seemed alike impressed with the great loss the State had sustained by the death of this emi-nent lawyer and "silver-tongued orator." The deceased was born on the 17th of July; 1831, and was consequently in the forty-fourth year of his age. He was the son of Dr. Wm. Swoope, so well known to many of our citiage of sixteen years, commenced the study of medicine, and for two years attended the Jef-ferson Medical College in Philadelphia. The second commission was dated January 14th, 1874, and a few days latter, while lying in bed, the oath of office was administered to him by United States Commissioner Gamble.

Mr. Swoope took an active part in politics in this State. Originally a Whig, when the American, or Know Nothing party was or-ganized, he entered into the movements with There are a number of new cars standing around the New Car Works—Orbison & Co., and a number of slips printed therefrom, and the slips given all his energy lieve, was chairman of the State Executive There are a name of the Committee set up in type, and a number of slips printed therefrom, and the matter was distributed. What was the object of this? Was it to prompt some persons what to swear? It looks very much as if there in the late State and national campaigns are in the late State too well known to need any detailed reference diary. We have not learned the amount of the loss.

He seemed to be impressed, however, with the opinion that if one offender whom he deemed The entire Republican ticket was elected in guilty escaped conviction, it would be taken Huntingdon, except Mr. Chaney, who was de-feated by Mr. James Port, Independent Republican. We are sorry that Chaney should be left out in the cold, but in his successful rivit, and for this reason be was rarely if eve vict, and for this reason he was rarely if ever val we have a Republican and good public servant. He has been tried and not found of conduct, however, gained him many enemies, by whom he was considered as totally devoid of heart. But there were many who knew, by the frequent acts of kindness, that he possessed a heart that could be warmed up to the highest point. To the general public he appeared cold and relentless, but to those whom he selected as friends he was generous and always to be relied upon. In his death the Government will lose an officer whose place, in point of legal ability, energy and s of action will be difficult to fill. promptness of action will be difficult to fill.

From all parts of the State come tokens of respect and esteem for the honored dead. The Pittsburgh Gazette of the 17th inst., in an article on the death of Mr. Swoope says:

icle on the death of Mr. Swoope says:

"Mr. Swoope had for seventeen years been afflicted with the disease which in the end proved his conqueror, and has suffered sufficient to have exhausted the vitality of almost any man in half the time. During his residence in Pittsburgh especially was he afflicted with it, but his iron will and wonderful abundance of nerve power sustained him in the prosecution of his important position, when other men would have fallen, exhausted, from the rank of workers. The writer has often witnessed him in the preparation of his cases, and in the discharge of the duties of his office, when he had to be carried to and from the office and the Court room, and was unable to and in the discharge of the duties of mis once, when he had to be carried to and from the office and the Court room, and was unable to stand. Yet, notwithstanding this suffering and exhaustion, his mind was vigorous and under such discipline, that when the most wearied, sometimes, were won his most brilliant legal victories. His energy was indomitable, his devotion to his chosen pursuit untiting, and his success as a consequence of his attention and services, nothing short of the marvellous.

"Of his work while in Pittsburgh as the legal representative of his Government, the community is pretty familiar, for some of the most interesting pages of local journalism have borne witness to his trials and triumphs. Alternative of his fall and triumphs

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

IRREGULAR SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

Mr. Editors:—When I commenced to write these articles for your paper, it was my intention to fire a few squibs and to make a few hits, if I could. I have learned incidentally that one gentleman accused me of shooting at his ancestors, but if any of my charges have taken effect in that direction, they certainly went wide of the intended mark, and my skill in shooting must be about equal to that of some turkey-hunters I could name. Serieusly, I had not the remotest intention of reflecting on any person's ansestors. I have too much respect for those who endured the toils, dangers and privations of a new country, in order that their children might live in security and comparative ease; and I feel too grateful to the noble before sw the fought, bled and, many of them, died to secure to their posterity the priceless blessing of civil and religious liberty, to write, in relation to them, a single disparaging word. No; I would show my respect and gratitude to our ancestors, by educating and properly training the children of the present generation, to be fit guardians of the noble inheritance purchased by the toils, sweat and blood of their forefathers. I said nothing in regard to any one's ancestors which I would not say respecting my own, for if any of mine ever had very much education or made any great stir in the world, I never heard of it. I may have some ancestral pride, but with the poet I would say:

"My boast is not that I deduce my birth From hoins enthroned, and rulers of the carth. But higher far my prond pretensions rise, I be shown on or parents passed into the kikes."

I promised in my first communication to notice some of the means by which a more revular attendance may be secured in our incidence of parents passed into theskies."

