farm and Household.

Food and Health. Bulk, as well as elements of nourishment, is essential in food. Neither cattle ment, is essential in food. nor horses could be kept alive long on fine flour, meal, or grains of any kind. Mixed however, with grass, dry hay, or straw, they thrive. The walls of the stomach and bowels must be kept apart in order to have perfect digestion. A dog lived twenty-one days, the only survivor of a wrecked vessel at sea, closely shut ap in the cabin, by eating the thick, strong wood and leather binding of a Bible. Had he had plenty of hard bread, he would probably hav died in about fifteen days, as the mucus surface of the digestive apparatus, by coming in contact, would have inflamed fear-

Those persons whose diet is rather coarse as bread of unbolted flour, large fruit eaters, bread and milk people in the country. etc., are exempt from pains of dyspepsia Those sustained mainly on very fine concentrated, delicate food, washed down with tea, are gaunt in form, weak in muscle and always taking medicine. Their food should have more bulk.

A poor man's family never lack for an appetite with a crust of brown bread. His neighbor's darlings, surfeited on rich cake highly seasoned dishes and nurtured in luxury, are the life of doctors and druggists. So says science -- The Household.

Catching Cold.

The great secret of keeping from catching cold consists in not exposing one's selito sudden extremes of temperature, con tinually, as much as possible. Don't a one time have a roaring fire and everybody in the room perspiring, and the next mo-ment the dampers all off, and everybody shivering. Better have the atmospher at sixty degrees and keep it there, than to have it first at sixty and then at eighty or ninety, and then back to sixty again.

The regulation of the fire at night is also of some importance, particularly where there are children. Some families allow their fires to go out completely during the night, and the temperature of their rooms falls often to the freezing point on cold nights, while during the day it was up to seventy or eighty. Such changes are bad for little ones, for their lungs are incapa-ble of enduring it, and when such practices are indulged in children are continually troubled with some lung or threat difficulty, and often grow up only to fall the victims of consumption as a consequence. If people would only remember this great rule of sudden extremes of temperament. they would save themselves many useless doctor's bills and fits of sickness.

Pulling at the Halter.

A year ago I had a four-year old horse which contracted the habit of pulling back whenever she was fastened. She would be sure to break loose if what held her could be broken by her drawing in such a backward way. She was cured of the habit by taking a rope two feet long, fast-ening one end around her body just back of her shoulders, and passing the other end through the ring of the halter and tying to the post. She lay back for her usual pull for a few times when fixed in this way but soon found she was drawing from her body instead of her head, which she did not relish, and soon gave it up entirely. She can now be left anywhere in perfect safety, as nothing will induce her to pull back when fastened .- Cor. o Country Gentleman.

Curc for a Felon.

As soon as discovered take some spiritof turpentine in a cup, dip the finger in it then hold the hand near a hot fire till dry then dip it in again and repeat for fifteen minutes, or till the pain ceases.. The next day, with a sharp knife, pare off the thick skin and you will find something like : honey comb filled with clear water, open the cells and the felon is gone.

ANOTHER.-If the felon is too far advanced for turpentine, oil of Origanium treated in the same way, will cure. I too far advanced for either to cure, th felon will be benefitted, as it will be less painful. Never draw it.

Lamp Chimneys.

The reason why chimneys so often break is, that they are not thoroughly annealed and like a good many other things are made to sell. This defect may be partially remedied by wrapping a cloth around them, or a little straw, and then put then in a saucepan of cold water, with as much salt as it will dissolve, and gradually bring it to boiling heat, at which it may be kept for some hours, and then allowed gradual ly to cool. The cloth or straw is to preserve it from bumping against the sauce pan and breaking, when boiling, and the salt enables the water to take a higher de gree of heat.

Farmers' Wives' Clubs. At Oatka Falls, Kansas, they have club composed of farmers' wives. The society meets once a month at the houses of the members in regular succession, take their lunch baskets and have a sort of nic nic supper, so as to give little trouble to the hostess. A regular subject connected with the management of the domestic department of the farm is agreed upon at a previous meeting and is discussed over the tea and knitting work. Like good wives they allow their husbands to come in the evening, and girls, who expect to be far-mers' wives some day, are welcome. The meetings are enjoyable and profitable. This is an institution that deserves to be established in more States than Kansas

Wind Colic in Horses.

The best and cheapest remedy that I have ever known for colic in horses, is to take a banch of cotton rags, put them into an old tin pan, and set them on fire so that they will smoke but not blaze. Hold it near the horse's nose, so he will draw the smoke into his nostrils. Do this for about fifteen minutes, the near will sweet of Levi Rideaux containing, marked 20, 200 Feer Snaver's town plat.
