My friend forgets, however, that the abuse of a thing is no ar-gument against its proper use, and, if he were but to give to his mental vision, a wider range, he would discover that in dooming his chil-dren to a life of i guorance, he shints up for them the principal avenues to usefulness. Who, I ask, have lived to the best purpose, in this world and partly earned the tile to ben-efactors of their race?. Certainly not the un-educated. Education justly claims for its friends the wise and good of all ages, and they who have enjoyed the most of its advan-tages are the one's that prize it unost highly. For sale by J. C. Blair, Huntingdon, Pa. Price SL60. In bringing these "Notes" to the notice of our readers, we can assure them that the author's views are entirely orthodox. His previous works, and especially his "Exposition of the Gospels and Acts," have gained for him such a reputation as a comhave gained for him such a reputation as a co mentator, that the announcement of a new book by him is a guarantee of its worth, and bespeaks for him a cordial welcome. These Notes ar-not on valuable as being full and satisfactory explana-tions of this book (Exodus) of the Old Testament Scriptares, but are extremely appropriate at this time, as the International Sabbath School Les accepted and adopted by nearly all the Sunday Schools of the country, have taken up the Exodu of the Israelites with the beginning of the new year, and this cannot fail to be the very help used ed by ministers, superintendents, parents, tea and pupils in the study of these lessons, making them intelligible, interesting and practical.

There are no pleasures so refined, and enjoy-ments so exquisite, as those flowing from a pure heart and a well cultivated mind. The man who does not enjoy the society of virtuous and intelligent females, must be dead to all the finer feelings of human nature. There is no position in life, in which virtue and intelli-gence is more requisite, than in that of the mother, for no trust can be more succed. To the Christian mother is committed, not only the usefulness and happiness of her children, for time, but it is in a great measure by her watchful eare, that these tender plants must be trained to bloom in the paradise above.
