A TRIP TO SHIRLEY.

SHIRLEYSBURG, June 2, 1874. MR. EDITOR:—Having lived a number of years in Huntingdon, read and heard of the place called Fort Shirley, from which the town derives its name, yet never having had any business in this section of the county we had not the pleasure of seeing the town or beautiful valley in which it is located. After a pleasant ride of twenty minutes, on the pleas-ant and commodious passenger cars of the East Broad Top railroad, we arrived safely here, and much to our surprise found a very long but not very broad town, and after inquiring for a hotel were directed to the "Mansion House," kept by mine host, E. Eyler.— After partaking of a substantial dinner we wended our way to the County Alms House, with a view to looking out quarters, but after having informed the Steward that we were endeavoring to do something for the Journal, he declared that it had given him decided puffs in the past year or so, and we were in-clined to think it might not be the best place in the world for a man out of the Woods; yet, after a few minutes' conversation, on other more pleasant subjects, we changed our opinion of John Logan, and found him a real jolly old fellow. Supper being announced we were urged to replenish the inner man. After supper we were shown through the entire build-ing, from basement to attic, and we are free o say that it was in excellent condition, clean and airy, no stench, which is so generally met with in kindred institutions. Quite a number of unfortunate persons are domiciled in the treet, caused by the running away of a black at about seven o'clock this morning. CATERPILLARS. EDITOR JOURNAL:-In traveling over the parts of the county surrounding Huntingdon, I have recently noticed the unusually large numbers, and destructiveness of the caterpillars. In portions of Hartslog Valley I was surprised on observing at a distance many trees—wild cherry, apple, &c.,—looking as bare as in winter. On approaching them the fatal web of the destructive caterpillar was observed in every fork, on every limb. Many large apple trees are entirely, and others partially stripped of their leaves and the young fruit, whole orchards being thus affected and no effort made to destroy the destroyer. This is a sad state of affairs to exist in a valley so fertile, and occupied by as good and intelli-gent farmers as Hartslog. It is pitiable to see these otherwise beautiful young fruit trees struggling to make a summer's growth covered with these devastating worms. As their nat-ural enemies, the birds, do not accomplish the work of destroying them, it should not be left undone, but an hour or two each day by one of the farm hands, should be devoted to it until not a trace of their fatal dens is allowed

Pelton, N. Y. Conjugal Sins Against the Laws of Life and Health, and their effect upon the Father, Moth-er and Child. By Augustus K. Gardner, A. M., M. D. Thirtieth Thousand. Revised Edition. New York. G. J. Moulton, 103 Fulton street. Cloth $1.50, paper $1.

Plain facts may be stated in a plain manner and the truth loses nothing by being similarly set forth. There are truths enough, not yet told, and revelations not yet made relating to the subjects treated in this book, to convince the most incred ulous, and startle the most stolid. The subjects here presented are exceedingly delicate, and difficult to present in the proper manuer and true physiological light, without being superficial or shocking the sensibilities of some, yet Dr. Gardner has succeeded well with his task. The book is written in the best possible spirit, scientific and moral, and contains important information which no one, young or old should be without. The subjects treated commend themselves with great force to the earnest consideration of all those who have daughters to bring up; and the teaching of ulous, and startle the most stolid. The subjects have daughters to bring up; and the teaching of have daughters to bring up; and the teaching of this book, and "Satan in Society" published by fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS is on the ou Mr. Vent, of N. Y., if observed would prove a side wrapper. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.
