the burden of taxation some three hundred million of dollars per year, this policy has enabled the government to pay off about three hundred and fifty millions of the war debt, and to open the way for funding the balance of the debt at a reduced rate of interest. Such visible and tangible tokens of good administration as this bespeak civic qualities of a high order in the head of the government, and they should not be least sight of by people in estimating the propriety of a change of rulers. In the great and essential elements of administration, President Grant has done well, and in the time to come may be depended on to follow out the same judicious policy which has thus far effected such good results. Can we say of Mr. Greeley, that he has done well in the time to come? Can we say of Mr. Greeley, that he has done well in the time to come? Can we say of Mr. Greeley, that he has done well in the time to come?

THE STATE-OFFICIAL.

General Hartman's Majority 35,627.

The following table presents the official returns for Governor in the years 1869 and 1872:

Table with columns for Year, Party, and Votes. Rows include 1869 and 1872 for various parties like Democrat, Republican, etc.

COUNTIES.

Table listing counties and their respective representatives, including Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, etc.

GRANT AS A CIVILIAN.

That General Grant is not a flippant talker (says the Boston Globe), like the irrepressible Greeley, is very true, and the co-litt'n papers are constantly making this reticence of the President the subject of their petty ridicule. It is quite probable that he has no taste or inclination, for such egotistical displays, and very little faith in their efficacy in influencing the popular judgment. In this respect there is a wide difference between him and Mr. Greeley. The latter has an overweening confidence in his powers of oratory, and is never so well pleased as when he can get before an audience and air his vocabulary. He is exceedingly vain of his oratorical capacity, and is more than willing to specify at all times and on all subjects. Even his candidacy for the highest office in the government imposes no restraint of prudence or delicacy upon him, but rather stimulates his talking propensity. Accordingly we see him rushing off into the New England and Middle States, and scattering his commonplace babble among the crowds who are drawn by curiosity to see the show of a garrulous candidate for President begging votes for himself.

CONGRESSMEN ELECTED.

At Large.

Leander Todd, Republican, gain.

Glenn W. Scofield, Republican, gain.

Charles Albright, Republican, gain.

BY DISTRICTS.

