tic history. In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the sime of the editors to bring lown the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in sciences, of every fresh production in literature, and of the present inven-tions in the practical arts, as well as its give a resonct and original record of the pregress of po-ticleal and historical events. The work has been begins after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample re-ources for carrying it on to a successful form ma-

rees for earrying if on to a successful terminstion. Note of the original storestype plates have been seed, but every page has been printed as new type, forming in fast a new Cyclopaedia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pressinary expenditure, and with noh improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience as I enlarged how suggested by longer experiences as I enlarged how time in the scenario large how solicity. The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been solid-not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give incidity and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace all branches of science and of natu-ral history, and depict the most famous and re-markable features of sciences and famous and re-manufactures. Although intended for instructions rather than embellishment, as pains have been equivalent the science science, and it is ballowed to their excertion is ensemant, and it is ballowed of their execution is ensuring ensuring elementer; the solt of their execution is a ensuring, and it is balls and they will find a welcome reception as an admira-hic feature of the Cyclogendia, and worthy of its high character.