A FRIEND TO EDUCATION.

FROM SHIRLEYSBURG. SHIRLEYSBURG, PA., Feb. 17, 1874.

Shirleysburg, P.A., Feb. 17, 1874. Editor Journal—Dear Sir.—Please publish the tollowing statement of Mr. David Lutz, an old citizen of this place, who was forcibly ejected from the Huntingdon County Alms House by that most illustrious Steward (?) John Logan. Mr. Lutz states: "That he returned to this place one year ago, having been absent some time, and as he, when a former resident of the place, was in the habit of visiting the sick at the House, asked permission of Logan to continue his visits, which privilege Logan freely accorded him, giving him unlimited privilege to do so whenever he desired; that on yesterday (Monday) he visited the House (as has been his usual custom once or twice a week) to see the sick, and more animited privilege to do so whenever he desired; that on yesterday (Monday) he visited the House (as has been his usual custom once or twice a week) to see the sick, and more particularly to view the remains of one who died the night before; and after visiting and viewing the remains of the deceased, was about calling on some of the other sick, when he was met by Logan, who requested him to enter his private office, which he did, but no sooner had he done so than Logan commenced abusing him, using the most ungentlemanly and brutal language possible, charging him with visiting the House and circulating false-hoods about the same, at the same time not allowing Mr. Lutz the privilege of admitting or denying said sharges, but ordered him to leave the House or be kicked out, and never to return as long as he, the Great John Logan (1) was Steward. Mr. Lutz proceeded to comply, and when he got out on the porch Logan rushed out after him, took him by the coat collar and endeavored to throw him off the porch, which was prevented by Mr. Lutz placing himself in a defensive attitude and raising his cane for self-defence. John then retreated back, called his dogs and endeavored to put them on him, but his dogs, wiser than their master, refused to do his bidding. Mr. Lutz then withdrew from the scene, after receiving the injunction that he would be thus dealt with every time he came back. He thinks this pretty conduct for a public officer, in a civilized commuity."

The above statement of Mr. Lutz we believe worthy of all credence, and would suggest that visitors hereafter, when they visit said institution, go armed or run the risk of being forcibly ejected from the same, especially if they have done anything to incur the political displeasure of Mr. Logan, as we believe he had no other motive.

for then Philadelphia would soon be eclipsed by old "Standing Stone."

The lumber intereds has Mr. Steiner's chief attention; a dam over a thousand feet long furnishes the water facilities for his milis, and with the capacity of a hundred horse power, he does a slashing business. We learn that he has customers in Huntingdon, Messrs. Henry & Co., among others, who find it to their advantage to buy from him.

Although there was a striking absence of the beautiful green of nature, which imparts it is charm to both town and country in the summer, we must confess that our Centre county friends have no reason to be ashamed of their native heath, although when squirrel time arrives (and we hope they may often arrive with it), they must patronize the prolific land of your old friend.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

A. B. Brumbaugh, M. D., Editor. All matter pertaining to this department, should be addressed to P. O. Box 12, Huntingdon, Pa. Blackwood's Magazine, for January, with its Bisckwood's Magaziac, for January, with its usual attraction and substantial supply of essays, stories and criticisms, has just been re-issued by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., of New York, which also republishes the British Quarterly Reviews in this country. These periodicals are published from advance copies, by arrangement with the English publishers, and represent the leading minds and views, of English scholars, on all sides of all questions, of any importance, and are worthy of the encouragement and patronage of the think-ers and readers of this continent. The Galaxy, for March, as usual, is quite enter taining. It contains articles on Biography, Art, Literary Criticism, Jurisprudence, Science, Romance and Fiction, and current gossip. The leading article is a Reminiscence of Tom Marshall, who was, a few years ago, one of the most brilliant or-ators of America—the rival of Henry Clay in the almost forgotten. "Gustave Dore" is an attractive sketch of the great French artist, by Justin McCarthy. The Scientific department is very comprehensive in its summary of recent progress in Science and Art. The To-day Printing and Publishing Company of Philadelphia, will shortly issue a perfectly unique book of humor, by the celebrated Max Adeler, entitled, "Out of the Hurly-Burly; or, Life in an Odd Corner." It promises to be the best, as it is the latest production of this most genial wri ter. It will contain about 300 illustrations, by Sheppard, Schell, and other first-rate artists. It is to be sold only by subscription.

The Tribune Extra, No. 9, contains Prof. Proc tor's Six Lectures on Astronomy, lately delivered in New York, with illustrations; also a full report, never before published, of the Lectures of Prof. Louis Agassiz, at Penikese Island, last summer, upon educational subjects.
