

Farm and Household.

The Hand that Holds the Plow. The following song is timely and to the point, and will awaken enthusiasm wherever it is sung:

Brothers of the plow, The power is with you; The world in expectation waits; For action prompt and true; Oppression stalks abroad, Monoplies abound, Their giant hands already clutch The tillers of the ground.

Chorus—Awake! then awake! The great world must be fed, And Heaven gives the power To the hand that holds the bread. Yes, Brothers of the plow! The people 'must' be fed, And Heaven gives the power To the hand that holds the bread.

Brothers of the plow! In calm and quiet might You've waited long and patiently For what was yours by right— A fair reward for toil, A free and open field, An honest share for wife and home Of what your harvest yields.

Chorus—Awake! then awake! Ac. Brothers of the plow! Come, rally once again: Come gather from the prairies wide, The hillside and the plain; Not, as in days of yore, With trump of battle's sound— But come and make the world respect The tillers of the ground.

Chorus—Awake! then awake! Ac. The Value of the Roller. The Commissioner of Agriculture, in an article on agricultural machinery, makes the following just remarks on the use of the roller. He says: "Of all the implements for use upon the farm there is no one which tells of greater benefits than the roller. It pulverizes the soil, smooths the surface for the sycote and the reaper, and compacts the earth about the seed and roots of plants; but above all, and of more importance than all, it destroys vermin.

That the earth should be made fine is the object of plowing and harrowing. A roller greatly conduces to this. That small stones and rough places should be driven out of the way of the sycote or mower, is a desideratum which every farmer will appreciate, and when the seed is first sown, and when the frosty winter or thawing of the spring have loosened its growth upon the surface it may be imagined how it would be benefited by giving it a bed in the earth again. But its most useful purpose is less satisfactorily explained, for its only profit is only found in the experience of its use. All know that most of the vermin which afflicts the farmer's crop has its resting and often its breeding place in the earth; there, and upon the young and tender plant, where it deposits its eggs. The cut worm destroys corn at the surface; the Hessian fly deposits eggs upon the wheat blade, which often falls to the ground.

The earth, in fine, is fully charged with the eggs and the embryo of vermin of all sorts, in all stages, and it may readily be imagined what an amount of destruction would follow the passage of a heavy roller over the surface.

Hiring Farm Men. That farmer is fortunate who has two or three active and intelligent sons able and willing to take hold of farm work. Make much of them. Those who have to hire should be willing to pay good wages for good men. We do not sufficiently discriminate. Wages are high; but good men are not likely to take much less than they got last year. Farmers are very remiss in one thing; they do not insist on having "a character" from the last employer.

It should be a hard matter for a bad man, or one who left his employer during the busy season, to get another place. Farmers should combine to drive an unfaithful servant from the neighborhood. Pay good wages, and treat them with kindly consideration, but insist on having respectful behavior, and good work. Know what a good day's work is, and get it; but do not ask for more. An unreasonable employer makes discontented servants. If they do well, tell them so; if not, reprove mildly but firmly.

Transplanting Evergreens. The best season for transplanting is June or July. The Hon. Samuel Walker, one President of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, who owned extensive nurseries in Roxbury, transplanted 100 arbor vitae trees for the writer on the 1st day of August, warranting every one to live, and only one or two died. They should be watered at the time and mulched, but not watered again unless very dry weather and then not often than once a week, as they do not require as much water as deciduous trees, and may be killed by too much. The late N. P. Willis thanked the writer for the above information at Idlewild on the Hudson, with perfect success, many years ago.

COAL ASHES are only beneficial to trees when applied as a mulch where the trees stand in grass. At least we have never found them useful in any other way, when applied alone. They keep the grass down, if applied in sufficient quantity, and the soil loose. But they are excellent to mix with any kind of fermenting manure. They are very good doers or absorbers, and can be used with the most profit in this manner.—Rural New Yorker.

JELLIES may be kept from molding by pulverizing loaf sugar as finely as possible, and covering the surface of the jelly with it to the depth of a quarter inch. Jellies may be kept for years in this way.
