THE MUSSES' BOWER.

THE SUNNY LONG AGO. BY THE BARD OF THE MOUNTAIN.

I am thinking of the hours When, with eager steps and gay, I ever walked amongst the flowers That overhung my happy way. Ere rough time, with ruthless finger, Laid the golden moments low, Then I saw my path-way linger In the sunny long ago.

THE STORY-TELLER.

A FRONTIER EPISODE. BY W. P. CHAMBERS.

"Do you think you will be back to-night?" "Yes, if nothing happens. I know the road is muddy, and my team is heavily loaded. I may be a while, but I will see you before bed-time."

The Muses' Bower.

The Sunny Long Ago.

I am thinking of the hours When, with eager steps and gay, I ever walked amongst the flowers That overhung my happy way. Ere rough time, with ruthless finger, Laid the golden moments low, Then I saw my path-way linger In the sunny long ago.

Back to the ruins she ran and resumed that hopeless, agonizing walk. The ashes of her boy. The sun went down, the moon and stars took their stations in their grand march, and the winds were hushed as night fell around her.

Then unawed by life's reverses, My young life was pleasure's field, Slowly now the gleam disappears To the clouds of care it yields.

Now the shadows dimly lengthen, And the waste of life declares, Time's strong fingers daily strengthen As the years in view appear.

THE STORY-TELLER.

A FRONTIER EPISODE. BY W. P. CHAMBERS.

"Do you think you will be back to-night?" "Yes, if nothing happens. I know the road is muddy, and my team is heavily loaded. I may be a while, but I will see you before bed-time."

"I wish the trip was over." "So do I, but are you not afraid to stay here?" "No, not afraid,"—but the little woman sighed as she spoke, and set about preparing for her husband's departure.

"What is it?" "The woods rang with the cry of the owl hooted in response, and the distant howl of wolves stopped their throaty organs to listen, but no Charley was heard."

"Morning found the wretched parents turning over again and again, the ashes and dead coals of their house. The patient oxen stood yoked at the gate, still hitched to the wagon they had drawn all the previous days."

"What is it?" "The woods rang with the cry of the owl hooted in response, and the distant howl of wolves stopped their throaty organs to listen, but no Charley was heard."

The Game Laws of Pennsylvania.

It may be of interest to the general public, as well as to the sporting world, to know the exact character of the general game law passed by the last Legislature.

The first section prohibits the killing of wild elk or deer in the State save between the first day of September and the first day of January, with various other provisions relative to deer.

Thirty-seven other sections provide that no person shall kill, or offer for sale, a hare or rabbit between the first day of February and the first day of October, under a penalty of $5 for each one killed, and rabbits shall not be hunted with ferrets under a penalty of $10 for each one so killed.

No person shall kill, or offer for sale any wild turkey between the first day of January and the first day of October, under a penalty of $25.

No person shall kill or expose for sale any wild duck or goose killed with a net, or put in a trap, or with any net, instrument or device other than the ordinary shot gun, under penalty of $50.

No person shall kill or expose for sale any upland or grass plover between the first day of January and the first day of August, under penalty of $10; or Wilson or gray snipe between the twentieth of April and the first day of September, under a penalty of $25 for each trapped, exposed for sale, or killed.

No woodcock shall be killed or sold between the first day of January and the first day of August, under penalty of $10.

No quail or Virginia partridge shall be killed or sold between the first day of January and the first day of November, under penalty of $10 for each killed or had in possession.

No ruffed grouse, commonly called partridge, or plumbeous grouse, commonly called prairie chickens, shall be killed or had in possession between the first day of January and the first day of September, under penalty of $10 for each one.

Rail or reed birds shall not be killed or had in possession except in the months of September, October and November, under penalty of $5 for each bird.

No person shall, at any time, within this State, kill, trap or expose for sale, or have unlawfully in his or her possession, any whippoorwill, sparrow, thrush, rail, fish, chimney swallow, woodpecker, flicker, robin, oriole, red or cardinal bird, cedar bird, tanager, or bird, blue bird, or any other insectivorous bird, under a penalty of $25 for each trapped, exposed for sale, or had in possession.

No person shall kill, or discharge any fire-arms at any wild pigeon while on its nesting ground, or break up or in any manner disturb such nesting ground or the birds thereon or discharge any fire-arms within one-fourth of a mile of such nesting place, at any wild pigeon or pigeon, or shoot, at, main or kill them within their roosting, under a penalty of $25.

