NOTICE TO DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS.

There are still a number of subscribers upon our list who have not paid us anything since 1871. We have notified them, time and again, that if they did not pay we would be compelled to add fifty per cent. to their accounts, according to our terms, and compel payment. We have now concluded that we will allow no subscriber to the JOURNAL to get indebted to us for subscription for a longer period than four years. And all indebted to us, for this period of time, who do not settle with us before the first day of January next, will find their accounts, with the usual percentage added, in the hands of Messrs. Lovell & Muser for collection.

Well, yes, we could, also, have commenced our notice of the editor of the Radical differently. We might have said: The bird of the genus Doves, (buzard), that presides over it, &c., and not have violated the Latin in the least, and everybody would have exclaimed "How appropriate!" but we preferred a pun to appropriateness.

A paragraph in the JOURNAL, of a week or two ago, in reply to a small paragraph in the Somerset Herald, of the week previous, has drawn out our friend Scull to the extent of half a column. We are, however, not surprised at this. Somerset, at this season of the year, has always been a very windy place, and our friend is especially "full of it." The more apparition of an old woman would be the signal for a perfect gust, and, then, this is all it amounts to. Wind and nothing more! We have no quarrel with the editor of the Herald; and as for Colonel Youty, we believe him to be a pretty gallant fellow, and having received a majority of all the votes cast we vote him habeas corpus in. So note it be.

The Pittsburgh Gazette of a late date furnishes editorially this political ad:

There is a strong movement at the East, and it is largely shared in and sympathized with, here, to bring out John Scott, at present United States Senator, as a candidate for Governor of this Commonwealth. Senator Scott has made for himself an enviable record in the United States Senate, and has shown himself in his home-life, a high-toned, honorable gentleman. There will, no doubt, be a struggle for the nomination, and there are few persons who could more strongly contest for that nomination than Senator Scott. But from what we know of him we are prepared to state that he will not descend to the position of a manipulator in politics for any office whatever. If he is nominated for Governor it will be because his friends, desiring a person of his qualities in that position, put forth an effort in his behalf. This should be borne in mind.

We fully agree with that journal in its high appreciation of Senator Scott, and feel assured that he would make a most capable and excellent chief magistrate, of whom the people of the State might well be proud.—Somerset Herald.

OBITUARY.

John Meredith Read died in Philadelphia, on Sunday, at his residence on Walnut street, from an attack of cholera morbus, aged seventy-eight years. His grandfather, George Read, of Delaware, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. His father, John Read, esq., was a Philadelphia lawyer, well esteemed, who married a daughter of Samuel Meredith, a family equally distinguished in Pennsylvania annals. John Meredith Read, was the eldest son, born in Philadelphia, July 21, 1797. He was educated at the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1818, admitted to the bar. In 1823 Mr. Read was elected to the House of Representatives, and re-elected in 1824. Declining further service in the legislature he was appointed City Solicitor. He was appointed by President Van Buren to the office of U. S. District Attorney for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, and resigned the position in 1841. At this time Mr. Read had acquired a confirmed position as a lawyer of ability, and was nominated by President Polk as a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States. His confirmation by the Senate being in doubt in consequence of his unpopular opinions on the slavery question, the nomination was withdrawn. In 1846 he was appointed Attorney-General of Pennsylvania, holding the position six months. For twelve years after his resignation of the attorney-generalship, Mr. Read being under a cloud as to his political aspirations devoted himself assiduously to his profession. In 1859 he was elected Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and in 1872 by the expiration of the term of Judge Thompson, became Chief Justice for the remaining year of his own term.—Judge Read was an active student and a voluminous writer on topics connected with his profession. His opinions on the bench were marked by careful research.—His reputation was unblemished. His temperament, however, was of that impulsive kind which fitted him rather for the bar than the bench. Of his last hours, a contemporary says, the record is a simple one. "For years his personal physique indicated even to the most casual observer that he might at any moment give way, and it was a surprise to every one who had should have lived so long. Strivelled, literally, to skin and bone, and tottering in step, he still kept faithfully to his duties, and never lost his faculties as a learned judge."—Patriot, 4th Inst.

A Walking Advertisement.

The above is not a fair sample of hundreds of letters which are received by Dr. Pierce, and in the face of such evidence who can longer doubt that the Doctor's medicine cures the worst cases of Chronic Catarrh.

There is trouble among the teachers. The instruction in the public schools of this city have always been paid just as if they were a body and together, that is, if the body is strong enough and the soul sufficiently guided not to require much for to keep them alive. The average wages of the teachers in the primary schools was $850 per year, and in the higher schools $150. Now nobody can get that each year in this city for less than $700 per year, or $520 per year, and the board you get at that price would not come under the head of luxury by any means.

What do you suppose the Board of Appropriation of this great rich city propose to do, they have done so far they have cut the teachers' pay 10 per cent. of their salaries? Think of it! The teachers remonstrate, but to no purpose. They are informed that thousands of people stand ready to take their places, at even a greater reduction, and that the inevitable "law of supply and demand" must come in here, as it does everywhere else, and that the Board is bound to pay the tax-payers, to get its work done as cheaply as it can. And the Board, after this reply, probably a journey to a supper that cost all that had been taken from the teachers which may be sure the tax-payers paid for.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested, that on the 1st of December, 1874, I have sold the property of Thomas L. Utley, and I have left in his possession, and given him the use of the following, to-wit: All the real estate, including the land and buildings, in and belonging to the store, one end stone and brick, fourteen chairs, three beds and bedding, one safe, one stove, one range, one barrel and four, one hen, one cow, and lot of stock.