1. James J. Randall, Dem. 13. J. D. Strickler, Rep.

2. Charles E. Reed, Dem. 14. J. R. Packard, Rep.

3. Wm. B. Kelley, Rep. 15. J. W. Miller, Rep.

4. J. W. Miller, Rep. 16. J. W. Miller, Rep.

5. J. W. Miller, Rep. 17. J. W. Miller, Rep.

6. J. W. Miller, Rep. 18. J. W. Miller, Rep.

7. J. W. Miller, Rep. 19. J. W. Miller, Rep.

8. J. W. Miller, Rep. 20. J. W. Miller, Rep.

9. J. W. Miller, Rep. 21. J. W. Miller, Rep.

10. J. W. Miller, Rep. 22. J. W. Miller, Rep.

11. J. W. Miller, Rep. 23. J. W. Miller, Rep.

12. J. W. Miller, Rep. 24. J. W. Miller, Rep.

13. J. W. Miller, Rep. 25. J. W. Miller, Rep.

14. J. W. Miller, Rep. 26. J. W. Miller, Rep.

15. J. W. Miller, Rep. 27. J. W. Miller, Rep.

16. J. W. Miller, Rep. 28. J. W. Miller, Rep.

17. J. W. Miller, Rep. 29. J. W. Miller, Rep.

18. J. W. Miller, Rep. 30. J. W. Miller, Rep.

19. J. W. Miller, Rep. 31. J. W. Miller, Rep.

20. J. W. Miller, Rep. 32. J. W. Miller, Rep.

21. J. W. Miller, Rep. 33. J. W. Miller, Rep.

22. J. W. Miller, Rep. 34. J. W. Miller, Rep.

23. J. W. Miller, Rep. 35. J. W. Miller, Rep.

24. J. W. Miller, Rep. 36. J. W. Miller, Rep.

25. J. W. Miller, Rep. 37. J. W. Miller, Rep.

26. J. W. Miller, Rep. 38. J. W. Miller, Rep.

27. J. W. Miller, Rep. 39. J. W. Miller, Rep.

28. J. W. Miller, Rep. 40. J. W. Miller, Rep.

29. J. W. Miller, Rep. 41. J. W. Miller, Rep.

30. J. W. Miller, Rep. 42. J. W. Miller, Rep.

31. J. W. Miller, Rep. 43. J. W. Miller, Rep.

32. J. W. Miller, Rep. 44. J. W. Miller, Rep.

33. J. W. Miller, Rep. 45. J. W. Miller, Rep.

34. J. W. Miller, Rep. 46. J. W. Miller, Rep.

35. J. W. Miller, Rep. 47. J. W. Miller, Rep.

36. J. W. Miller, Rep. 48. J. W. Miller, Rep.

37. J. W. Miller, Rep. 49. J. W. Miller, Rep.

38. J. W. Miller, Rep. 50. J. W. Miller, Rep.

39. J. W. Miller, Rep. 51. J. W. Miller, Rep.

40. J. W. Miller, Rep. 52. J. W. Miller, Rep.

THE STATE-OFFICIAL.

General Hartman's Majority 35,627.

The following table presents the official returns for Governor in the years 1869 and 1872:

Table with columns for Year, Party, and Votes. Rows include 1869 and 1872 for various parties like Democrat, Republican, etc.

COUNTIES.

Table listing counties and their respective representatives, including Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, etc.

GRANT AS A CIVILIAN.

That General Grant is not a flippant talker (says the Boston Globe), like the irrepressible Greeley, is very true, and the co-litt'n papers are constantly making this reticence of the President the subject of their petty ridicule. It is quite probable that he has no taste or inclination, for such egotistical displays, and very little faith in their efficacy in influencing the popular judgment. In this respect there is a wide difference between him and Mr. Greeley. The latter has an overweening confidence in his powers of oratory, and is never so well pleased as when he can get before an audience and air his vocabulary. He is exceedingly vain of his oratorical capacity, and is more than willing to specify at all times and on all subjects. Even his candidacy for the highest office in the government imposes no restraint of prudence or delicacy upon him, but rather stimulates his talking propensity. Accordingly we see him rushing off into the New England and Middle States, and scattering his commonplace babble among the crowds who are drawn by curiosity to see the show of a garrulous candidate for President begging votes for himself.

CONGRESSMEN ELECTED.

At Large.

Leander Todd, Republican, gain.

Glenn W. Scofield, Republican, gain.

Charles Albright, Republican, gain.

BY DISTRICTS.