No person shall trap, snare or set a wild turkey, pheasant, quail, woodcock, rail or reed bird under a penalty of $10, except when they are caught for preservation over winter.

Any person shooting or hunting on Sunday shall be fined from $10 to $25. No person or corporation shall throw or deposit or permit to be thrown or deposited, any cull or coal dirt into or upon any of the rivers, lakes, ponds or streams of this State, under penalty of $50 for each offense, in addition to damages to individual owners or lessees of such waters.

No person shall catch speckled trout, save only with hook and line, except for breeding purposes, or place any set-lines in waters inhabited by them, under penalty of $25 for each offense.

No person shall kill or expose to sale any salmon or speckled trout, save only during the months of April, May, June and July, and the first fifteen days of August, under penalty of $10 for each salmon or trout. This provision is not to prevent any person from catching trout with nets in water owned by himself to stock other waters.

Lake trout or salmon shall not be taken in October, November, December, January and February, under the penalty of $10.

Any person trespassing on advertised grounds for the purpose of taking fish from any private pond, stream or spring, shall be liable to the owner, lessee or occupant in a penalty of $100, in addition to being guilty of trespass.

Any person placing a set-net across any of the canals, rivulets or creeks, in this State shall be liable to a penalty of $25 for each offense.

No person shall place in any fresh water streams, lake or pond, any lime or other deleterious substance, or any medicated bait with intent to injure, poison or catch fish, nor place in any pond, lake or stream stocked with or inhabited by salmon, trout, bass, pickerel, sun fish or perch, any drug or deleterious substance with intent to kill or catch fish, under a penalty of $50, imprisonment not exceeding three months, or both.

No person shall at any time catch or kill, with hook and line or scroll, or expose for sale, black bass or pickerel, and only with hook and line, &c., from the first day of March to the first day of June, under a penalty of $25.

No fishing shall be done in any of the inland waters where trout or bass exist, with nets having meshes less than three inches.

Who is a Gentleman?

An exchange copies the following correct and comprehensive answer to the above question, and urges every child as well as grown persons to commit it to memory.

A gentleman is not merely a person acquainted with certain forms and etiquette of life, easy and self-possessed in society, able to speak and act and move in the world without awkwardness, and free from habits which are vulgar and in bad taste.

A gentleman is something beyond this; that which lies at the root of all his pleasing is the same spirit which lies at the root of every Christian virtue. It is the thoughtful desire of doing in every instance to others as he would that others should do unto him.

He is constantly thinking, not indeed, how he may give pleasure to others for the mere sense of pleasing but how he can show respect to others—how he may avoid hurting their feelings. When he is in society, he scrutinizes himself to see, never even appears conscious of any person's defect, bodily deformity, inferiority of talent, of rank, of the reputation of the person in whose society he is placed. He never assumes any superiority to himself; never ridicules, never sneers, never boasts, never makes a display of his own power or rank, or advantages—such as is implied in ridicule, or sarcasm, or abuse—he never inclines in habits, or tricks, or inclinations which may be offensive to others.

Where Did the Rich Man Go?

Little Johnny was preparing for Sunday School, situated some distance away, when his mother saw one of the neighbors approaching in a vehicle. This man, by the way, was called "The Rich Man," being both wealthy, kind-hearted, and liberal to the poor.

"Johnny, can you tell me where the rich man went?" "He went to the Baptist meeting," replied the little lad, thinking only of his late companion.

"No, no, my son, the rich man went to hell," said the teacher with great impressiveness, while the other scholars were tittering with laughter.

"Did he?" exclaimed the lad, in all honesty. "Then he has taken my shoes and stockings with him!" and up he jumped, and seizing his hat he put out of the school room and down the road to overtake the rich man and recover his property.

An Alarming Evil.

One of the saddest and most alarming evils among us, is the want of parental discipline, and the lawless spirit existing from it among the youth of our land.

American children generally govern their parents. When they get beyond the period of infancy they almost immediately become young gentlemen and ladies.

Boys and girls are generally to a very slight extent under the oversight of their parents. Not unfrequently they are sent into the streets that the mother may not be troubled with them, and such boys very quickly acquire all the accomplishments which belong to young men of that period.

The girls walk the streets arrayed in the fashions of the day, read the illustrated papers, and before they enter upon womanhood, often have their minds corrupted with vile views of life, and imaginations excited by images ruinous to mind and heart.
