How I Make Soap.

I keep my ashes dry, and when put in the hopper preparatory to making soap, I have from a half to one peck of unslacked lime put in with the ashes. Before putting the grease in, I swing the kettle off the fire and let it hang a few moments. If there is any potash in it, I take a shovel and take it out, for if there is much potash in it, it will not make good soap. I pack, the ashes well, adding water enough to dampen them. Then I put three or four buckets of water on each day for two or three days, until I think it sufficiently soaked. And lastly, I pour on boiling water to run the lye off. As soon as I have enough run off to commence boiling, I put my kettle over the fire, and boil the lye as fast as it will boil, still adding more lye as it boils down. In this way I continue for a whole day. By evening it will probably be sufficiently strong to eat a feather passing it three times across the liquid. I now put my grease in (all I think it will eat) still boiling as fast it can without its running over. If it cats the grease all up I add more. I never leave the kettle hang over the fire all night. In the morning if there are any scraps of grease that are not eaten up, I boil again for an hour or two, and if they do not dissolve I take them out. Then I take out a few spoonsfulls of the soap and set it away a little while to cool. When cold, if there be no lye under it and it appears free from grease, I set my kettle off, and hang another to boil ore lye. Managing in this way, I generally can make from sixteen to eighteen gallons of nice white soap in two days, and often in one day and a night. I think that by pursuing this plan, or a similar one, any one can make a strong, nice soap, How to Manage a Farm.

The farmer who owns but little stock and keeps it fut, is richer than he is who, owning much, allows it to waste and become poor in the endeavor to keep more than his farm can earry. Much of the thrift and order about the farm lies with the children. However much the parents may strive, if the children are not interested in preserving order, if they have not constantly before them incentives to do so, one little dereliction will follow another until in the end disorder will prevail, the farm will begin to run down, and it will be found that it costs more to bring it back twice told than it would to have kept it intact at first. Whenever you are through with a tool or implement for the season put it away in a secure place. The objection sometimes made that it takes so much room for storage, is not valid. There is on every farm plenty of loft room for the lighter tools, and many ways will suggest themselves for raising comparatively heavy ones, as plows and harrows, and a little time spent at the right time will be money in the end. Even mowers, harvesters and threshing machines occupy but little room if properly taken apart, and the exercise in doing so and putting them together again, often gives valuable lessons in the mechanics, and renders the operatro thoroughly conversant with the workings of the machine itself. There is more in the care of little things than most people imagine, for if these are thoroughly looked after greater ones are not apt to suffer.

Treatment of Sprains.

Sprains are ususlly very painful, and are ccompanied with a high degree of inflammation and soreness. The indications are to secure perfect rest of the injured part, and to reduce the inflammation. The inflammation may be reduced by cold wet compresses, renewed as often as they beome warm. When the patient has a great deal of vitality and there is a high degree of inflammation, the injured part may be immersed in cold water, or a stream of cold water may be poured over it until the pain and soreness have been partially removed, when the cold compress should be applied. When there is much pain and tenderness AN ACT to fix the compensation of the deputy nd but little heat, hot fermentations followed by cold compresses, are preferable. When the inflammation and soreness have subsided, friction is useful to promote absorption and strengthen the part. Great care should be exercised about using the injured part until the strength is restored, as it then requires but very little to sprain it again. A second sprain is more difficult to cure than the first,

Keeping Cream.

Next in importance to having milk pure and sweet, and free from all animal odors, comes the matter of keeping the cream after it is taken off the milk, In the first place, the less milk there is with the eream at the time it is set in the cream jar the better. A great deal of carelessness is shown in this matter, for it be known that milk makes cheese, while the cream only makes butter; and the more milk there is in the cream at churning time, the more cheesy flavored will be the butter, and, therefore, the more likely to spoil afterwards, unexclusively salted, Really pure, good butter requires very little salt; while butter ordinarily made will soon spoil, unless well salted or kept covered with brine.

RECIPE TO CURE A FELON .- A tablespoon heaping full of the scrapings of an old powder horn (one that has been used with powder); a tablespoon heaping full of dried sage, and the same of dried rue; one gill of alcohol; simmer in a covered vessel for twenty minutes. Keep the poultice on for twelve hours and then apply a new one. These poultices will genorally cure; but it sometimes requires four. You need not hesitate to recommend this recipe.

RECENT experiments indicate that the best temperature of the air, as well as of the cream, for rapid churning of butter, is from fifty-four degrees to fifty-nine degrees, instead of the average of sixty-six degrees, as generally taken. A cellar, with temperature regulated by means of a thermometer, seems most suitable for the purpose, especially in summer.

Dr. Wengert's Family Medicines are considered superior to all others before the American public for the speedy and certain core of the diseases for which they are recommended. Invalids, try them, and be convinced of the trath of what we assert. It is but ten months since they were first offered to the public, and to-day they are told by first-leass Druggists and Merchants in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, the Virginias, Ohio, Indiana, and the District of Columbia. Surely they are not humbugs or they wouldn't be so highly commended by the intelligence of the most powerful states in all this fair land. They are classified so as to meet the most difficult diseases for which they are offered, not one medicine for all the diseases humanity is heir to.