1. James J. Randall, Dem. 13. J. D. Strickler, Rep.

2. Charles E. Reed, Dem. 14. J. R. Packard, Rep.

3. Wm. B. Kelley, Rep. 15. J. W. Miller, Rep.

4. J. W. Miller, Rep. 16. J. W. Miller, Rep.

5. J. W. Miller, Rep. 17. J. W. Miller, Rep.

6. J. W. Miller, Rep. 18. J. W. Miller, Rep.

7. J. W. Miller, Rep. 19. J. W. Miller, Rep.

8. J. W. Miller, Rep. 20. J. W. Miller, Rep.

9. J. W. Miller, Rep. 21. J. W. Miller, Rep.

10. J. W. Miller, Rep. 22. J. W. Miller, Rep.

11. J. W. Miller, Rep. 23. J. W. Miller, Rep.

12. J. W. Miller, Rep. 24. J. W. Miller, Rep.

13. J. W. Miller, Rep. 25. J. W. Miller, Rep.

14. J. W. Miller, Rep. 26. J. W. Miller, Rep.

15. J. W. Miller, Rep. 27. J. W. Miller, Rep.

16. J. W. Miller, Rep. 28. J. W. Miller, Rep.

17. J. W. Miller, Rep. 29. J. W. Miller, Rep.

18. J. W. Miller, Rep. 30. J. W. Miller, Rep.

19. J. W. Miller, Rep. 31. J. W. Miller, Rep.

20. J. W. Miller, Rep. 32. J. W. Miller, Rep.

21. J. W. Miller, Rep. 33. J. W. Miller, Rep.

22. J. W. Miller, Rep. 34. J. W. Miller, Rep.

23. J. W. Miller, Rep. 35. J. W. Miller, Rep.

24. J. W. Miller, Rep. 36. J. W. Miller, Rep.

25. J. W. Miller, Rep. 37. J. W. Miller, Rep.

26. J. W. Miller, Rep. 38. J. W. Miller, Rep.

27. J. W. Miller, Rep. 39. J. W. Miller, Rep.

28. J. W. Miller, Rep. 40. J. W. Miller, Rep.

29. J. W. Miller, Rep. 41. J. W. Miller, Rep.

30. J. W. Miller, Rep. 42. J. W. Miller, Rep.

31. J. W. Miller, Rep. 43. J. W. Miller, Rep.

32. J. W. Miller, Rep. 44. J. W. Miller, Rep.

33. J. W. Miller, Rep. 45. J. W. Miller, Rep.

34. J. W. Miller, Rep. 46. J. W. Miller, Rep.

35. J. W. Miller, Rep. 47. J. W. Miller, Rep.

36. J. W. Miller, Rep. 48. J. W. Miller, Rep.

37. J. W. Miller, Rep. 49. J. W. Miller, Rep.

38. J. W. Miller, Rep. 50. J. W. Miller, Rep.

39. J. W. Miller, Rep. 51. J. W. Miller, Rep.

40. J. W. Miller, Rep. 52. J. W. Miller, Rep.

THE STATE-OFFICIAL.

General Hartman's Majority 35,627.

The following table presents the official returns for Governor in the years 1869 and 1872:

Table with columns for Year, Party, and Votes. Rows include 1869 and 1872 for various parties like Democrat, Republican, etc.

COUNTIES.

Table listing counties and their respective representatives, including Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, etc.

GRANT AS A CIVILIAN.

That General Grant is not a flippant talker (says the Boston Globe), like the irrepressible Greeley, is very true, and the co-litt'n papers are constantly making this reticence of the President the subject of their petty ridicule. It is quite probable that he has no taste or inclination, for such egotistical displays, and very little faith in their efficacy in influencing the popular judgment. In this respect there is a wide difference between him and Mr. Greeley. The latter has an overweening confidence in his powers of oratory, and is never so well pleased as when he can get before an audience and air his vocabulary. He is exceedingly vain of his oratorical capacity, and is more than willing to specify at all times and on all subjects. Even his candidacy for the highest office in the government imposes no restraint of prudence or delicacy upon him, but rather stimulates his talking propensity. Accordingly we see him rushing off into the New England and Middle States, and scattering his commonplace babble among the crowds who are drawn by curiosity to see the show of a garrulous candidate for President begging votes for himself.

CONGRESSMEN ELECTED.

At Large.

Leander Todd, Republican, gain.

Glenn W. Scofield, Republican, gain.

Charles Albright, Republican, gain.

BY DISTRICTS.

