There are two species of moths which infest furniture. One is a large fly of silvery white color : the worm of the same is shaped like a chestnut worm, and is familiarly known. It rarely infests furniture. The other is a small fly of a dark drab color; the worm is about one-fourth of an inch long, and tapering from the head to the tail. It was first observed by upholsterers about thirteen years ago. This fly penetrates a sofa or chair, generally between the back and seats of the sofas, or under the seats, where the vacancy among the springs affords a safe retreat. It may make a lodgment in one week after the furniture is placed in the house. If such should be the case, in two months the worm will appear; and the continual process of procreation in a few months increases the number to thousands. This moth has no season. It destroys in winter and summer alike, and it is kept in active life by the constant heat of the house. We find at the same time, in the same piece of furniture, the fly worm, and the eggs; thus showing that they are breeding and destroying all the time. It does not eat pure curled hair, but fastens its cocoon to it, the elasticity of which prevents its being disturbed. The inside of furniture is used by it only for the purposes of propagation. The worm when ready for food crawls out and destroys the covering, if of woolen or plush material; and falling to the carpet destroys it. It rarely cuts through plush from the inside, as it is of cotton back, but there are instances where the worms have cut up muslin on the outside back of sofas. There is no protection against them but continual care. New furniture should be removed from the wall at least twice a week at this season of the year, and should be well whisked all round, and particularly under the seats, to prevent the fly from lodging. This is an effectual preventive and the only one known. Cayenne pepper, Scotch snuff camphor, turpentine, and all other remedies for protection from the large moth are of little or no avail against the furniture moths. Saturation with alchohol will not destroy them when in a piece of furniture. If the furniture is infested, they may be removed by taking off the muslin from under the seats and off the outside ends and backs, where they congregate most, and exposing to the air as much as possible. Beat well with a whisk or the open hand, and kill all the flies and worms which showthemselves. This done often will disturb them, and may make them leave the furniture, in their desire to be left in quiet. When the furniture is free from moths and is to be left during the summer months without attention, it may be protected by camphor in small bags of highly concentrated patchouli. The safest way is to have the furniture well whisked twice a week. If the moths attack the carpet, which they will first do under the sofas and chairs, spread a wet sheet on the carpet and pass a hot flat iron over it quickly; the steam will effectually destroy both worms and eggs. If furniture is delivered in a dwelling free from moths, the upholsterer's responsibility ends there and all rests with the hous keeper, as no tradesman can tell whether the moth will attack it or not. There are cases where the furniture has been in use ten or twelve years before attacked. It would be as fair to hold the tailor responsible for the safety of clothing from moths as to hold the upholsterer responsible for the safety of furniture .- Scientific Amer-

The Farmer His Own Master.

If nothing else serves to render a far mer contented with his occupation, this should; he is his own master. The farmer, almost alone of the whole army of workingmen, can say this with any sort of propri-The march of improvement, as it is called, during the past thirty years reduced every mechanic to the position of a servant, a person who does the bidding of his master. But the farmer, be his acres few or many, is his own master and director of his energies; more than the mechanic. any professional man, he is at liberty to gratify his peculiar tastes and to carry out his own plans. He is allowed a wide choice of occupations while being a farmer; and without any serious break can change from stock-raising to grain growing, from bee keeping to vine dressing; and then, if the change is found not pleasant or not profitable, can in his middle life go back to the one which he began. So, too, there is no business in which the young man of energy can so easily engage on his own account. Even if he rents a farm he is vastly more independent than the mechanic who works all his life for an employer. But with a homestead to be had almost for the asking, there is no need of this. He can become the possessor of a home and farm that a patriarch might covet, and thenceforth be among the most independent of men.

Dissolving Bones.

The following is an English process, and the fertilizer produced is said by the originator, Lord Pusey, to be in every respect equal to the superphosphate made by the ordinary process. We do not vouch for the statements made, but give the recipe

"Collect the bones and break them up as well as you can with a sledgehammer or an axe. Place them in a barrel sufficiently tight to hold liquids, depositing a little at a time, and mixing in with them as you go, dried, finely pulverized swamp muck-enough to fill all the spaces between the bones, say one part of muck to four parts of bones. Cover the top with a six or eight inch layer of muck alone, after which be accepted to exempt a claim from the limitation as to be accepted to exempt a claim from the limitation as to day, keeping the mass moist. In from four to six weeks the bones will be entirely dissolved, and ready for application to the soil.
