Talking to Horses and Mules.

Mules seem to possess a superiority over horses in learning a language. Nothing is more common on the levee in New Orleans than to see harnessed in drays, stalward mules that understand both French and English. If the driver speaks Spanish or German, or French, and the animal has been long enough with him, it is quite evident that he understands when told to do this or that in either language, by instant obdience. Even Donkies manifest a peculiar aptitude for accomplishing themselves in the same way if reared with drivers speaking the same dialect. A splendid opportunity offers to determine how much a horse might be taught of a language—no severity would be necessary. Their innate approbativeness affords an unerring key-note to their cerebral powers. A gentleman of New York, two years ago, was in the habit of talking to his beautiful horse as he did with his friends, and promised a lump of sugar if he traveled good when he rode out, which was in for several years noted the relative advantages of the different ways of cultivating tomatoes, and he concludes that the best practice to adopt is to proceed as with the Lima Beans—that is, set the stakes before the plants are put out. These stakes need not be over six feet high, and may be set about four feet apart each way. As the plants grow tie them up to the stakes; but that will not be required over half a dozen times during the season. Twenty plants in this way will yield as much fruit as double the quantity on any other plan.

How often do we read in the newspapers occasioned by a "defect in the chimney." Indeed, to have a "fire proof" chimney, so tar between the brick became so heatedfrom a fire in an old-fashioned brick oven—as to communicate fire to the wood work, which if it had not been timely discovered, must have completely consumed the dwelling. In building chimneys see that they are constructed in the most thorough manner.—Maine Farmer.

Dr. Wengert's Family Medicines are considered superior to all others before the American public for the speedy and certain cure of the diseases for which they are recommended. Invalids, try them, and be convinced of the truth of what we assert. It is but ten months since they were first offered to the public, and to-day they are sold by first-class Druggists and Merchants in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, the Virginias, Ohio, Indiana, and the District of Columbia. Surely they are not humbugs or they would'nt be so highly commended by the intelligence of the most powerful states in all this fair land. They are classified so as to meet the most difficult diseases for which they are offered, not one medicine for all the diseases humanity is heir to.
