Thanksgiving Proclamation.

In accordance with a practice at once wise and beautiful, we have been accustomed, at this year's drawing to a close, to devote an occasion to the humble expression of our thanks to Almighty God for the extensive and distinguished benefits he has bestowed upon us, and to implore his continued favor and protection during the closing years. Another rich and free enjoyment of all our advantages, we should not forget, comes from whence they are derived—the hand of Providence. We are the children of all nations. We have full reason to renew our thanks to Almighty God for favors bestowed upon us during the past year. By His continued mercy, civil and religious liberty has been preserved; and the honest within our borders, labor and enterprise have produced their mortal rewards, and to His watchful providence we are indebted for security from pestilence and other calamities. Again, for manifold blessings, each individual among us has occasion to thoughtfully review and devoutly recognize the favor and protection which he has enjoyed.

Now, therefore, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, do hereby issue the following:

MONEY WANTED!

Within the last two weeks we have sent out in the neighborhood of five hundred duns. To these about thirty or forty have responded, but the great mass have not yet paid any attention to them. We need the money badly or we would not have sent out the request to pay up. Since the first of July we have set whole weeks in our office and did not take in more than $10, while we were having an actual expense of $60 per week. This has been extremely mortifying and annoying to us. We incurred expenses that were unavoidable, and when the time for payment has been reached we found ourselves without money, while thousands are due us. The sums generally due us are so small that the great majority of those who owe us could pay if they made a little exertion. We urge all who are inclined to us to make an effort to pay up and help us out of the drag. We have an excellent paying list; there is no better, and we appreciate their trouble in raising money, but our necessities compel us to urge them to pay a little sooner than they may have contemplated. We are making some fine improvements—some that are a credit to the printing business in Huntingdon and a lasting credit to the town—and they must now, with either indebtedness, be paid for. Come, help us. Don't get mad when you read this, but say, "Well, I feel proud of my paper, and I feel like helping the men who have the enterprise and spirit to keep up with the times. I will pay up the old score and a year in advance." That is the way to say it!

THE NEW SECRETARY IN THE INTERIOR.

The President since his return from the West, has appointed Hon. Zachariah Chandler, of Michigan, to be Secretary of the Interior in the place of Hon. Columbus Delano. The Ex-Senator is pronounced the right man for the place by those who know him intimately. We take pleasure in copying from a letter of D. R. Loche (Petroleum V. Nasby) who speaks from the book. He says:

"The attitude of the New York press in the matter of appointment of Ex-Senator Chandler, of Michigan, Secretary of the Interior, is not only unfair, but brutal. They denounce the appointment as one entirely unfit to be made, intimating, if they do not assert, that the new Secretary is a blatherer, a ninny, and drunkard. Possibly the gentlemen who are discharging these little ink-squirts at Chandler know him and possibly they do not. I do, and I predict that he will make the best officer that department has had since Cox left it. He was for years the most prominent business man in the West, and handled greater interests than any other. He was a merchant, a manufacturer, a shipper; he purchased and developed immense tracts of land in Michigan, and for forty years he has been known as a man not only of absolute integrity, but one of great enterprise, foresight, method, and shrewdness; and he is anything but a drunkard. It strikes me that these qualities want in such places. They are precisely those that Jewell brought up to the Post Office Department, and we all know what he has done in that place. Mark my words, Chandler will administer the duties of his office honestly, vigorously and intelligently. True, he is a partisan, but let it be remembered that those howling at Grati's heels on that account howled just as loud seven years ago because he did not put partisans in position. Time will confound them."

State News.

The price of oil at the wells in Clarion county is $1.40 and at the railroad at $1.65.

Six thousand bushels of corn were raised on the Lehigh county aluminous furnace this year.

Mrs Daniel Cohoe, of Lehigh county, died on Friday while on her way to a funeral.

Methius Smith, of Kattanning, hanged himself recently while his wife was at church. He was seventy-two years old and had been drinking.

A new oil well has been struck near Creswell city, Butler county, Pa. The well is a flowing one and has been running at the rate of about 400 barrels per day.

New Englanders are much exercised over the exhuming of a newspaper turned to stone. This is certainly strange. A few years ago, however, it was quite a common occurrence for newspapers to turn to clay.—N. Y. Commercial.

The Battle of the Baffets!

The Great Review—Death and the Devil—Battalions.

NEW YORK, October 30, 1875.

THE RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT.

The revival movement in Brooklyn has been inaugurated by Moody and Sankey, and it gives every indication of a great success. The series of the meetings commenced Sunday morning last, in the great Skating Rink, in Brooklyn, which has been fitted up for the purpose. It was a sight to see the crowd that came that Sunday morning. The figures from New York were scattered throughout the city, and as far as every possible place of convergence was crowded to its utmost capacity. The meeting in the Rink was addressed at 5 A. M., and the building would seat 7,000. At 6 in the morning—which of the hour—there were no less than 20,000 angels people awaiting the opening of the building. They came in state cars, in carriages, in wagons, on horseback, in and out everything that would carry, and on foot, and they waited and waited two long hours. Finally the doors opened and the first 7,000 found seats, 2,000 more stood in the aisles, and others outside, waiting every minute, stood on their feet, waiting and waiting, as though they expected the roof would fly off, or that to some miraculous way they would be enabled to see and hear Moody and Sankey. Finally, of course, they dispersed.

What did those who got seats, have in view? Simply a good seat, but hear and see? They came with a gift, pleading to their fellow men to be better men. Dwight L. Moody, a robust, strong, earnest man, who believes that Jesus of Nazareth came into the world to save sinners—a plain, uneducated man—begging and entreating his fellow to put trust there in His love, who has done—a man without grace, without polish, without even good grammar—but a man whose soul is permeated and filled with the one idea that without Jesus a man must be lost, and who loves his fellow men to the degree that he is willing to forego all the ambitions of life so that he can rescue them—that is Moody. His co-laborer is just like him in purpose, though different in method. Ira D. Sankey is a handsome man, with a soul full of love for his fellows, and a voice like an angel. What Moody does in speech he does in song. He sings only such songs as hold up to their gaze Christ on the cross dying for sinners—he sings only that love deep enough to take in the vileness and broad enough for a world of transgressors. This is their only theme—this all they say or sing. It is the old story, the beauty and sweetness of which even the infidel never could make head against. He who so loved the world that he gave his own life to save it. Moody talks and this Sankey sings. It is love, love, love. Moody gets his audiences by telling the story of Jesus, who would suffer for death of his sinners; Sankey, with his wondrous voice, sings of that Savior who, having ninety and nine went out through the night and storm, through the tangled brake of the one, and the effect produce is wonderful. They say and sing nothing new—but they are in dead earnest themselves, and though their story be old, they impress everybody.

They inject into their hearers their own earnestness—they compel them to receive it, because they believe it. And that they are in earnest, there can be no doubt. They might of made thousand in England—in fact, they were offered thousands—but they took nothing but the bread they ate, the beds they slept in, and the clothes they wore. And here they refuse to take anything else. Neither of them have a dollar in the world, and they work more hours than any day labor on the streets.

Starting with these two workers, the churches have commenced a movement along the whole line. The crowd that could not get into the Rink, last Sunday, surged into the churches in the neighborhood, filling them to overflowing. Notwithstanding the crowd in the Rink the churches of Brooklyn were never so full and never was so much interest manifested. There is a revival in the air, and advantage will be taken of it. All the churches are arranging for revivals and there will be such an awakening in this city, this winter, as was never heard of.
