Maj. G. F. McCabe, formerly of this place has turned up in Texas. He and others have a contract to repair the grade of the Trans-Continental Railway, for a distance of two hundred miles. The Sherman (Texas) Daily Courier says "they are pushing their work forward ahead of the track laying, and that Major McCabe is well known on the Central road as a very reliable gentleman, of superior business qualities, and all the parties belong-ing to the company are men of energy, and will not be laggards in their undertaking."

Judge Daan gave his views as follows: Drug-gists are authorized to sell liquor for medical purposes, subject, however, to the risk of indictment. A physician's prescription is not of itself a safeguard for the druggist. If the latter, even on the prescription of a regular physician, sells liquor to a person of known emperate habits, or to those who are known to use the liquor as a beverage, he is liable to indictment, and if found guilty, will be punished to the extent of the law. In short, in the opinion of the Court, a druggist who sells liquor for any purpose whatever, or upon the prescription of the most eminent physician in the county, does so at his own risk.'

Whoever contrived the means for abolishing the nuisance and put it into successful operation, deserves the thanks of men and the gratitude of horses. And to any and every railroad corporation that has not yet discontinued the abominable practice, it may be said: go thou and do likewise, as it is done on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Aitoona.

The reform, as it may be called, was introduced several years ago by Superintendents Dr. Edward H. Williams and John Reilly, atthough it proved to be a very difficult task that they had resolved to accomplish, as the practice had been in vogue ever since the first locomotive was brought to this point. An order having been promulgated looking to a cessation of the ratles of the company, the engine-drivers were eventually made to fully comprehend the situation and to govern themselves accordingly.