1. James J. Randall, Dem. 13. J. D. Strickler, Rep.

2. Charles E. Reed, Dem. 14. J. R. Packard, Rep.

3. Wm. B. Kelley, Rep. 15. J. W. Miller, Rep.

4. J. W. Miller, Rep. 16. J. W. Miller, Rep.

5. J. W. Miller, Rep. 17. J. W. Miller, Rep.

6. J. W. Miller, Rep. 18. J. W. Miller, Rep.

7. J. W. Miller, Rep. 19. J. W. Miller, Rep.

8. J. W. Miller, Rep. 20. J. W. Miller, Rep.

9. J. W. Miller, Rep. 21. J. W. Miller, Rep.

10. J. W. Miller, Rep. 22. J. W. Miller, Rep.

11. J. W. Miller, Rep. 23. J. W. Miller, Rep.

12. J. W. Miller, Rep. 24. J. W. Miller, Rep.

13. J. W. Miller, Rep. 25. J. W. Miller, Rep.

14. J. W. Miller, Rep. 26. J. W. Miller, Rep.

15. J. W. Miller, Rep. 27. J. W. Miller, Rep.

16. J. W. Miller, Rep. 28. J. W. Miller, Rep.

17. J. W. Miller, Rep. 29. J. W. Miller, Rep.

18. J. W. Miller, Rep. 30. J. W. Miller, Rep.

19. J. W. Miller, Rep. 31. J. W. Miller, Rep.

20. J. W. Miller, Rep. 32. J. W. Miller, Rep.

21. J. W. Miller, Rep. 33. J. W. Miller, Rep.

22. J. W. Miller, Rep. 34. J. W. Miller, Rep.

23. J. W. Miller, Rep. 35. J. W. Miller, Rep.

24. J. W. Miller, Rep. 36. J. W. Miller, Rep.

25. J. W. Miller, Rep. 37. J. W. Miller, Rep.

26. J. W. Miller, Rep. 38. J. W. Miller, Rep.

27. J. W. Miller, Rep. 39. J. W. Miller, Rep.

28. J. W. Miller, Rep. 40. J. W. Miller, Rep.

29. J. W. Miller, Rep. 41. J. W. Miller, Rep.

30. J. W. Miller, Rep. 42. J. W. Miller, Rep.

31. J. W. Miller, Rep. 43. J. W. Miller, Rep.

32. J. W. Miller, Rep. 44. J. W. Miller, Rep.

33. J. W. Miller, Rep. 45. J. W. Miller, Rep.

34. J. W. Miller, Rep. 46. J. W. Miller, Rep.

35. J. W. Miller, Rep. 47. J. W. Miller, Rep.

36. J. W. Miller, Rep. 48. J. W. Miller, Rep.

37. J. W. Miller, Rep. 49. J. W. Miller, Rep.

38. J. W. Miller, Rep. 50. J. W. Miller, Rep.

39. J. W. Miller, Rep. 51. J. W. Miller, Rep.

40. J. W. Miller, Rep. 52. J. W. Miller, Rep.

THE STATE-OFFICIAL.

General Hartman's Majority 35,627.

The following table presents the official returns for Governor in the years 1869 and 1872:

Table with columns for Year, Party, and Votes. Rows include 1869 and 1872 for various parties like Democrat, Republican, etc.

COUNTIES.

Table listing counties and their respective representatives, including Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, etc.

GRANT AS A CIVILIAN.

That General Grant is not a flippant talker (says the Boston Globe), like the irrepressible Greeley, is very true, and the co-litt'n papers are constantly making this reticence of the President the subject of their petty ridicule. It is quite probable that he has no taste or inclination, for such egotistical displays, and very little faith in their efficacy in influencing the popular judgment. In this respect there is a wide difference between him and Mr. Greeley. The latter has an overweening confidence in his powers of oratory, and is never so well pleased as when he can get before an audience and air his vocabulary. He is exceedingly vain of his oratorical capacity, and is more than willing to specify at all times and on all subjects. Even his candidacy for the highest office in the government imposes no restraint of prudence or delicacy upon him, but rather stimulates his talking propensity. Accordingly we see him rushing off into the New England and Middle States, and scattering his commonplace babble among the crowds who are drawn by curiosity to see the show of a garrulous candidate for President begging votes for himself.

CONGRESSMEN ELECTED.

At Large.

Leander Todd, Republican, gain.

Glenn W. Scofield, Republican, gain.

Charles Albright, Republican, gain.